'Gov.' Langer Guarded by Militiamen

Court Orders Official to Give Office to Olson.

Both Factions in Dispute Await Decision of Adjutant General.

Bismarck, N. Dak., July 18 (AP).—Bayonets of State militiamen tonight guarded the executive offices of "Gov." William Langer, ousted by the State Supreme Court last night as a convicted felon, while Acting Gov. Ole H. Olson issued orders that martial law, declared by Langer, be revoked.

Both contenders for the gubernatorial chair awaited a decision by Adjutant Gen. Errle Sarles, who arrived late today to take charge of the troops. He failed to indicate immediately whether he would recognize the authority of Langer or of Olson.

The adjutant general filed Olson's order, but did not say definitely whether he recognized Olson as Governor. Thus far his office had been carrying out Langer's martial law command.

Court Backs Olson.

The Supreme Court followed up its ouster order with another late today, directing Langer to deliver over to Olson "the office of Governor and all State documents," further bolstering the acting Governor's stand.

But Langer remained in physical control of the executive offices and his attorneys sought a rehearing before the courts and a stay of judgment until the case could be heard by the United States Supreme Court.

When the State Supreme Court held Tuesday that Langer's conviction of conspiracy to solicit political contributions from Federal workers disqualified him from holding office, a series of events started that threw North Dakota in a virtual state of hysteria.

Disorders Are Feared.

Demonstrations by Langer sympathizers broke loose in Bismarck, unverified reports were circulated that Langer partisans would mob the capital city to keep Olson out of office, and Federal troops were held in readiness at Fort Lincoln.

From his hotel room, Olson, a dirt farmer from New Rockford, quietly went about his business, assisted by advisors, one of whom was United States Senator Gerald P. Nye, who campaigned against Langer in the recent State-wide primary.

Olson issued orders to the assistant adjutant general countermanding the martial law order, but action awaited Sarles' decision. In another stroke of the pen he revoked Langer's proclamation convening a special session of the Legislature Thursday, and filed the document with the secretary of state, who recognized the acting Governor as the legal executive.

Langer Stalls for Time.

Langer leaders, however, insisted the Legislature would convene pursuant to the ousted executive's call.

It was apparent the Langer forces "stalled" for sufficient time to bring the legislative assemblies into ses-

Ted Husing's Wife Gets Uncontested Divorce

Reno, Nev. July 18 (AP).—Mrs. Helen G. Husing won an uncontested divorce from Edward B. (Ted) Husing, radio announcer, at a brief private trial here today. She charged extreme cruelty.

They were married in Brooklyn, N. Y., June 8, 1924. Custody of a daughter, Peggemae Husing, 9, was determined in a separation and property agreement approved by the court. Its terms were not made public.

Pastor Charged With Hiring Boys As Trade Hawks

Greenup, Ky., July 18 (AP).—The Rev. I. D. Hays was arrested here today in a move by local citizens to permit young couples to come to this "Gretna Green" without being harassed by boys seeking to direct them to a place where they could get married.

The preacher was arraigned on a charge of unlawfully paying boys to solicit and direct couples to his house and was held in his own bond of $100 pending a trial Friday. Officials told County Judge J. R. Shepard the preacher had been paying boys 10 to 25 cents each for any couples they brought to his home for marriage ceremonies.

Conviction on the offense carries a penalty of $10 to $100 and possible revocation of the pastor's license to perform marriage ceremonies.

Skull Fracture Fatal To Man Struck by Auto

Stanley Gordon, 44, of 1248 Thirty-first street northwest, died yesterday in Georgetown Hospital from injuries received in an automobile accident Tuesday. He suffered a fractured skull.

Police said Gordon was struck by the machine of Benjamin Rubin as he crossed M street near Thirty-first street northwest. Rubin was released in custody of his attorney pending a coroner's inquest.

Fliers Hop Today for Alaska

10 Bombers Ready to Start 8,000-Mile Journey.

Ten twin-engined bombing planes will take off from Bolling Field this morning on the start of a mass flight from Washington to Fairbanks, Alaska, and return.

Twenty engines, that will be heard over the entire city, will carry the planes with their crews of 30 men.

Preparations were completed yesterday and Lieut. Col. Henry H. Arnold, commanding officer of the flight, issued orders last night for the start today.

Today the planes will fly to Dayton, Ohio, pause for fuel, then go to Minneapolis, where they will spend the night.

Friday they will push on to Winnipeg. From there they will proceed to Regina, Saskatchewan; Edmonton, Alberta; Prince George and Hazleton, British Columbia; Whitehorse in the Yukon, and Fairbanks. They are expected to arrive at Fairbanks next Monday evening.

The ten planes will fly 8,000 miles on their way to Alaska and return. They will set up three temporary bases in addition to headquarters at Fairbanks. These will be located in the vicinity of Nome, the Seward Peninsula and the lower Kuskokwim Valley. Radiating from these points the fliers will carry on reconnaissance flying and photographic work.

In addition to the limited supplies carried in the planes the Army transport Elquario is now en route to Seward with stores and ground personnel. She is expected to arrive early next week. Her cargo will be transferred to Fairbanks and the other bases by rail and air.

The officers were greeted on their arrival yesterday at Bolling Field by Acting Secretary of War Harry Woodring and other high military officials, including Maj. Gen. Benjamin D. Foulois, chief of the Army Air Corps, and Brig. Gen. Oscar Westover, assistant chief.

Secretary Woodring was a passenger in a flight made with Col. Arnold at the controls. The pair flew over the city and suburbs. Woodring directed the course of the plane from the commanding officer's cockpit by means of the phone and radio communication system.

Several thousand visitors inspected the ships yesterday at Bolling Field. Air Corps officials announced that the planes would be on display today until the departure at 10 a. m.

Hundreds Flee Shore Blaze

Forest Fire Hits Crisfield Area Second Time in Two Days.

Crisfield, Md., July 18 (Spl.). Hundreds of families in Byrdtown and Calvary sections, near here, fled their homes today as forest and marsh fires for several hours threatened the thickly populated sections.

This is the second time within the last 48 hours that forest fires have disturbed these sections. Yesterday three homes were burned in the fire's path in Byrdtown section. One unoccupied home was burned today besides several other buildings.

Roads were crowded with families pushing wheelbarrows and push carts loaded with belongings taking them to places of safety. Hundreds of wild rabbits were seen scurrying across roads seeking refuge. A large number of home truck gardens were ruined.

The Crisfield Volunteer Firemen, although handicapped by lack of water, organized bucket brigades and hundreds of men, women and children have been fighting the flames all day, procuring water from nearby ditches and creeks. A low tide and a three-month drought causing wells to become dry handicapped the volunteers in quenching flames. Ditches were dug around burning areas in efforts to control the fire.

West Virginia Woman On Trial in Mate's Death

Welch, W. Va., July 18 (Spl.).—Mrs. Mary Ross went on trial today, charged with killing her husband, Daniel Ross, who was shot to death in his bed near Elkridge a month ago.

She claims she awoke during the night and found her husband dead beside her, but did not hear the shot.

Rise in Milk Prices Held Unjustified

Imposition of AAA License Attacked by D. C. Dairy Official.

"There is no reason for any increase in the price of milk to consumers," declared M. V. Davison, of the Chestnut Farms-Chevy Chase Dairy yesterday, in denying a report that such an increase was on the way, due to the imposition of an Agricultural Adjustment Administration license on the Washington market.

AAA officials were likewise emphatic in attacking the report.

"As far as we're concerned," said a spokesman for the administration, who pointed out that Washington milk prices were higher than those of virtually every other American city, "we play no part in fixing consumer prices. But there is absolutely no reason for an increase in the price in this district, regardless of what the licensee may say."

It was further stated that no agreement on imposing the license had been reached. Both Davison and John McGill, jr., former manager of the Maryland and Virginia Milk Producers Association and now an AAA official, denied that they had taken part in discussions concerning the license. Davison explained that he would not necessarily have to be consulted by the AAA if it had decided to take action.

"But if they put a license on the market, we would oppose it," he declared. "Milk prices here are high enough already."

Similar attacks on yesterday's report were forthcoming at the offices of the Producers Association.

At the AAA it was pointed out that milk licenses, in general, are designed to get higher prices for the farmer, but not the retailer, by the correction of certain abuses in distribution. In some cases, for instance, distributors have charged farmers for high freight charges at less than carload rates, while actually shipping the milk at the lower, carload charges. In other cases, distributors have bought milk at low Class 2 or 3 prices, and sold

It's Small World, Roosevelts Learn; Stop at Same Hotel

Two members of the family of roving Roosevelts, driven from the White House because of alterations now in progress, telephoned Presidential Secretary Stephen T. Early yesterday and discovered that they were stopping at the same Washington hotel.

They are James Roosevelt, who makes Boston his home, and Elliott, who has been visiting the Roosevelt home at Hyde Park, N. Y., on a trip from the West. With the President's two sons are their wives, both couples stopping at the Shoreham.

With President Roosevelt and his other two sons 2,000 miles out in the Pacific, and Mrs. Roosevelt on a "hide-and-seek" tour of the West, James and Elliott met by chance after both had occasion to telephone Mr. Early.

Both sons are here only for a brief visit, Elliott to return in a day or two to New York City and James to Boston. The White House at present is closed to tourists, as well as members of the President's family, while painters renew its whiteness and carpenters enlarge the Executive offices.

NRA Loses Wage Test In Greif Case

Gen. Johnson and Other Officials Restrained in Baltimore.

Baltimore, July 18 (AP)—United States District Judge W. Calvin Chesnut today signed an order temporarily restraining NRA and code officials from attempting to force L. Greif & Brothers, Inc., second largest clothing manufacturers in the country, to pay wages above the clothing code minimum.

The order also restrains Gen. Hugh S. Johnson and NRA officials from depriving the company of its "Blue Eagle," as the, have threatened to do unless the company pays in excess of $100,000 back wages the code authority considers due.

Leonard Weinberg, attorney for the Greif concern, said the case represented the first attack on the constitutionality of a code authority fixing wages above the prescribed code minimum.

Jurisdiction Limited.

Due to the limited jurisdiction of the court, the order is not binding upon those defendants who do not come into Maryland and therefore can not be served with a summons. They include Johnson, Attorney General Homer S. Cummings and members of the advisory

3 Injured in Crash On Highway Bridge

1 Hurt Seriously in Truck Jam; Traffic Delayed.

Three men were injured, one seriously, and traffic was tied up 15 minutes when an oil truck crashed into a parked truck of the Potomac Electric Power Co. on the Highway Bridge late yesterday.

Others injured were Pasquale Graziano, 21, of the 300 block of E street northeast, Randolph's helper, and Richard T. Pitt, 52, of the 900 block of H street northeast, driver of the oil truck. All were treated at Emergency Hospital, where Randolph's condition was pronounced serious.

Auto Storage Racket Laid To Md. Police

Report Attacks Relief Work; Encourages Laziness.

Racketeering by county and State police in Prince Georges County at the expense of Washington and Maryland motorists was charged yesterday in the report of the Prince Georges County grand jury.

In exposing the alleged racket, the jurymen said their investigation has disclosed that officers ordered wrecked cars to certain favored garages, causing motorists great inconvenience and expense.

The jury added:

"This practice has become so frequent that we are satisfied that the officers must receive some compensation for working this 'racket.' We would suggest to all owners of automobiles receiving such treatment from any officer, that they report by letter or in person to the county commissioners of Prince Georges County."

Officers found guilty of ordering an automobile towed to any other than the nearest garage having storage facilities should be dismissed, the jury said. In the case of State troopers who act in similar manner, motorists were asked by the jury to report the facts to the commissioner of motor vehicles at Baltimore.

The jury was in session eight days and returned indictments in 40 cases, ignoring seven.

Removal of records of the Washington Suburban Sanitary Commission from a storage place in Washington to the county was recommended. The jury also suggested that the State Legislature pass a law requiring that all county records be kept within county boundaries.

Much of the relief work being conducted in Prince Georges County was declared by the jury to be unnecessary and to be "encouraging laziness on the part of a great many receiving help." The jury charged that much of the relief work was done merely to provide work for social workers.

The jury commended the work of Miss Agnes Duvall, county social worker, whose plan for relief was praised as helping those in distress and encouraging the needy to become self-supporting.

Praise also was voiced for cooperation extended county police by Capt. Sydney J. Marks, of the Eleventh Precinct, who was credited with "bringing to justice many highwaymen who have been operating in the county."

The jury also commended the county police force, the sheriff's office and State's Attorney Alan Bowie.

Ruth Is Injured By Gehrig's Hit

Babe, Felled on Bases, Out of Game for 2 Weeks.

Cleveland, July 18 (AP).—Babe Ruth will be lost to the New York Yankees for at least two weeks, and possibly longer, in the current hot American league pennant fight.

The home-run king was struck on the left leg and sent sprawling by a sizzling drive off the bat of his teammate and home-run rival, Lou Gehrig, in the third inning of today's game with the Cleveland Indians. Babe was running the bases after knocking out a long single.

Dr. M. M. Castle, club physician of the Indians, to whose office Ruth was taken, said Ruth should remain off his feet at least a week, and should spend another week resting.

Dr. Castle said Ruth's injury was a severe bruise on the lower shin bone, contusion and ruptured blood vessels nearby. Wet X-ray plates showed no fracture.

Manager Joe McCarthy and Dr. Castle went into conference to determine how soon the Babe could leave Cleveland.

When the physician tried to get the Babe to go to a hospital, he refused flatly, and inquired:

"How long am I going to be out, Doc? I want to be with my ball club?"

Cleveland won the game, 15-14.

400 Midshipmen Give Pope Navy Yell and 3 'Holy Fathers'

Vatican City, July 18 (U.P.).—The collegiate audacity of 400 young midshipmen from Annapolis giving their famous Navy football yell and the "Three Holy Fathers" shocked Pope Pius XI into delighted surprise in the staid audience chambers of the Holy See today.

The midshipmen, on a training cruise in the Mediterranean, were presented in audience to the pontiff. They were led by their officers and Admiral Hayne Ellis, in charge of the cruise ships Wyoming and Arkansas.

The Pope had made his customary brief address to the visitors, when Cheer Leader Henry L. ("Hank") Muller, of Leonid, N. J., pounced out of the crowd and shouted:

"All right, let's have four N's, one Nay-vee and three holy fathers—make it hot!"

Four hundred robust voices went into the cheer, ringing through the hall in thunderous echoes:

"N N N N
"A A A A
"V V V V
"Y Y Y Y
"NAY-VEE!
"HOLY FATHER,
"HOLY FATHER,
"HOLY FATHER!"

The Pope stared in amazement and then, smiling with patent delight at the outburst, called Muller to the throne and congratulated him on the performance.

He smiled and waved at the middies, who grinned back at him in ending one of the most unusual audiences in the recorded history of the papacy.

Embargoes Lifted, Trade Is Resumed

Labor Is Expected to Put Peace Proposal to Early Vote.

By Raymond Clapper.

San Francisco, July 18.—The general strike in San Francisco was in a state of collapse tonight.

Admission that it definitely was broken came from Harry Bridges, young Australian-born left-winger and radical chairman of the maritime strike committee, while the general strike committee battled over its policies in an intense session at Labor Temple.

A short time earlier, the general strike committee had taken cognizance of the disintegration in the rigid control it had fastened on food, gasoline, restaurants and transportation and had lifted the embargoes on these activities. Removal of these embargoes caused the breakdown of labor's attempt to win its case by means of a general strike, Bridges said. Though he has been a dominating figure among the longshoremen, he is a minority voice in the general strike committee composed of representatives of other unions which entered into the sympathetic walkout.

"Fight Will Go On."

"The general strike has failed because of mismanagement," Bridges said. "But the battle of the longshoremen for their rights will continue. The breakdown of the general strike came through the lifting of the embargoes."

The general strike was still on technically. But it was losing its effect every hour.

Transportation and food were the two items through which the general strike was aimed to bring this huge city to its knees. When the general strike began at 8 a. m. Monday, it virtually paralyzed the city. But after the first state of near-panic passed, labor's control began to weaken.

Municipal street cars resumed service after the Public Service Commission threatened employes with loss of pensions and civil service status. By the end of 48 hours, the general strike began to show other signs of disintegration. The Standard Oil Co. announced it would no longer recognize labor's edict and today gasoline began to move into the city under guard. A tank truck rolled up to a gasoline station almost opposite Labor Temple and servicing of automobiles resumed.

Food Supply Ample.

For the last 24 hours food has been coming into the city by truck, both union and nonunion. Under guard of State troops and police, convoys of produce and meat were brought into the city starting Monday night.

Food stores in the heart of the downtown section, just off Market street, were displaying windows full of fresh fruits and vegetables. Prices were normal with lettuce at 5 cents a head, celery at 10 cents a stalk, tomatoes at 10 cents a pound, cantaloupes at 5 cents, green peas and beans at 10 cents a pound. Furthermore, there was plenty for all customers. By early afternoon most of the marketing had been done and stores still had ample supplies on hand.

More than 50 restaurants were given permits to reopen by the general strike committee which originally had selected 19 favored eating places. During the noon hour there were downtown restaurant facilities entirely adequate to meet the demand today. A dozen in the vicinity of Market street were only partially filled though an occasional place was filled with standees waiting a turn. Prices were normal. Ham and eggs, for instance, were 30 cents.

Shopping District Busy.

Permits were issued to 350 butcher shops to open for today only.

Downtown streets were filled with shoppers who came in automobiles or on street cars.

The sidewalks showed an unusual proportion of men, strikers strolling about or functioning as pickets. No taxicabs were on the streets, but private automobiles kept traffic active. The only commercial vehicles were occasional bakery and ice trucks and trucks bearing loads of vegetables.

Although everywhere there was evidence of the strike, the stage of serious inconvenience to the public practically had passed. Except for the annoyance of going up to a restaurant door only to find it sealed, or to be unable to get a hair cut at a barber shop, or to hail a taxicab at the curb, the average citizen of San Francisco was able to go about his daily life in the usual way.

Thus it was obvious that the pri-

Rocks Hurled by Strike Sympathizers; Gas Barrage Ineffective.

Seattle, July 18 (AP).—A mob of 1,200 longshore strike sympathizers stormed Pier 41 today, shattering police lines with a rush and a rain of rocks, but failed in their attempt to reach nonunion workers unloading ships at the dock.

Strike leaders said their chief object, formation of a mass picket line, was attained.

Officers hurled tear gas bombs, and their muffled popping, with a dense cloud of white gas, balked the others of the crowd for a time.

New Barrage Ineffective.

Wind blew the gas away, and police automobiles and motorcycles, especially equipped to spray gas, laid down a new barrage. It was ineffective, and strikers swarmed through the officers' lines, but were unable to force their way to the docks.

One man was hurt when he picked up a tear gas bomb and attempted to throw it back at police. It exploded in his hand. Others said they were hurt by police clubs. One officer was struck by a gas pipe.

The strikers penetrated to the edge of the docks—to a fence guarded by officers with pistols and shotguns, who have said they would "shoot to kill" if strikers attempted to break past the fence.

There the mob halted, and officers let them stay, saying they were waiting for the crowd to "cool off." Meanwhile every available policeman in the city was mobilized.

May Drive Out Reds.

There was talk of a general police effort to drive out of Seattle every "Communist or Red" who could be

Good-Will Flight To Girdle Globe

Five American Aviators Start Trip at Chicago.

Chicago, July 18 (U.P.).—Five American aviators began a good-will flight around the world at 4:12 p. m. today when their large Sikorsky seaplane soared away for New York from Lake Michigan.

Lieut. Comdr. William H. Alexander was at the controls. Other members of the crew are Lieut. Comdr. John Wyckliffe Iseman, Maj. William C. Brooks, Capt. Arthur Finch and John Fitkalo.

Plans call for the ship to leave New York tomorrow for Bermuda. Other stops include the Azores, Paris, Berlin and Moscow. The fliers hope to reach the Soviet captal within a week.

New Heat Wave Seen Here Late This Week

The mercury will rise to the low 90's today, and before the end of the week Washington will be in the grip of another heat wave, the Weather Bureau predicted last night.

Yesterday's high mark was 88 degrees, established at 4:30 p. m. The low mark was registered at 5:30 a. m., when the temperature was 64. Winds today will be light and variable, as they were yesterday. Humidity at 8 a. m. yesterday was 71. Despite the rising mercury, no heat prostrations were reported to the police.

Strike Peace Message Sent By Roosevelt

Holds His Labor Board Is Capable of Handling Crisis Unaided.

Ending his long silence on the Pacific Coast strike, President Roosevelt yesterday messaged his faith that "common sense and good order" will combine in a "reasonable solution" to the most serious labor controversy of his Administration.

From more than 2,000 miles out in the Pacific crackled this wireless to Secretary of Labor Perkins, who announced it without commenting only a few hours before Harry Bridges, leader of the striking longshoremen, conceded the general strike was over:

"You may say that I have expressed to you and to the public my confidence that common sense and good order will prevail on all sides of this controversy, and that I have full confidence in the board and its agencies to arrive at a reasonable solution."

Johnson Made Spokesman.

The President's message almost coincided with announcement that Recovery Administrator Hugh S. Johnson, veteran of innumerable labor wars, had been delegated to speak for the National Longshoremen's Board, which is attempting to arbitrate differences at San Francisco.

Erickson Lags In Senate Race

Montana Democrat Third in 6-Man Field; Burton Wheeler Leads.

Helena, Mont., July 18 (AP).—Senator John E. Erickson, seeking the Democratic nomination to succeed himself, was third in a field of six tonight as returns from yesterday's primary were tabulated from all but 574 of the State's 1,387 precincts.

His three Democratic colleagues apparently had been renominated.

The veteran Senator B. K. Wheeler was far in the lead of his only opponent, Bert Replogle, war veteran and member of the State Legislature.

Representative Joseph P. Monaghan, youngest member of the House, had overcome in today's returns a deficit in last night's early reports, and seemed nominated over John M. Evans, former Representative, whom he defeated two years ago.

Representative Roy E. Ayers was unopposed in the Second District.

A heavy vote from several late reporting Butte precincts gave James E. Murray, of Butte, a substantial lead over James F. Connor, of Livingston, who, earlier in the day, had moved from second place to the front in the six-man race.

The former picturesque Federal district judge, George M. Bourquin, apparently was to be Wheeler's Republican opponent, with a substantial lead over Wellington D. Rankin.

Former Representative Scott Leavitt was nominated by the Republicans for the short Senate term.

On the short term Senatorial race 795 out of 1,387 precincts gave Murray, 13,951; O'Connor, 12,974; Erickson, 11,387; Donovan, 7,203; Lovelace, 5,516; Hamilton, 3,196.

mary purpose of the strike, which was to fasten such a tight grip upon the city that it would demonstrate beyond all possibility of question labor's power over a whole community, had not been achieved. With this realization, the rapid crumbling gained momentum during the day.

Pressure by Troops.

The failure apparently was brought about by the pressure exerted by the National Guard almost in its entirely, an expanded police force, and the activities of both the city and State in providing transportation and food and plenty of it, added to the position taken by the conservative element among the strike leaders.

These last, at Labor Temple last night, put through a resolution calling for arbitration of the waterfront labor trouble.

That resolution provoked an immediate roar of dissent from the radical leaders in the International Longshoremen's Association, headed by Bridges, but it revealed unmistakably that the mass of other union representatives in San Francisco had had enough and wished to end the general strike and settle the controversy by arbitration.

Settlement Program.

Following up this development, President Roosevelt's special labor board—consisting of Archbishop Hanna, O. K. Cushing, a local lawyer, and E. F. McGrady, Assistant Secretary of Labor and a former A. F. of L. legislative agent, issued a statement today laying down a suggested program of settlement which provided for immediate ending of all strikes, and an immediate agreement by both longshoremen and shipping companies to arbitrate.

Added to this pressure was the statement issued at Chicago by William Green, president of the American Federtaion of Labor, disavowing on behalf of the federation all responsibility for labor's action here. While his statement was guarded, it was read here as implying considerable doubt about the wisdom of the general strike.

Meantime Mayor Rossi and Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, head of NRA, both added to the pressure by declaring that there could be no settlement of the present dispute until the general strike was called off.

"In the presence of a general strike nothing can be arbitrated or accomplished; the strike must be ended," Mayor Rossi said.

Gen. Johnson said: "The first step is to call off the general strike. So long as a general strike exists on one side and threats of martial law on the other, the Government can not arbitrate."

Main Issue in Fight.

Longshoremen insist they will not submit to arbitration the basic issue of control of hiring halls. Bridges tonight reiterated that view. The hiring halls are the employment agencies on the waterfront. The longshoremen's union insists that labor must control these halls to insure that union members have a fari deal when crews are being hired to unload vessels at dock. They charge that employers and foremen have played favorites, discriminated against union members, collected rake-offs from men before they would hire them and otherwise treated the men unjustly. This is the main point that stands in the way of arbitration of the maritime strike.

Lifting of the food and gasoline embargoes was announced by Edward D. Vandeleur, president of the Central Labor Council as follows:

"Acting upon authority of the general strike committee, the executive committee has issued instructions for the opening of all union restaurants and butcher shops. The committee, by the same authority, also passed a motion releasing gasoline and fuel oil supplies to the general public."

85 Middies to Get Belated '33 Diplomas

Commissions will be awarded immediately to 85 members of the Naval Academy's 1933 graduating class, it was announced by the Navy Department yesterday.

Only half of the 1933 classmen were granted commissions as ensigns. Of the remainder, 105 recently applied for active service and 85 qualified. They will receive the same rating as though they had been placed in active service immediately after graduating.

Assistant to Chief of Air Corps Named

The War Department announced yesterday the appointment of Lieut. Col. James E. Chaney, of Chaney, Md., as assistant to the chief of Air Corps, with the rank of brigadier general for a four-year term, the Associated Press reported.

Chaney is now on duty in the office of the chief of Air Corps, but is expected to assume command of either Randolph Field, San Antonio, Tex., or Wright Field, Dayton, Ohio.

velopments, despite his distance from the mainland, the President's directing hand was seen in efforts of the Federal Government. His message set at rest intimations that he might see fit to take personal charge of the San Francisco situation.

The statement of the National Longshoremen's Board calling for an end to all strikes and submission of all questions to arbitration, was transmitted to the U. S. S. Houston for the President's information, together with this message by Miss Perkins:

"On this basis the President's Board has agreed that Gen. Johnson shall speak for it in negotiating with the ship owners or at any other conference. Gen. Johnson is in entire accord with the suggestions of the President's Board."

Aliens Face Deportation.

The National Longshoremen's Board was appointed by President Roosevelt under terms of the labor dispute bill enacted by the last Congress. Both Gen. Johnson, on a speaking tour of the West, and New York's Senator Robert F. Wagner, subsequently have been called on to take a hand.

Meanwhile, Gov. Frank Merriam of California, in a telegram addressed to President Roosevelt and Secretary Perkins, yesterday sought the aid of Federal authorities in deporting aliens found guilty of participating in riotous disturbances on the West Coast.

Citing "radical agitation and communistic disturbances" as a grave problem confronting his State, Gov. Merriam requested that Federal immigration authorities be instructed to arrest and hold undesirable aliens for deportation. A copy of the telegram also went to Attorney General Cummings.

Acts at Once.

Answering immediately, Miss Perkins informed the California Governor that she has had the immigration director at San Francisco instructed to act "with promptness" in any cases where the immigration laws have been violated. The exchange of telegarms follows:

"My Dear Madam Secretary:

"For your information, I am sending you herewith a copy of message sent today to President Roosevelt at sea because of the gravity and urgency of the problem confronting the people of California with respect to radical agitation and communistic activities in this State.

"I respectfully request that you instruct the Federal immigration authorities to arrest and hold for deportation aliens in this State who shall be found guilty of participating in or in any way aiding any violent and unlawful action or riot.

"The State of California is prepared to maintain law and order and to protect the liberties and persons of its citizens, but I feel justified in seeking the support and cooperation of the Federal Government in ridding California and the Nation of men and women who are not citizens of the United States and whose active willful purpose is to cause disruption of our Governmental institutions and destruction of our economic and social organizations."

Miss Perkins' reply:

"Answering your telegram to me in regard to action by the Federal immigration authorities, I assure you that the Department of Labor will cooperate with California officials to the full extent authorized by law.

"The applicable immigration statutes authorize the department to take into custody and deport first any alien who has entered the United States unlawfully; second, any alien who advocates disbelief in or opposition to all organized government or teaches Communism or otherwise falls within the scope of the act of October 16, 1918, as amended by the act of June 5, 1920, and, third, any alien who is sentenced to imprisonment for a term of one year or more because of conviction in this country of a crime involving moral turpitude committed within five years after the entry of the alien to the United States, or who is sentenced more than once to such a term of imprisonment because of conviction in this country of any crime involving moral turpitude committed at any time after entry.

"The San Francisco district director has been keeping in close contact with the situation.

"The commissioners of immigration and naturalization of Washington has today again wired to the district director at San Francisco to act with promptness in any case in which there is evidence presented to or discovered by him indicating that an alien is deportable under these or other provisions of law."

Praises Peace Vote.

Further than the statement that she considered the vote of the general strike committee for arbitration indicates "a feeling of reasonableness," Miss Perkins declined to speculate on the San Francisco situation. Concerning the raids of "vigilantes" on communistic and radical headquarters, she said:

"I knew nothing about the incidents until I read about them in the morning papers. The raids were neither directed by nor authorized by this department."

Furthermore, she said she knew nothing of the importation of strike breakers to San Francisco excepting from newspaper reports. "I do think, however," added the first woman Cabinet officer, "that the use of strike breakers is provocative and unfortunate."

Questioned as to whether the Government is considering bringing pressure against shipping concerns to force arbitration, using the ocean mail subsidies as a weapon, Miss Perkins declared only that "financial phases have been discussed in my presence." She declined to say by whom, insisting that the Labor Department is not concerned.

Labor "Court" Starts Work.

Meanwhile, the National Labor Relations Board yesterday held its first hearing, involving the failure of the Wheeler Shipping Co., Long Island, N. Y., to reinstate six workers discharged for union activity after having been ordered to do so by the New York regional labor board.

Lloyd Garrison, chairman of the three-man "supreme court for labor," announced that six other companies have been cited to appear, probably next week. He declared that the new board has agreed that some form of regional organization, as now existing, must be maintained, since the National board can not hope to hear all cases.

It is the intention of his board, Garrison said, to confine its activities to cases growing out of differences over Section 7 (a) of the National Industrial Recovery Act. This section guarantees to labor the right to bargain collectively and to choose its own representatives to deal with employers.

Grip of Kohler Pickets Broke; Peace Expected

Former Governor Attacks "Imported Agitators"; Mediation Starts.

Kehler, Wis., July 18 (AP).—Former Gov. Walter J. Kohler of Wisconsin, in the first statement for the management of the Kohler company, whose employes are on strike, today challenged the right of Union No. 18545, American Federation of Labor, to represent workers of the plumbing concern.

The statement, issued as Kohler went into conference with the Rev. J. W. Maguire, assigned by the Chicago regional labor board to mediate te strike, asserted the strike was "inspired by outside labor agitators" and that many of the pickets "were imported from other cities." The former Governor asked, "How can there be any bargaining with law violators who have never worked for us?"

The strike, disturbing the usual placidity of this village, founded by the Kehler family in 1913 and long considered a model of worker-employer harmony, began Monday.

In addition to its recognition as collective bargaining agency for Kohler employes, the union is seeking a 30-hour, instead of a 40-hous work week, and an hourly minimum wage of 65 cents, instead of 40 cents, for common labor.

First effects of the mediation efforts were felt today when approximately 1,000 pickets were given orders by the strike committee to permit company executives, office employes and maintenance men through the lines. So effective has been the blockade that a number of employes, estimated at 40, had been held virtual prisoners in the plant since Monday.

Father Maguire, after meeting with union leaders, conferred for several hours with Kohler and emerged to announce the company executives will consider further the strikers' demands and proposals submitted by the mediator.

Consequently, Greif's attorneys admitted that the order would not legally prohibit the NRA officials from taking away the company's Blue Eagle tomorrow. But they hope its "moral" effect will be to estop such action until after the case is heard on its merits before Judge W. C. Coleman here next Tuesday.

District Attorney Bernard J. Flynn, named a defendant, asked Judge Chesnut not to sign the order because the "publicity would be very detrimental to the whole set-up."

Judge Refuses Delay.

Curley C. Hoffpauir, of the litigation division of the NRA, said he would try to persuade NRA officials in Washington to postpone action against the Greif concern, if the judge would not sign the order. He telephoned Washington and NRA authorities there did agree to postpone action against the concern, according to Weinberg, if the agreement be given no publicity. To that Weinberg would not agree and the judge went ahead with the order.

The Greif Co. operates 11 plants in Pennsylvania, Maryland and Virginia. In its complaint it stated that all its employes received as much as the men's clothing code minimum, $14.40 a week, but that the company had declined to pay the higher-than-minimum wages ordered for certain employes and that it did not consider itself legally bound to pay those employes the back pay the code authority ordered.

Retail Food Prices Highest in 2 Years

Retail food prices over the country have reached the highest level since early in 1932, the Labor Department said yesterday.

The current index, based on the 1913 average of 100, is 109.6, compared with 109.1 on June 19 and 108.2 on May 28. Compared with July 15 last year, the price increase has been 4.5 per cent, and with July 15, 1932, the gain has been 8.5 per cent.

Washington food prices showed a slight increase over the average for the Nation, the rise being six-tenths of 1 per cent, or one-tenth of 1 per cent above the general rise.

Alabama Mill Strike Is Held Aimed at NRA

Textile Operators Leave Settlement to U. S.; Pickets on Guard.

Huntsville, Ala., July 18 (AP).—Alabama's textile strike, confined exclusively to the northern half of the State, today was marked principally by peaceful picketing of the 21 cotton mills closed, and by angling by union officials for other units to join the walkout.

Estimates of the number of men out ranged from 12,500 to 20,000 with the State's normal production of cotton goods reduced from 30 to 50 per cent.

John Dean, international representative of the United Textile Workers of America, said 20,000 were on strike and 28 mills were affected.

"We expect to have complete control of the situation by the end of the week," he said. "We look for 25,000 to be on strike, including some nonunion men."

Pickets at the Avondale Mill, in Birmingham, turned away all visitors to the plant today. Pickets also were on duty at the six mills closed here, but no recurrence of yesterday's rioting took place. Io effort was made to reopen any of the mills shut down by yesterday's walkout.

Scott Roberts, president of the Alabama Cotton Textile Association, said the walkout was a "strike against the NRA" and was a "problem for Federal authorities."

Mr. Roberts said all of the mills were observing the provisions of the textile code.

Strikers demand a permanent 30-hour week, a $12 weekly minimum wage, elimination of the "stretch-out" system and recognition of the union for collective bargaining under the NRA.

U. S. Mediator Acts for Peace In Minneapolis

Troops Are Idle as Truck Strikers, Hoping for Truce, Are Quiet.

Minneapolis, July 18 (AP).—Quiet, contrasting sharply with the turmoil of their May strike, marked the second day of the new walkout of the unionized truck drivers.

National Guardsmen, called to duty by Gov. Floyd Olson to prevent recurrence of the spring strike's disorders, had little to do. Pickets, likewise, figureatively twiddled their thumbs as predictions of a settlement were inspired by the arrival of the Rev. Francis J. Haas, Federal mediator, from Washington.

The strikers cruised the streets but commercial truck operators kept their machines in garages and the Guardsmen idled in barracks.

A mass meeting of American Federation of Labor local unions was called for tonight, but the purpose of the gathering was not divulged.

The strike, which began at midnight Monday, seeks a complete stoppage of truck transportation pending employers' acquiescence to union demands of the right to represent "inside" workers and wage increases.

The employers' committee, after a meeting at which it was reported plans for the resumption of trucking were discussed, announced a survey had shown only 17.5 per cent of the workers of affected firms were on strike. Union heads maintained more than 6,000 were out.

Haas, successful mediator of the Milwaukee electric strike, after a quick survey aided by E. H. Dunnigan, Federal investigator, called separate meetings of both groups. It was understood he might ask for an election to determine the right of union heads to speak for the men.

Milk companies complained to police their drivers were being threatened in attempts to force them to join the union.

it bottled at Class 1 rates, pocketing the dierence without passing any on to the farmer.

In any event, the Administration, due to certain early setbacks, has adopted the policy of staying out of local situations until requested to intervene by both sides. The present preliminary discussions on the District situation, it was said, will not continue unless both sides make clear their desire that a license be imposed.

R. K. Froker has represented the AAA in such talks as have already been held.

New York Sells Bonds As Bankers Cut Rate

New York, July 18 (AP).—The City of New York and the Wall street bankers made peace today and the city negotiated the sale of $58,000,000 worth of bonds at a rate satisfactory to the comptroller.

The sale was made to a syndicate comprising largely those financial institutions whose bid 10 days ago was rejected. The original rate offered by the banks was over 4 per cent, but this time it was 3.8 per cent.

Weir Expects Steel Trade to Improve

New York, July 18 (AP).—Ernest T. Weir, chairman of the National Steel Corporation, said today that he expects the steel industry to improve by the middle of August, with further gains possible in September. Mr. Weir sailed from New York for a vacation in Bermuda.

The steel leader expressed the opinion that prices in the industry are now stabilized.

Troops Guard Langer From Ouster Order

sion in the hope that some action would be taken that would supercede the supreme's court's order.

Langer controls both assemblies, and observers pointed out that he held sufficient strength in the House to force impeachment proceedings against unfriendly State officials and judges of the State supreme court, who voted four to one to oust him.

It was the contention of some Langer leaders the Legislature could meet on its own intiative, thereby inferring that the Legislators, a majority friendly to Langer, could ignore Olson's revocation proclamation.

Langer forces, observers speculated, could impeach officials and thereby suspend them until their trial was completed in the Senate. Langer's group lacks a few votes of the two-thirds necessary to convict, but have enough votes in the House to vote impeachment.

His Regime Chaotic.

The present unparalleled political chaos climaxed sensational political developments that started from the day Langer took office.

Elected in the Nonpartisan League's landslide in 1932, Langer immediately found officials who had campaigned with him opposing his policies. He thrust them aside and became the leader of the "Langer faction" of the league.

The split widened. Two tickets—Langer and anti-Langer—were placed in the June 27 primary election. Langer, with one of the strongest political organizations in the State history backing him, won the Republican renomination overwhelmingly and with him his entire ticket was swept to victory.

Olson went down to defeat in his race for renomination. He had been regarded as one of the strong men of the opposition.

Sentenced for Fraud.

Langer's victory lost some of its glory when two days later Federal Judge Andrew Miller sentenced him and four associates for conspiring to defraud the United States Government. Langer appealed, with his associates, from the 18 months' and $10,000 fine sentence.

After Langer's conviction, Olson started ouster proceedings. He asked the Supreme Court to take original jurisdiction on the grounds a grave situation prevailed and quick action was necessary.

Langer, flanked by a battery of attorneys, including the Attorney General of the State, P. O. Sathre, a Langer candidate in the primary, fought the action with the contention that the appeal to the Federal Circuit Court of Appeals stayed all execution and left Langer's status as Governor unchanged.

This, Olson's attorney, H. G. Fuller of Fargo, challenged, claiming that Langer became disqualified on conviction.

The Supreme Court sustained Olson.

May Call Out Army.

One legal authority pointed out that Federal troops might be called if necessary to protect the Federal Relief Administration in North Dakota, which he called "just as much a Federal branch as the Postal Department." President Cleveland, he explained, called out the troops in 1893 to maintain movement of mail trains over the protests of the Governor of a State.

It was learned that J. L. Kelly, sheriff of Burleigh County in which Bismarck is located, had asked the State attorney general to call out National Guardsmen shortly before the Governor ordered them out. Kelley said the actions of Federal relief workers on strike made aid necessary. One threw a cuspidor through a State House window Monday.

U. S. Move Unlikely In Langer Dispute

Federal action in the dispute between William Langer, North Dakota governor ousted by State Supreme court order, and Lieut. Gov. Ole Olson, who would become acting governor under the court order, appears remote.

Speculation was instigated by Langer's coup in calling out State troops to retain him in office in defiance of the court. Olson was reported contemplating a call for Federal troops.

Officials discussed the situation privately and those familiar with both military and legal matters indicated they could see no way in which the Federal Government could act. They regarded the matter as strictly a local political quarrel.

Use of the Federal troops in State matters is permitted under the Federal constitution in sudden or grave emergency where Federal property is threatened or where the general welfare of the public is endangered. They noted that the Dakota situation bore none of these earmarks.

Those familiar with legal procedure doubted that even the Federal courts would intervene. The decision of the State Supreme Court that Langer automatically lost his office on his conviction for the improper solicitation of political funds, it was said, would be regarded by the Federal courts as a final decision interpreting the State constitution.

found, but Mayor Charles Smith refused to confirm such a move officially, saying "the time is not ripe."

Mayor Smith said the police gas attack failed because of faulty chemicals.

Some leaders of the crowd said they were angered by "the sell-out in San Francisco," where chiefs of the striking unions have suggested arbitration.

A new ship today at the Beleaguered docks, 40 and 41, was the Larry Doheny, which brought 80,000 gallons of fuel oil.

No nonunion men were molested, as the strike sympathizers did not penetrate that far. Several shots were fired at the ship, but no one was injured.

Police Heads Confer.

Mayor Smith, in mobilizing the entire police force, said he would ask Gov. Clarence D. Martin for State troops "if shooting becomes necessary."

The Governor sent William Cole, chief of the Washington State Patrol, to Seattle and as he conferred with the mayor and the chief of police here, more and more strikers and sympathizers went to swell the crowd at Smith Cove, where Piers 40 and 41, centers of the nonunion unloading operations, are located.

Mayor Smith assigned 100 more special policemen to posts, leaving 300 uniformed officers at Smith Cove to face the gathering strike pickets.

Today's riot followed a mass meeting last night in which strikers presented their side of the hiring hall situation to the public. Leaders of the striking unions said that later they would challenge the waterfront employers to meet them on the debate platform.

Mayor Smith's remark that the police gas barrage "failed" was understood to refer to the inefficiency of gas-equipped automobiles and motorcycles.

As it was, the police gas bombs were effective, but the failure of the auto-gas equipment permitted strikers to come closer to the docks than during their previous picketing demonstration.

Mayor Smith said he would obtain more effective gas right away for use in conjunction with the exhausts of police automobiles and motorcycles.

St. Louis Agent Suspended in Shooting Case

Reed Asks Relief From Duties Pending Probe of Woman's Death.

Federal Agent Lear B. Reed, accused of the fatal shooting of Mrs. Dessie Masterson in a raid early Saturday, yesterday was suspended temporarily as chief of the St. Louis corp of agents.

The Department of Justice said Reed had requested his own suspension. He is held under bond for grand jury action.

At the direction of Attorney General Homer S. Cummings, the department is continuing a thorough investigation of the shooting. Federal agents from other cities have been sent to St. Louis to conduct an inquiry separate from that directed by city officials.

Early Saturday Reed led a raiding party which surrounded Mrs. Masterson's home on the belief that a fugitive wanted in connection with the killing of a kidnaping case witness was hiding there.

According to reports here, police who accompanied Reed on the raid fired shots back of the house. Those in front, including Reed, apparently believed the shots came from within. Bullets fired into the house fatally wounded Mrs. Masterson as she lay in bed.

Harold Nathan, assistant director of the Division of Investigation, was placed in charge of the St. Louis office temporarily.

Full Treaty Navy Urged by Swanson

Says Fleet Needs Men; to Push Air Plans.

Repeating that the United States should build a Navy of full treaty power, Secretary Swanson said yesterday the fleet unquestionably needed more men, and the building of new naval planes would be expedited, the Associated Press reports.

"We ought to have a treaty Navy second to none," the Navy Secretary said at his press conference. "I see no reason for changing that attitude."

The Navy will open bids August 15 for 24 new war vessels. A definite date had not been set to receive bids on new airplanes, of which 1,184 are needed in the program to raise the Navy to treaty strength by 1942.

Admirals to Pick Marine Generals

Nine Named by Swanson to Select Two Officers.

Nine rear admirals were named by Secretary Swanson yesterday to a board to recommend promotion of two Marine Corps officers from the rank of brigadier general to major general, the Associated Press reported. The board will meet July 23.

Navy officials said designation of admirals to recommend advancement of generals was an innovation. The Marine Corps has not sufficient officers of high enough rank to form a selection board under the new system of promotion by selection introduced in the corps under an act of the last Congress.

Philip Hickman Wins College Scholarship

Snow Hill, Md., July 18 (Spl.).—The annual Worcester County scholarship to Washington College, Chestertown, has been awarded by the Orphans Court to Phillip Hickman, 19, of Pocomoke.

Hickman graduated from the Pocomoke High School last year. He was on the basket ball team and acted as cashier in the high school cafeteria. V. C. Krabill, principal, pronounced Hickman "the best student among the boys school ever had."

MORE SPEED—MORE ACCIDENTS

Street and highway speeds are still increasing. This places a high premium on the ability of the operator and brings into play some factors not important at the lower speeds. This is indicated by the fact that although the number of autocides decreased last year, the deaths and nonfatal injuries per accident actually increased.

Hull Marking Time in Dawes Bond Dispute

Awaits Clarification of New Issues in Investors' Fight for Equality.

Secretary of State Hull yesterday awaited clarification of new issues thrust into the controversy concerning interest payments on Dawes and Young bonds before making a new report to secure equal treatment for American bond holders.

The State Department's silence was clearly indicated as a momentary lull in the international economic battle being waged as a result of the German moratorium, pending receipt of official dispatches giving information on Germany's latest action.

Administration officials made no secret of a belief that the German government's financial maneuvering would result in a new tartly worded note from Hull, or other definite action.

Equal Treatment Demanded.

The American Government's position set forth and reiterated by Hull in three strongly worded notes to Germany, and supplemented by a series of representations by Ambassador William E. Dodd, is that American holders of Dawes and Young bonds must receive treatment equal to that accorded nationals of any other nation.

The United States consistently has refused to recognize the validity of agreements between Germany and Great Britain and under negotiation with France and other creditor Nations through which American bondholders would receive less favorable treatment.

Officials here said agreements between Germany and other Nations violated the Dawes bond contract and constituted an arbitrary change in the contractural arrangements. Germany's action, they said, was equivalent to tearing up contracts between the German Government and individual bond holders and substituting new agreements among the Nations involved.

Germany's latest moves in reaching a reported accord with France, and seizing funds earmarked for interest payments on bonds in the Reichbank, were considered here to be in direct opposition and defiance of the American representations and position.

Under the Franco-German agreement, holders of bonds in French franc denominations are assured of interest payments in return for France's guarantee to Germany of a favorable balance of trade amounting to $13,200,000 over and above the bond interest.

The conflict over funds in the Reichsbank resulted from Germany's failure to deposit in the world bank funds due July 15 to cover one-twelfth of the interest payments. Trustees of the Dawes loan, acting under authority granted them in the annex of the loan treaty, then instructed the Reichbank to hold all pledged revenues.

The revenues ordered held constituted customs collections and taxes on tobacco, beer, sugar and the spirits monopoly, pledged as collateral security under the Dawes contract. They average between 40 and 50 times the 4,220,000 marks required monthly for the Dawes bonds interest.

The German government, in taking retaliatory measures, asserted it had not defaulted but had simply suspended transfers of the payments. The marks necessary to cover the interest have been deposited, the government asserted, but under the moratorium could not be transferred outsideGermany.

Rotary Leaders Hear Dr. Swope

Frederick, Md., July 18 (Spl.).—Dr. Chester D. Swope, president of the Washington Rotary Club, was the principal speaker at an intercity meeting and dinner of representatives of 20 clubs of the Thirty-fourth District, Rotary International, in the ballroom of the Francis Scott Key Hotel here tonight. He spoke on the principles of Rotary.

Other speakers included J. Milton Patterson, Cumberland, recently elected governor of the Thirty-fourth District, and Paul I. Payne, president of the Frederick club. This afternoon an assembly of presidents and secretaries of the clubs was held. Mr. Patterson outlined plans for the ensuing year.

About 170 members attended the dinner. The club presidents attending were: Dr. J. Newton Gilbert, Annapolis; Eugene Zimmerman, Glen Burnie; Allee Horine, Brunswick; Thomas Perry, Bethesda; Howard O'Neil, Bel Air; Buchan Wilson, Catonsville; J. P. Seaton, Chambersburg; Robert Schenkel, Greencastle; John Sumpter, Hagerstown; Harry Crouse, Littlestown; Frank Town, Martinsburg; James Varden, Mercersburg; Carl Naugle, Shippensburg; Daniel Brookes, Towson; Roland E. Long, Waynesboro; Chester Swope, Washington; John Bennett, Westminster; William Schneiderth, Baltimore; Louis Brown, Ellicott City; Paul I. Payne, Frederick, and N. B. Schurman, Gettysburg.

"Acrobatic" Drivers Are Fined $10 Each

Westminster, Md., July 18 (Spl.). Luther Clark, Finksburg, and Woodrow Richardson, Owings Mills, were each fined $10 and costs last night when they were tried before Police Magistrate George E. Benson on charges of reckless driving.

According to State police, the charges resulted from an exhibition of "acrobatic" driving along the Westminster-Baltimore highway.

Cumberland Man Fined After Card Game Raid

Cumberland, Md., July 18 (Spl.). A man who gave his name as William Robertson, arrested Sunday by police who raided a card game on North Mechanic street, was fined $20. Three other players were dismissed.

Robertson was charged with maintaining a gambling table. During April term of circuit court he was fined for gambling.

Culbertson on Bridge

A Paying Sacrifice.

The ideal hand for the Declarer to play at Contract Bridge is one sprinkled with enough honors to stop the run of adverse suits and containing length, not only in the trump suit, sufficient to stand repeated forces, but another long side suit in addition. When a player is fortunate enough to be favored with such distribution, he can make bids that otherwise would appear insane because Contract has this in common with war: sooner or later the sheer weight of mere numbers will destroy the superior strength of the honor cards. It is for this reason, among others, that freak hands such as the one illustrated below defy successful analysis, except upon the basis of seeing all the hands. For myself, I admit a fondness for diamond suits of seven or more cards in length. I must also confess, however, that on more than one occasion such hands have proved my undoing. For instance, during the Lenz-Culbertson match of 1932 I twice took penalties of 900, lured on by the long string of diamonds fairly well sprinkled with honors.

In today's hand, however, in which North was favored with a most unusual freak in the way of distribution, there is no story of disaster, simply a mild penalty, and that suffered only by reason of the fact that his partner's hand contained no entries.

East, Dealer.
Both sides vulnerable.

The bidding:

East	South	West	North
1♡	Pass	2♡	3◇
4♣	Pass	4♡	5◇
Dbl.	Pass	Pass	Pass

I shall not comment in detail on the bidding except to say that North did not take a very great chance, even with a constantly passing partner. His hand, weak as it was in honors, was very powerful distributionally, and the fact that neither opponent had bid spades suggested that his silent partner might have at least some length in that suit. The reason that North, in this case, failed to show his spade suit at the range of four and preferred instead to bid five diamonds for a sacrifice, was that he knew that with two void suits in his hand, both of which had been bid by an adversary, he could not stand the repeated Forces. His choice was a wise one, as to attempt to play this hand in spades would have resulted in disaster. East's decision to double hearts rather than to continue was probably wise, although by very careful play five hearts might be made. Despite the four trumps in the South hand East could still stand one Force, and if he carefully guessed the club situation, would fulfill a contract of five.

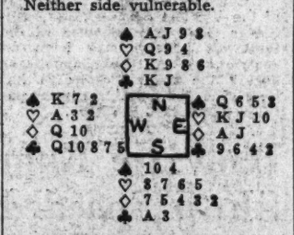
East opened a heart, and North ruffed. North taking into consideration the combined holding of eight spades, knew that it would be impossible to enter Dummy to take the diamond finesse. He was by no means certain that it would win in any event and decided that his best plan of playing the hand was to lay down the Ace of trumps. The King failed to drop, but now, knowing that only the high trump was out against the hand, he proceeded to lead spades and lost the Ace and King of Spades and the King of diamonds.

The hand, of course, could be made if North could find any means of entry to the Dummy for one lead through the singly guarded trump King.

Freak hands, as I have said, are laws unto themselves. They are welcomed by all players because they furnish relief from the drab monotony of such distributions as 4-3-3-3 and 4-4-4-3-2; and they often yield surprising results. Consider for a moment how a slight change would have permitted North to have fulfilled his contract. Had South held only the Queen and one spade, instead of three spades altogether, North would have had a very good play to fulfill his contract. It is true he would have required two favorable contingencies—an even division of the six outstanding spades and a favorable location of the diamond King—but there would have been some chance of success as against only a very slight risk.

Tomorrow's Hand.

South, Dealer.
Neither side vulnerable.



The hand will be discussed in tomorrow's article.

BLACKIE BEAR

By D. SAM COX

Blackie's Hide Still Needs Filling

Jay Bird stuck around Mr. Man's house pretty closely for a few days after Hee-Haw came back, and he was there early Monday morning when Mr. Man came out of his house to give Hee-Haw his breakfast. Blackie wanted to know all about what went on over there when Hee-Haw came back, and nobody but Jay Bird could sit around and see everything without being noticed by Mr. Man.

Hee-Haw had another mighty big breakfast and Mr. Man gave him some water in a bucket and brushed him off and treated him just like he was company. But there was going to be some work to do today, for Mr. Man had fixed it all up to take his wife and go to town with Uncle Joe and get a lot of things besides buying a donkey, and to take in things to sell, and so they must go. So after breakfast they loaded the wagon up with chickens and eggs and butter and all sorts of things to sell, and started off to town. They didn't say or even think a thing about Blackie Bear. Their minds were too full of the thought of having Hee-Haw back, and of saving all that money that they had expected to have to pay for another donkey and wagon.

And the dogs were so glad to see Hee-Haw that they just couldn't keep away from him, and when Mr. Man and his wife got in the wagon, both dogs ran off down the road as hard as they could tear just jumping up and yelping like bird dogs do when you start hunting with them. Mr. Man tried to make them come back, but they didn't pay a bit of attention to him and just ran on farther ahead.

"Well, let them go," said Mrs. Man. "Blackie Bear's hide is on somebody's barn door, and nobody else will bother any of our things in the day time." And so Mr. Man and his wife left a lot of good things behind that a dead bear couldn't bother! And they went on to town just as happy as any two children you ever saw on the way to a party, talking about the things they were going to buy with their donkey money.

Of course, Jay Bird heard all about Blackie's hide being nailed on somebody's barn door, and he flew right back to him and told him to be careful not to tear it down when he pulled it off to put back on his back to wear over to Mr. Man's house.

"Dabney's Grippe" Rife in Virginia

Six Counties Report 112 Cases to Richmond.

Richmond, Va., July 18 (Spl.).—An outbreak of the illness known many years ago as "Dabney's grippe" has been reported in several Virginia counties and appears to have reached epidemic proportions, it was announced today from the office of Dr. G. F. McGinness, epidemologist of the State health department.

For the week closing Saturday, 112 cases of the disease in at least six counties were listed. Counties whose practicing physicians have made reports of the illness are: Amelia, Chesterfield, Bedford, Nottoway, New Kent and Spotsylvania.

Dr. McGinness recalled that it was Dr. W. C. Dabney, of the University of Virginia, who in 1888 wrote a paper describing the disease which in that year was epidemic at the university.

Freight Rate Fight Opens Before I.C.C.

Cities Near Bristol, Va., Interested in Case.

Bristol, Va., July 18 (Spl.).—Hearing of the East Tennessee Border Traffic Association case, which seems to obtain lower freight rates for several of Bristol's neighboring cities, is under way this week at Johnson City, Tenn.

Examiner C. W. Griffith, of the Interstate Commerce Commission, opened the hearing at Johnson City Monday. Milton P. Bauman, attorney for the traffic association, which represents various interests of Johnson City, Elizabethton, Bemberg, Piney Flats, Bluff City and Watauga, testified.

Only testimony of complainants will be taken at the present sessions, expected to continue through tomorrow. Evidence of the other side will be heard in Washington August 6.

Wheat Yield Exceeds 46 Bushels an Acre

Luray, Va., July 17 (Spl.).—A. J. Yowell, one of the leading farmers in Page County, has perhaps the heaviest wheat yield in the Shenandoah Valley. His Hawksbill Valley farm has produced an average yield of 46¼ bushels to the acre.

Another farmer of this county, S. H. Modeslet, attributes his heavy wheat yield to the use of limestone dust, which he sowed on his lands last year before putting his wheat in the ground. His yield is 46 bushels to the acre.

Blackwood Sees Aid Demonstration

Blacksburg, Va., July 18 (Spl.). A demonstration by members of the Roanoke Life Saving and First Aid Crew was given here last night in connection with the regional meeting of the American Red Cross at Hotel William Preston. The meeting was called by John L. Teets, field representative, in the interest of the Red Cross plan to establish first-aid stations along the highways.

A talk on what the Red Cross has meant to the country was made by A. W. Reynolds, chairman of the life-saving group. He was assisted in the demonstration by Ralph Daniel, Jack Ferguson, Tommy Dunn, George Beckner, C. P. Davis and C. I. Reynolds.

The Red Cross plans to train filling station and roadside inn attendants in life-saving methods and first-aid treatment.

Drunken Drivers Increase in Va. City

Fredericksburg, Va., July 18 (Spl.).—Arrests for drunkenness during the first six months of 1934 outnumbered similar arrests during the first half of 1933 by a ratio of more than 2 to 1, according to figures released by the police department.

A total of 215 persons were jailed on intoxication charges prior to July 1 of this year, while only 105 were arrested in the first six months of 1933.

Of the 215 cases in 1934, 15 were charged with driving while intoxicated, a charge of which eight were accused in the 1933 period.

Seven drunken driving arrests were made last month, the highest number on record for any one month. The figures released do not cover arrests made since the opening of the A. B. C. liquor dispensary here.

THE MEN'S STORE SECOND FLOOR

Madison Span Dedicated at Port Conway

1,000 Attend Ceremony; R. Walton Moore Chief Speaker.

Fredericksburg, Va., July 18 (Spl.). — Formally dedicated with ceremonies led by R. Walton Moore, Assistant Secretary of State, and State Senator Henry T. Wickham, the James Madison Memorial Bridge at Port Conway, Va., was opened today before 1,000 persons.

The new bridge spans the Rappahannock River between Port Royal and Port Conway, birthplace of former President James Madison. It connects highways of the Northern Neck with the road system in the main body of Virginia.

Misses Mary Hooker and Harriett Ann Cutts, the latter a direct descendant of Madison, began the dedication ceremonies by cutting the ribbon stretched across the center of the bridge. As the ribbon parted, the little girls led Moore across the structure to meet Senator Wickham, escorted by Miss Carol Blanton and young James Madison Cutts 4th. The meeting of the two leading participants, representing the newly opened route between the opposite shores, completed ceremonies of the opening.

Bridge is Accepted.

Dedication addresses commemorating the event took place at Belle Grove Farm, Madison's birthplace and present property of Thomas N. Hooker. Senator Wickham officially presented the bridge on behalf of Gov. Peery, whose illness prevented his attendance. Acceptance was voiced by H. G. Shirley, State highway commissioner.

The principal speaker of the program was Mr. Moore, who stressed the importance of the bridge as a step in further unifying Virginia's highways and as a means of more closely uniting the Northern Neck with the main portion of the State.

Other addresses were made by the Rev. Robert F. Jett, Bishop of southwest Virginia, who was born at Belle Grove; Maj. Gen. Harry Lee, of the Quantico Marine Post, and Representative Schuyler Otis Bland.

Judge Embrey Chairman.

Officials in charge of the bridge opening were Judge Alvin T. Embrey, general chairman; J. C. Grigsby, in charge of grounds and arrangements; J. A. Billingsley and W. T. Hicks, refreshments; W. S. Kearn, traffic; Thomas Embrey, decoration, and L. R. Davis, publicity.

The bridge is constructed of steel and concrete, is 1,483 feet long, and 26 feet wide. It is mounted on a single conerete pier which will leave ample room for navigation, according to highway officials. The bridge was erected by J. S. Bowers from plans drawn by State highway engineers. It will be used as a toll bridge until the original cost of $140,000 is repaid.

Opening of the bridge provides easy access to the Belle Grove farm, Madison's birthplace and once the home of his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Francis Conway. Francis' daughter, Eleanor, married James Madison, sr., who later became the father of the former President. The estate is owned by Mr. and Mrs. Thomas N. Hooker, who were official hosts at today's celebration.

4 Crowes Held In Liquor Raid

Lonaconing Man's Bond Set at $1,000; Mother's and Sisters', $500.

Cumberland, Md., July 18 (Spl.). Arraigned before United States Commissioner Taylor Morrison, four members of the family of Clarence Crowe, of Lonaconing, were held for action of the September term of Federal Court, in connection with a still raid.

Marshall Crowe, youngest son, was committed to the county jail in default of $1,000 bond, while his mother, Mrs. Sarah Crowe, and daughters, Belle and Blanche Crowe, were held under $500 bond each. William Crowe was freed.

Federal authorities, at the preliminary hearing, said that Marshall Crowe admitted owning the still found at his father's home and was the only one who sold whisky in the family. The Federal officers stated that Blanche Crowe flourished a gun when they entered the home Saturday, while Belle Crowe slapped one of the officers. On two previous occasions, officers said, when they raided the Crowe home Blanche flourished a revolver. Both girls said they were only trying to scare the officers.

The Crowes are charged with having an unlicensed still, sale of illicit whisky, and assault upon Federal officers while executing their duties.

Joseph P. Inskeep, of Barton, arrested Saturday, waived a preliminary hearing before Commissioner Morrison and was held under $500 bond. He was charged with sale and possession. He also faces a State charge for sale and possession, officers said.

Crash Kills Youth Near Sharptown

Three Others Hurt as Car Leaves Road.

Salisbury, Md., July 18 (Spl.).—Harold Jones, 16, was killed and three injured when a car operated by Alton Layton left the highway on a sharp curve 3 miles west of Sharptown and struck a telephone pole Monday night.

Layton, the driver, was severely cut, Lawrence B. Rowe suffered a broken arm and Charles Donivan a possible skull fracture.

All are residents of Bridgeville, Del., and were brought to the Peninsula General Hospital here. The accident occurred in Dorchester County, where the death was declared to have been accidental.

James Madison Memorial Bridge Dedicated in Virginia

Norfolk Bank Teller Admits $2,500 Theft

Attorneys Ask Leniency So Defendant Can Repay Loss.

Norfolk, Va., July 18 (Spl.).—Orville B. Wilson, 28, was $2,500 short in his accounts as teller at the Merchants and Mechanics Savings Bank. For a time he contemplated self-destruction.

"But I decided that that was a cowardly way out," Wilson told Judge William H. Sargeant in Corporation Court yesterday afternoon as he pleaded guilty to the charge of embezzlement.

In an attempt to protect the bonding company, Wilson three years ago took out an insurance policy on his life, naming the bank as beneficiary. If given a chance, Defense Attorneys Gerould Rumble and Walter Hoffman told the court in urging a suspended sentence for their client, Wilson will make good every cent of the bank's money he used.

The shortage, Wilson told the court was spent on regular living expenses between January, 1933, and May, 1934. The prosecution urged a three-year sentence in the State Penitentiary. Such a sentence, Defense Attorney Hoffman argued, would be manifestly unfair, in that at least one local man, considerably older than Wilson, who embezzled "nine times the amount this man took," escaped in another court with a much lighter sentence than three years.

Judge Sargeant took the matter under advisement and will announce the sentence later.

Md. Candidates To Visit Picnic At Hagerstown

Hagerstown, Md., July 18 (Spl.). The annual outing of the Democratic Organization Club of Washington County tomorrow will be the mecca for a number of candidates and prominent Democrats.

Attorney General William P. Lane announced today that acceptances had been received from George L. Radcliffe, candidate for the U. S. Senate; Senator Millard Tydings, William Curran, Howard Bruce, who has been mentioned as a possible Senate candidate; Robert Ennis, E. Brooke Lee, William C. Walsh, Representative David J. Lewis, Secretary of State David C. Winebrenner, and Herbert O'Conor, seeking the nomination for attorney general.

Beer and sandwiches will be served. All candidates will be introduced, but long speeches will be tabooed.

It will be Mr. Radcliffe's first visit to this section of the State since he announced himself for the Senate after withdrawing from the gubernatorial race.

College President To Address Girls

Dr. Bessie E. Randolph on Virginia Program.

Blacksburg, Va., July 18 (Spl.).—Dr. Bessie Carter Randolph, president of Hollins College, will speak on "World Citizenship" at the girls' conference, July 27, as part of the sixteenth annual 4-H boys' and girls' State short course at Virginia Tech.

Dr. M. A. Dawber, Philadelphia, will speak July 26 on "Creative Citizenship," and Dr. William E. Garnett, rural socioligist at V. P. I., will speak on "Problems Virginia Citizens Must Face." Paul Derring, V. P. I., will speak July 28, and Dr. M'Ledge Moffett, Radford State Teachers College,, will speak July 24.

Approximately 800 boys and girls are expected to arrive at Virginia Tech Monday to take part in the sixteenth annual short course.

Jury Frees Automobile Driver.

Romney, W. Va., July 18 (Spl.). Esten M. Wood was acquitted by a jury here for the fatal injury of Arthur Whitacre on Christmas Day, 1933, in a automobile accident near Capon Bridge, this county.

School as Character Builder Scouted by Hopkins Savant

Elementary Training Has No Apparent Effect, Says Lichtenstein.

Baltimore, July 18 (Spl.).—Contrary to the general belief, the so-called "character training" given pupils in elementary schools has no appreciable effect upon the personalities of the pupils, it was declared today by Dr. Arthur Lichtenstein, instructor in education at the Johns Hopkins University.

Dr. Lichtenstein, in a report issued today, said he had arrived at that conclusion after a 12-month study in which Baltimore school children were subjects. More than 900 boys and girls of primary school age proved, he said, that the idea "that school training influences character is a myth."

"When a child reaches high school and university age, the class room may have some influence in determining his beliefs and actions, but never before," Dr. Lichtenstein said. "My studies, and they have been exhaustive, have proved to me conclusively that the idea that the school influences the character development of the child is a myth."

Shore Trucks Turned Back

Drivers Lacking Proration Agreement Halted at Md.-Va. Line.

Salisbury, Md., July 18 (Spl.).—State and Federal inspectors yesterday denied permission to ten truckloads of white potatoes to cross the Maryland-Virginia border because the drivers did not possess certificates showing the shipments to be within the proration agreement effective on the Eastern Shore of the two States.

A cordon of inspectors surrounds the white potato producing area to prevent "bootlegging" of shipments in violation of the agreement.

Trucks are stopped at the State boundaries by the inspectors and a Federal assessment of half a cent per barrel is levied on the cargo. All trainloads are checked at the shipping point. With the functioning this week of the Eastern Shore of Maryland and Virginia proration committee, 500 cars were allotted from Maryland's Eastern Shore and 2,999 from Virginia shore. Five hundred more cars were allotted from the Elizabeth City-Norfolk area.

The limitation of shipments is in an attempt to prevent further depression of the market, which today ranged from $1.10 to $1.25 per barrel, although the Government continues to pay $1.50 in accordance with its agreement to lift 2,000 carloads from the Carolina-Virginia-Maryland producing area.

Pocomoke City, Md., July 18 (Spl.). — Despite the marketing agreement which became effective Monday and the Maryland Emergency Relief Association's promise to buy 60 cars, potatoes sold here yesterday for only 95 cents a barrel, 60 cents below production cost.

Tomatoes are reported to be "holding their own" at 20 cents to 30 cents per five-eights bushel basket, which will permit the farmer to pay expenses.

Lima beans and cucumbers are selling at $2.75 to $3.00 per basket for the beans and 50 cents to $1 for the cucumbers. There were few cucumbers and lima beans planted, and all yields are small.

Improvements Urged For Bristol Airport

Bristol, Va., July 18 (Spl.).—Carrying letters citing improvements needed at the Bristol Airport, John Gemmell, of the chamber of commerce, left yesterday for Richmond and Washington in the interest of the field. He will confer with A. H. Pettigrew, State airport engineer at Richmond, and with Commerce, Postoffice and FERA officials in Washington.

Hugh L. Smith, of Atlanta, official of American Airlines, Inc., here Sunday and Monday, outlined for Bristol representatives his company's objections to the local field. It is figured that $5,000 would place the airport in good condition.

Tuberculosis Clinic Will Be Held Today

Fredericksburg, Va., July 18 (Spl.).—Possible tuberculosis sufferers will be examined at a field clinic tomorrow at King George Courthouse, near here, by specialists from the State Department of Public Health.

The clinic is sponsored by the King George County Board of Health, and will be assisted by Miss Elsie K. Graham, county field nurse.

ABC Ignores Anti-Rum Plea

Virginia Board Pushing Work on Waynesboro Dispensary.

Waynesboro, Va., July 18 (Spl.).—Despite determined opposition of the Waynesboro Ministerial Association and the W. C. T. U. unit here, work is proceeding rapidly at the 137 Wayne avenue storeroom, selected last week by George F. Snead, of the real estate division of the A. B. C. Board, for a liquor dispensary.

The board at Richmond has received notice of the objections to a liquor store from these organizations, but has taken no action.

The ministerial association, which includes pastors of all Protestant churches in this community, stated in its formal protest: "In view of the fact that there never has been such a store or saloon in Waynesboro, we deplore this backard step in the moral structure of the city." The Rev. R. W. Cousar, First Presbyterian Church, signed the protest as president of the association.

The W. C. T. U., which has been active in Augusta County politics in recent years, voiced the opinion that "sale of intoxicants would play havoc with young people and cause an increase in the number of automobile accidents. Mrs. M. B. Cox, principal of Pleasant Hill School, was the signer of the W. C. T. U. protest.

Business interests here are favorable to an early opening of the store and an appeal was recently made to the A. B. C. Board to hasten the project.

Picnic to Be Held On Bull Run Site

Confederate Association to Meet Saturday.

Commemorating the first battle of Bull Run, the Manassas Battlefield Confederate Park Association will hold its annual basket picnic next Saturday at the Manassas-Bull Run battlefield on the spot where "Stonewall" Jackson won his nickname.

The principal morning speaker will be Charles H. Brough, former Governor of Arkansas and chairman of the District-Virginia boundary commission, who will discuss "The Gory of the Old South and the Greatness of the New." The afternoon speaker will be Col. Seymour Bullock, of South Bend, Ind.

State Senator John W. Rust, of Fairfax, president of the association, will introduce the speakers.

Mrs. Richardson Wins Marion Beauty Title

Marion, Va., July 18 (Spl.).—Mrs. James Richardson, jr., has been chosen "Miss Smyth County" in connection with a beauty contest held by Smyth County Post of the American Legion.

Mrs. Richardson was formerly Miss Doris Witt, of Roanoke. She is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. G. Witt, of Marion, and will participate in the State-wide Legion beauty contest at Lynchburg.

W. F. Ward Funeral To Be Held Tomorrow

Lower Marlboro, Md., July 18 (Spl.).—Funeral services for William F. Ward, 61, county commissioner for four years, will be held at his home at 10:30 a. m. Friday. He died last night. His widow survives.

Hollar Trial In Saum Killing Opens Today

State's Attorney to Ask First Degree Verdict at Hagerstown.

Hagerstown, Md., July 18 (Spl.). Allen Hollar, 45, former railroad worker, charged with the murder of George Saum, 22, because the latter took his daughter, Jane Hollar, 16-year-old high school student on a week-end trip to Washington, will go on trial tomorrow morning in Circut Court here.

State's Attorney Lloyd Harshman said he would ask for a first degree verdict. The prosecutor said that Hollar admitted shooting Saum, although no confession had been signed.

Carl Smith, neighbor of Saum, will be the prosecution's principal witness. He was the only one who witnessed the shooting, which took place as Saum was putting his car in the garage.

Hollar is charged in the indictment returned yesterday by the grand jury with the murder of Saum on the night of June 3, a few hours after Saum had been released from jail, where he was held pending an investigation into the disappearance of Hollar's daughter.

The Hollar girl, upon being returned from Washington by her father, corroborated Saum's story that she had asked the young married man to drive her to Washington to visit cousins, had returned with him here two days later and left the Saum car near her home. Fearing the wrath of her family for the escapade, she said she returned to Washington, where she was found by police in company with a man.

At a conference held with State's Attorney Harshman the night before the shooting, the prosecutor said Hollar told him he was satisfied that no charges be preferred against Saum and offered to go to the jail and shake hands with him.

Hollar told police after the shooting that the matter of Saum going away with his daughter preyed upon his mind.

Merit Certificates Sought by Papers

To Be Given at Virginia Press Meet Today.

Charlottesville, Va., July 18.—More than 30 weekly newspapers have been entered in the contest for the Rhame certificates, to be awarded at the opening session of the forty-sixth annual convention of the Virginia Press Association, starting here tomorrow. The certificates are given for excellence in make-up and press work.

Louis Spilman, publisher of the Waynesboro News-Virginian and president of the association, will open the meeting at 2 p. m., and Mayor F. W. Twyman will greet the editors and publishers. Responses will be made by J. A. Whitman, publisher of the Southwest Virginia Enterprise, of Wytheville.

Krol Must Stand Physician's Test

Judge Wants to See if He Can Appear in Court.

Winchester, Va., July 18 (Spl.).—Judge Philip Williams, presiding in corporation court, stated today that he would appoint a Chicago physician to examine Max Krol, former woolen company official here, convicted on embezzlement and now reported ill in Chicago, to determine if the convicted man could stand a trip to Winchester to appear in court.

At a hearing Monday, defense attorneys produced affidavits from Chiago physicians stating that Krol was critically ill and could not make the trip. The affidavits were presented in an effort to prevent the court from declaring Krol's $5,000 bond forfeited.

Krol, former treasurer and general selling agent of the defunct Arthur G. Jones Woolen Co. here, is under a six-year prison sentence.

Strong Virginia Fight Planned By Republicans

6 District Battles Loom; Conference Slated on July 28.

By C. B. Carr.

Winchester, Va., July 18.—The Republican party will put up a strong fight in the forthcoming November election for Congressional seats in six Virginia representative districts, it was learned today. The battle may be carried into three other districts.

Plans for the campaign are incomplete but before August leaders will have discussed complete plans.

From the office of H. B. McCormac, Winchester chairman of the Virginia Republican State Committee, came information today that two important meetings of Republican leaders will be held in Roanoke. The executive committee will meet at the Patrick Henry Hotel in the morning of July 28. The executive committee session is to be thrown open to the Republican public, with executive members being invited to bring district workers.

State Convention Issue.

In the afternoon the Republican State committee will meet. This meeting will decide if a State convention will be held this year. Important matters pertaining to party's plans and policies also will be considered.

Members of the State committee who will consider party plans and policies include H. B. McCormac, chairman; S. O. Crockett, vice chairman; Fred W. McWane, secretary-treasurer; W. T. Hopkins, Newport News, First District; L. C. Page, Norfolk, Second District; Callom B. Jones, Richmond, Third District; R. W. Branch, North Emporia, Fourth District; H. Prince Burnett, Independence, Fifth District; S. G. Profitt, Floyd, Sixth District; D. Wampler Earman, Harrisonburg, Seventh District; John B. Grayson, Warrenton, Eighth District; John G. Anderson, Bristol, Ninth District, and the following at large members: J. S. Adams, Gretna; Mrs. P. E. Page, Norfolk; C. M. Dozier, Richmond;; Charles A Hammer, Harrisonburg; J. W. McGaverock, Meadows; S. P. Powell, Fredericksburg; J. E. B. Smith, Christiansburg, and John Barton Phillips, Alexandria. Mrs. Murray Boocock, Keswick, and Joseph L. Crupper, Norfolk, members of the Republican National Committee of Virginia are expected to attend.

Policies Undecided.

Policies on which the Virginia Republicans will wage their fight this fall today appeared highly problematical.

Virginians will elect nine members of the House of Representatives and a nited States Senator this fall. Harry Flood Byrd, Winchester Democrat, junior Senator, is standing for reelection, being unopposed in his party. Who will come out of the Republican ranks to oppose Byrd is a matter which, if known, is guarded with secrecy.

What effect the apparent distaste of the Virginia Senators, Byrd and Carter Glass, toward some of the Roosevelt policies may have on declarations of the Republicans during the coming campaign has been discussed quietly in many political quarters this season.

Danville Rum Shop Speeded

A. B. C. Board May Open Dispensary Within Two Weeks.

Danville, July 18 (Spl.).—The State's Alcoholic Beverage Control Board may open a dispensary here within the next two weeks. The board, which left Danville alone pending an expression of her wishes in the local option election yesterday, is now planning to hasten action here.

The local field is viewed as a profitable one inasmuch as Danville has many North Carolina visitors. No policy has been declared by the Carolina authorities on the subject of car examination at the State line, 3 miles south of here.

The board will send representatives here within the next few days to examine sites for liquor stores, several being available.

Word came from South Boston today indicating a flourishing dispensary business there with no increase in public disorder. During the first five days of dispensary operation $2,447 business was done, with women showing no squeamishness in making purchases.

"Mail Vote Evil" Hit by Crawford

Norton, Va., July 18 (Spl.).—A fight against the "mail vote evil" in the Ninth District will be waged by Bruce Crawford, independent candidate for representative, the Norton editor said yesterday.

"I appeal to the voter to beware of the black satchel," Crawford said. "The mail vote is intolerably corrupt in Virginia. It should be an insult to the voter for a party worker to approach him for his vote by mail. Every voter should go to the polls, if it is possible to do so, to minimize the opportunity for this form of election debauchery. I expect to gather evidence of mail vote abuses and will demand a thorough investigation looking to prosecution and full publicity.

Crawford said that his opening speech will be delivered on Labor Day at Norton.

Chalmers Hughes Buried.

Keyser, W. Va., July 18 (Spl.).—Funeral services for Chalmers Hughes, 63, who died Saturday in Seattle, Wash., were conducted today at his late residence in Minneapolis, Minn., relatives here have been advised. He was a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. John Hughes, pioneer residents of this place.

Pastor Tells Fish Story; Three Casts Land Seven Bass

Richmond, Va., July 18 (AP). The Rev. J. Manning Potts, pastor of Barton Heights Methodist Church, says he would rather preserve his reputation as a minister than as a fisherman, and so-o-o—it was with reluctance that he told today of catching seven bass with three casts.

Fishing in the Newport News Reservoir, the Rev. Mr. Potts said he cast a fly once and brought in two fish; his second attempt hooked two more and a third cast brought in three additional fish, all of them bass and each weighing from 1¼ to 2 pounds.

J. Kbra Pullen, of Richmond, a fishing companion, vouched for the accuracy of the story.

Drought Fear Increasing in West Maryland

Corn Crops Need Water; Areas Near Baltimore Also Drying Up.

Baltimore, July 18 (Spl.).—With another heat wave from the West reported heading for Maryland, drought conditions in the State are reported to be assuming serious proportions, particularly in western Maryland.

Corn crops in portions of several counties in the western section of the State were said to be suffering from lack of water. Lawns and pastures in several areas nearer to Baltimore were drying up, and at the Loch Raven Dam, where the city water supply is impounded, no water was flowing over the face of the barrier.

On the upper Eastern Shore and portions of Delaware, the rainfall was said to be deficient, according to the weekly crop bulletin of the Weather Bureau here.

Heat and drought were said to have caused premature ripening in some sections.

Records of the Weather Bureau show the rainfall during July is about 2 inches below normal, and with no rain in sight the situation was said to be threatening.

Bogus Money Count Holds 3

W. Va. Police Say Gang Put Thousands of Bad Coins Into Circulation.

Webster Springs, W. Va., July 18 (Spl.).—State police believe they have run down a counterfeit gang, which has operated in the State for the last three years.

Dewey Hamrick, 34, Randolph County miner in jail here, is reported to have confessed he is one of the leaders. Jennings Morris, of Erbacon, and Luther Rose, arrested at Huntington, are in the Sutton Jail as suspects.

Hamrick, when arrested near Monterville, had several pieces of counterfeit money in his possession, officers said. Taken before U. S. Commissioner J. E. Baughman, of Sutton, he failed to give bond of $2,500 for Federal Court at Charleston.

Thousands of dollars of bogus quarter and half dollar pieces have been distributed in Clarksburg, Weston, Philippi, Sutton and elsewhere in the State by the ring, State troopers say.

Edwards to Speak At Church Service

Reformed Group Meets at Pen-Mar July 26.

Dr. Boyd Edwards, headmaster of Mercersburg Academy, Mercersburg, Pa., will be the speaker at the forty-fifth annual reunion of Reformed Churches at Pen-Mar Thursday, July 26.

Members of the Evangelical Synod will also be present, as this is the first assembly of church adherents since the union of the two denominations into the Evangelical and Reformed Churches.

The exercises, beginning at 2 p. m., will be attended by church members from Pennsylvania, Maryland, Virginia, West Virginia and the District. A musical program by the Community Men's Choir of Waynesboro, Pa., is planned.

Gobbler Setting On Guinea Eggs

Luray, Va., July 18 (Spl.).—Elder H. F. Sours, a minister of the Brethren Church of this county, has a turkey gobbler on his farm, 4 miles south of Luray, that is undertaking to hatch out a brood of guineas.

Elder Sours does not know whether the gobbler killed the guinea that laid 24 eggs in her nest or whether he took possession of the eggs after the mother guinea had been killed by foxes or hawks.

The gobbler each day is setting on the guinea eggs and is ready to put up a fight if any one comes around where he has charge of the eggs. The gobbler has already been setting on the eggs for three weeks and it will only be one more week until the little guineas begin to kick their way out of the shells.

Farm Service Expanded.

Fredericksburg, Va., July 18 (Spl.).—Assistance in farm demonstration work of the county agent's office will be given Spotsylvania County by the addition of R. B. Fisher, of the extension division of the Virginia Polytechnic Institute. Fisher will work part time in cooperation with County Agent J. Linthicum.

Goldsborough Gets Support Of Col. Hill

Former Congressman Says He "Is Best Qualified Republican."

Baltimore, July 18 (Spl.).—Terming United States Senator Phillips Lee Goldsborough "the best qualified man in the Republican party to be the Governor of Maryland," Col. John Philip Hill, former Representative, today swung his support behind the Goldsborough candidacy.

In so doing, Col. Hill abandoned his own gubernatorial aspirations. Early this year he announced he was planning to become a candidate if Senator Goldsborough did not enter the race, and his action in rallying to the support of the Senator had been expected.

The action of Col. Hill is considered to strengthen greatly the Goldsborough candidacy. Hill, a lawyer and a veteran of the World War, is a pioneer wet crusader and his famous "act of God" wine and cider case in the Federal court here is still remembered.

In indorsing the candidacy of Senator Goldsborough, Hill said:

"I am delighted that Senator Goldsborough will be a candidate for the Republican nomination for Governor. I regard him as the best qualified man in the Republican party to be the Chief Magistrate of the State of Maryland.

"I shall not, of course, be a candidate for the Republican nomination for Governor myself, although there is nothing I would enjoy more than an opportunity to study the government of Maryland.

"I hope the other candidates for the Republican nomination for Governor will withdraw in favor of Senator Goldsborough."

There were no indications as yet that any of the other four Republican candidates for the Governorship—H. Webster Smith, Harry W. Nice, Harry T. Phoebus, and Mayor Walter Quenstedt, of Annapolis—would heed Col. Hill's admonition to withdraw from the race and leave the field clear for Senator Goldsborough.

All have announced they are in the race to stay, and several of them are pushing their campaign vigorously.

A meeting of Republican leaders was held here today to discuss the question of narrowing down the field. Among those said to have attended the session are Mr. Phoebus, former Mayor William F. Broening, of Baltimore; George R. Norris, Baltimore County G. O. P. leader, and several Western Maryland County leaders.

Carnival Set At Mount Airy

Firemen's Fete Will Open Monday to Support Association.

Mount Airy, Md., July 18 (Spl.). Plans have been completed for the ninth annual carnival of the Mount Airy Volunteer Firemen's Association, opening at Wildwood Park here Monday and continuing throughout the week. The carnival is the main source of revenue of the volunteer firemen's organization here.

In addition to the usual carnival attractions, the week's events include a ham and chicken supper Thursday evening, preceded by a parade of decorated automobiles and visiting fire apparatus, which will be Mount Airy's contribution in keeping with the tercentenary celebration throughout the State this year.

Committees in charge of the carnival are:

Grounds and advisory—Ruben P. Burdette, chairman; C. C. Riddlemoser, H. S. Beck, William H. Gillis, Henry G. Hood.

Automobile—A. Ralph Yingling, chairman; J. R. Boone, Horace Mosley, Paul Beall, Robert K. Myers.

Refreshments—Lindsay L. Browning, chairman; Carlos Warfield, Wilson Etzler, Walter Hood, Harry Watkins, Keith Byers, Walter Albaugh.

Treasurer—A. Dewey Zimmerman.

Novelty booth—Mrs. Carlos Warfield.

Parade—Norman Etzler, chairman; Mrs. Roscoe Thompson, Melvin E. Watkins.

Dance—Walter Spurrier Norwood.

Bus Plan Is Urged For Charlottesville

Trolley Franchise Would Be Surrendered.

Charlottesville, Va., July 18 (Spl.). A rearrangement of transportation service with street cars supplanted here by buses would be welcomed by the Virginia Public Service Co., the city council was told last night by Fred Watson, banker, and a member of the utility's board of directors.

Mayor Fred W. Twyman was authorized to appoint a committee from council to look into the advisability "of replacing street cars with buses."

The franchise under which the street cars are operated here is held by a subsidiary of the Virginia Public Service Co. and will remain in in force until 1944. Mr. Watson indicated that the utility would agree to surrender the franchise to any one willing to operate buses with a 5-cent fare. The company has reported a loss in operation of the street cars for several years, and would not wish to operate the buses, Mr. Watson reported.

Potatoes Given to Needy.

Luray, Va., July 18 (Spl.).—Miss Dorothy Smith, local head of the FERA, says that she has only 10,000 pounds left of the 30,000 pounds of potatoes that came to this county a week ago for distribution among the needy.

All D. C. Revue Scheduled Here Week of Aug. 1

Auditions Begin July 25; Notables in Our Midst; Theater Chat.

(Reprinted from Yesterday's Last Edition.)

By Nelson B. Bell.

It will be as welcome news to Washington's aspirants to stage careers that the annual "All-Washington Revue," sponsored by the Loew interests, will be presented at Loew's Fox Theater the week beginning Friday, August 10.

The definite announcement of the intention to stage the revue and the date of its presentation was made late yesterday by Carter Barron, recently elevated from the post of Loew's city manager for Washington to manager of Loew's Eastern Division.

This year's revue will be produced and directed by Gene Ford, whose personal supervision of last year's all-Washington production was in large measure responsible for the complete success of that undertaking. Mr. Ford is production chief at the famous Capitol Theater in New York. He will be accompanied to Washington by a corps of competent assistants to aid him in selecting and routining the numbers that will be included in what it is confidently expected will be the greatest local production in history.

An innovation is promised this year by Division Manager Barron in the engagement of several stellar theatrical personalities to appear as "guest stars" with the Washington cast.

Auditions Begin July 25.

Gene Ford and his staff will arrive in the Capital in time to hold the first auditions for the 1934 revue on Wednesday, July 25. The time and place of these auditions will be announced in due course.

It will be recalled that last season's all-Washington production enlisted the services of the veteran Brooke Johns, as master of ceremonies and star, and packed the Fox at every performance for a week. Many of the participants in that revue have gone on to greater fame both on the stage and over the air.

The wide renown that still attaches to last year's revue in itself is expected to act as an impetus that will impel an even greater number of hitherto unknown local artists to seek a place in the new production.

And speaking of production, it is the avowed purpose of both Mr. Barron and Mr. Ford to make the forthcoming revue considerably more lavish in the point of spectacular effect than last year's.

Those desirous of applying for auditions are urged to watch the daily press for specific details of where they will be held and the exact hours. That information will appear here as soon as it has been definitely determined.

The distinguished stars of stage, screen and radio, who drop in upon Washington for a week of personal appearances now and again, are not averse to a little quiet recreation in their off-hours, if any.

Last Friday night, for example, Vincent Lopez, celebrated orchestra leader of "Lopez speaking" fame on the stage at Loew's Fox this week, dropped up—and that is a good trick even if you can't do it—to the Arlington Roof and just happened to catch an hour when Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Seideman, the "Sidney" of orchestral note in Washington, also were present. The Henry Albert Band, a "Sidney" organization, quickly spotted Senor Lopez and Charley Bates, the pianist, immediately broke into "Nola," popularized by the Lopez facility at the keyboard.

When Leo Carillo, coheadlining the vaudeville bill at the Earle this week with Wesley Eddy, dropped into the Hi-Hat the other night, no one burst into any particular musical number in his honor, but was he besieged by autograph hunters! With characteristic good nature, Senor Carillo signed everything from a tablecloth to a tooth pick—and had the time of his life doing it! He's like that.

And that's the way it goes when you're "up there" in those lights.

Others in Our Midst.

Not all of the performers of note are appearing in the theaters this week.

The budget of chatty items exclusively submitted to this ivory tower by the alert and helpful Miss Ruth Barnard bears witness that Hall and Salvador, dance team appearing on the Shoreham Terrace currently, last year appeared for 8 consecutive weeks in "Old Mexico," at the Century of Progress Exposition in Chicago, a thing of magnitude, which, like Niagara Falls, is still going on. Hall, the distaff half of the partnership, was formerly a ballet girl in Roxy's chorus in New York.

Al and Val Reno, the Terrace's brother act for the week now running, have just returned from a world tour that consumed 3½ years. They began the long trek by winning an audition that took them from New York to California, and then to Australia, under contract. The rest of trip followed naturally, one sleeper, or steamer, jump at a time. This is their second engagement since their return to the States. Their last abroad was at the Rex Theater in Warsaw, where they played for two months. From here they go to the Riviera Club, in New York, where Harry Richman is now playing.

Al and Val—and those sound like two good stage names to be true—are warm friends of those jovial lunatics, the Messrs. Olsen and Johnson, who, themselves, are soon to begin an engagement in Australia. This is a reminder to the Reno boys that when they opened in Australia they received a cablegram of encouragement from Olsen and Johnson, which was like a box of cake from mother, according to them.

And just to demonstrate how one thing leads to another, Olsen and Johnson have recently been visiting Olsen's mother and sister in Peru, Ind., prior to embarking for the Antipodes. Olsen, it seems, is another fellow Hoosier.

And so is Ruth Barnard, which is one of the contributory elements that makes a few meager jottings grow into long stretches of type like this!

It is a pleasure to report that Mrs. Lou Brown, "Shirley," and baby daughter, born day before yesterday at Sibley Hospital, continue to thrive, and that Papa Lou, in charge of advertising and publicity for the Loew theaters in Washington, also is now out of danger. It is expected that his chest will go down to normal and that he will be able to discharge his official duties with only a minimum of distraction within a fortnight.

For several days now, and for a considerable number more to come, Station WJSV, of the Columbia Broadcasting System, has been holding auditions as part of a National quest Columbia is conducting for a leading woman to play opposite Dick Powell, Warner Brothers' featured singing juvenile, in one of the outstanding radio productions on the 1934-35 schedule, "Hollywood Hotel," a full hour broadcast to be heard over the Columbia network covering the United States and Canada.

The girl whose singing and ability to play a dramatic part stand the test of all auditions will be sent to Hollywood to play opposite Powell, supported by an imposing cast of celebrities.

The important point, insofar as Washington is concerned, however, is that the winners of the local auditions, being conducted by WJSV—the station over which we recently bored both our listeners for several months with a series of weekly ad libbings, concerning the theater and its people—will be given stage engagements at Warner Brothers' Earle Theater, under the sponsorship of General Manager John J. Payette and Production Manager Guy Wonders.

Costars Play Hookey to Enjoy Trick "Yatches"

Recently when Ruby Keeler and Dick Powell were engaged in making "Dames" on the Warner Brothers lot, they absented themselves from the set, and what do you think? Why, sure enough, they met 'way out here 10 or 12 feet from shore in these funny looking water craft, heavily emblazoned with their respective names! It's a small world after all, as the man said. At any rate, it is a good picture, highly appropriate to the vacation season, or something.

Local Option.

Citizens of Takoma Park have asserted their right, granted by the liquor control act, to protest against the sale of alcoholic beverages in their community. Recognizing the desirability of local option in such matters, the District Commissioners have properly decided to advise the Alcoholic Beverage Control Board not to grant licenses for the sale of wines and hard liquor in this area.

The hearing out of which this decision grew brought forth the first emphatic public reaction to the liquor traffic since the local prohibition law was repealed. Sentiment against the sale of liquor within the Takoma neighborhood was pronounced. Takoma, Md., has already voted itself dry. No doubt many citizens who helped to uproot abuses under the eighteenth amendment are now working valiantly to protect their local communities from the evils which may be attendant upon repeal. In so doing they deserve all reasonable support from Government agencies.

It would be impracticable, of course, to attempt to create bone dry areas within the District. But wherever the sale of liquor is regarded as a nuisance by a majority of the families in a residential community, their right to prevent such sales through appeal to local authorities must be rigorously preserved. Denial of local option might easily prove more intolerable than prohibition.

Okeh With Farley.

Tammany Hall's selection of James J. Dooling as its new leader was a cold-blooded business proposition—nothing more nor less. John F. Curry got for his candidate, James J. Walker, the greatest majority in the history of the Hall. But his stubbornness in nominating Mayor O'Brien to succeed himself resulted in complete defeat and a shattering of the organization's power.

Deprived of control of the city, at outs with the Administration because it had opposed the nomination of Mr. Roosevelt, Tammany has been witnessing a stoppage of its life-blood, patronage and the contributions that come from the faithful in hope or appreciation of reward. Nothing was more natural in the circumstances than that the members of the executive committee should "get right" with Postmaster General Farley. This they have done, as evidenced by Mr. Dooling's paean of praise for "the splendid policies of President Roosevelt."

Nobody familiar with Tammany's history, or the circumstances of Mr. Dooling's election, unless he were an incurable romanticist, would expect to find any symptom of reform in the change that has been made. The old army, seeking the same spoils, has chosen a younger and more refined general than is its wont. There may be some change of strategy and tactics. That does not imply any change of objective.

Haphazard Housing Plans.

Commissioner Allen's plan for construction of low-cost housing units with relief funds is still in the embryonic stage. In fact, it appears that the sponsors of this venture have not yet formulated a clear objective. Obviously the project must remain indefinite and obscure so long as the objective is undefined.

The effect of Mr. Allen's recent announcement, which has now been supplemented by the Federal Relief Administration, is, however, to intensify confusion over the low-cost housing program in Washington. Two agencies are already authorized to develop residential projects here. The Housing Division of the PWA is attempting to acquire sites for at least two major low-cost housing developments. It has earmarked $4,300,000 for local improvements of this kind. Another agency to be appointed by the President under the Capper-Norton Act will soon be at work, with $500,000 to spend, on the problem of replacing insanitary and unsightly alley dwellings.

The social importance of this work can scarcely be overemphasized. Moreover, these improvements should give work to a considerable number of unemployed. Yet the procedure followed to achieve these desirable ends appears haphazard and clumsy. It is almost impossible for three separate and uncoordinated agencies to undertake the same job without wasting effort and money.

Both the PWA projects and the alley clearance program have definite objectives. They are designed to improve living conditions and create employment. But when the FERA enters this field it is going beyond the work for which it was created—namely, emergency relief. Presumably the FERA wishes to build quarters where the unemployed can be housed at very moderate rental charges. But in view of the temporary status of this organization it is difficult to justify the expenditure of relief funds for that purpose.

Low-cost housing is a broad social problem, not one of emergency relief. Whatever funds are available for improvements of this sort ought to be spent under the direction of one unified agency which can plan for the community as a whole. Overlapping development of uncoordinated projects might easily bring the entire program into disrepute.

The Tuberculosis Hospital.

Secretary Ickes' attitude toward the selection of a site for the proposed District tuberculosis hospital is difficult to understand. He is not satisfied with the Glendale site chosen by the District Commissioners. Yet the only specific objection he seems to hold against Glendale is its relatively low elevation.

Some one might well remind Secretary Ickes that most of the world's famous tuberculosis sanitariums are at sea level. This is true of the noted health resorts on the Riviera, in Florida and in California. Physicians say that sunshine and a moderate climate are the important factors in treatment of this malady, with altitude a secondary consideration. High mountain atmosphere is doubtless stimulating in some cases, but no such sites are available in the vicinity of Washington.

Many factors enter into the location of a tuberculosis hospital. Surgery has become important in treatment of its patients. Proximity to the city, where competent physicians are always available, may be more important than a few hundred feet of elevation. Moreover, the District has already established a sanitarium for children at Glendale. It owns 216 acres of land there. Selection of another site for an adult tuberculosis hospital would mean double overhead, in addition to the expense of buying the new site.

Obviously, the new sanitarium should be located at Glendale unless there is some fundamental objection. Complaint has been made as to the water supply, but District officials report that Glendale has ample good water. This location was selected by experts fully aware of the requirements for successful treatment of the white plague. It is strange that Secretary Ickes should seek to override the opinion of these experts and high medical authorities of both the Federal and District governments.

Certainly this is not an issue for the PWA to decide. Location of the proposed hospital should be left to the Commissioners, who are responsible for the District's health facilities as a whole. In turn they doubtless will be guided by expert medical advice. If funds for the construction of this much-needed institution are available, it would be a pity to have the project held up because of any arbitrary ideas of the administrator regarding its location.

Savings Banks Withdraw.

Chairman Crowley, of the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation, has announced the withdrawal, effective July 1, of 167 mutual savings banks from the system. Of these banks 133, located in New York State, are estimated to hold $4,500,000,000 of deposits, while all other withdrawing savings banks control about $900,000,000.

A few relatively small nonmember State banks also announced an intention to withdraw for reasons not disclosed. However, there is no doubt about the motives which have induced withdrawal of the mutual savings banks from the Federal system of deposit guaranty. They are stronger outside the system than they would be if they remained within it.

The mutual savings banks of New York, for instance, operate under a system of State regulation which is exceptionally strict. They have a record of growth and achievement of which they are justly proud. They now have their own centralized organization for making advances to hard-pressed institutions, and they are also in a position to invoke the 60-day withdrawal clause in case runs are threatened.

Even if a system of general deposit guaranty were thought to be desirable in case of commercial banks, savings banks should not be encouraged to join the system. The way to assure safety for depositors in these institutions lies in perfecting and strengthening State regulatory laws along the lines that have been followed in New York and a few other States.

It is undoubtedly an advantage from the point of view of the FDIC to bring within the system institutions controlling several billions of dollars of the people's savings. But it is not a source of strength to well-managed and well-regulated savings banks to participate in a Nation-wide system of deposit guaranty. On the contrary, such a system penalizes the well-managed institutions to safeguard depositors against the deficiencies of inferior managements operating under laws of varying degrees of laxity.

Planned Enthusiasm.

Reports from Moscow state that the industrial leaders of the Soviet government are enthusiastic over the fact that the output of the heavy industries for the first six months of the year is the greatest ever achieved. This information may or may not be cause for rejoicing. Judgment must be reserved until it is known whether other industries are able to utilize with profit the heavy machinery that has been turned out.

The practice of stating progress in terms of quantitative increases of specified products is an irritating characteristic of Russian trade reports. It must be admitted that Russia is not unique in showing this predilection for measuring improvement in these uninformative ways. However, it is also true that quantity figures are not so good a test for Russia as they are for countries without a system of planned economy. Obviously, if the Russians resolve to devote a vast amount of labor and capital to speeding up a certain industry, they can achieve results. The question that interests the student of economic conditions, however, is whether that particular speeding program fits into the general plans and actually enriches the nation.

Has the machine equipment been produced, for example, under conditions that do not involve too great expenditures in relation to returns? Has it been produced in amounts that meet the requirements of consuming industries? Or has it led to overcapacity in one branch of industry with shortages prevailing elsewhere? These are the significant questions that call for answer, and the vast mass of statistics poured out by official reporting agencies throw very little light on such issues.

It is a good deal more significant to learn that the 28 per cent increase in output of heavy machinery and of steel mills has been achieved with 10 per cent less labor than to hear that production records for the heavy industries were broken during the past six months.

The State Of The Nation.

Our sprightly contemporary, the New York Nation, is always entertaining, even when it confuses vehemence of language with clarity of thought. But unquestionably it is because the current number designs to take editorial notice of ourselves that we find this issue particularly stimulating.

Certain "noble language" printed in these columns a fortnight back has slightly exacerbated the Nation's editors. At that time, apropos of the disaster to posterity threatened by the discharge of Mr. John Donovan (late head of the NRA "trade union"), we ventured a few halting words on the theme of "Bargaining With The State."

Olympian wrath has now assailed us for pointing out that there can be no collective bargaining in Government bureaus, since administrative officials are themselves employes whose powers are—or should be—defined by law. For this, and cognate observations, we are solemnly charged by the Nation with having "resurrected theories of political sovereignty which, one would have imagined, died with Hobbes."

One might have imagined it, we are forced to admit. But it is scarcely conceivable that many more than one would have been as muddle-headed in this matter as are the Eminent Villardians. In sorrow, rather than reproach, we recommend that this little group of energumens forget the virtues of Communism for just one week. The interlude should then be used for intensive study on the political philosophy of Thomas Hobbes (1588-1679), and on the relationship of the State to trade unionism in a democracy.

Fortunately for the Nation in which we live, as well as for the one we are instructing, Hobbes' theories of political sovereignty did not die in 1679. Instead they lived on, to be incorporated to a very considerable extent in our own Constitution. For this English philosopher made a truly great contribution to the science of government. In arguing that the State must demand the unquestioning allegiance of its citizens, he clearly showed that sovereign power concentrated in an unchecked executive—which he called "Leviathan"—is irresponsible and destructive of human liberties. The independent legislature and the independent judiciary, as checks on executive dictatorship, are both foreshadowed in Hobbes' writings.

We do not hold it against the Nation that it is confused about Hobbes. Its editors frequently show that they lack both understanding of, and sympathy with, the political philosophy on which our Government is based. But it is a little surprising that a journal so enthusiastic over proletarian dictatorship is yet unable to distinguish between trade unionism as a privately-controlled organization, and trade unionism as a part of the machinery of government.

If, as the Nation seems to argue, trade unionism is to be regarded as an integral part of State machinery, then it follows that the present general strike in San Francisco is either treason or attempted revolution. To be consistent our contemporary would have to make this admission.

But something tells us it will not do so. Among the many delights of the Nation's editorial luncheons is the fact that there one may eat one's cake and have it, too.

Men And Beasts.

The hideous accident that brought death to the keeper who turned a hose on two grizzly bears in the Denver Zoo had a painful sequel. After the mangled victim had been removed, the bears were lured from hiding and shot. An accident of a similar nature occurred recently in England. In that case a man risked his life on a bet to recover a hat that had been thrown into a lion pit. He was killed and the lion paid with its life for the idocy of its victim.

Death dealt out to dangerous wild animals in the open may be necessary to self-preservation. Death has to be decreed, too, for animals that go mad, or unexpectedly develop a ferocity alien to their nature. But lions, grizzly bears and tigers are captured and imprisoned with the knowledge that they are, and always will be, dangerous to the human beings who approach them. When in alarm, surprise or terror, they respond in the way that is natural to them, the result is often tragedy.

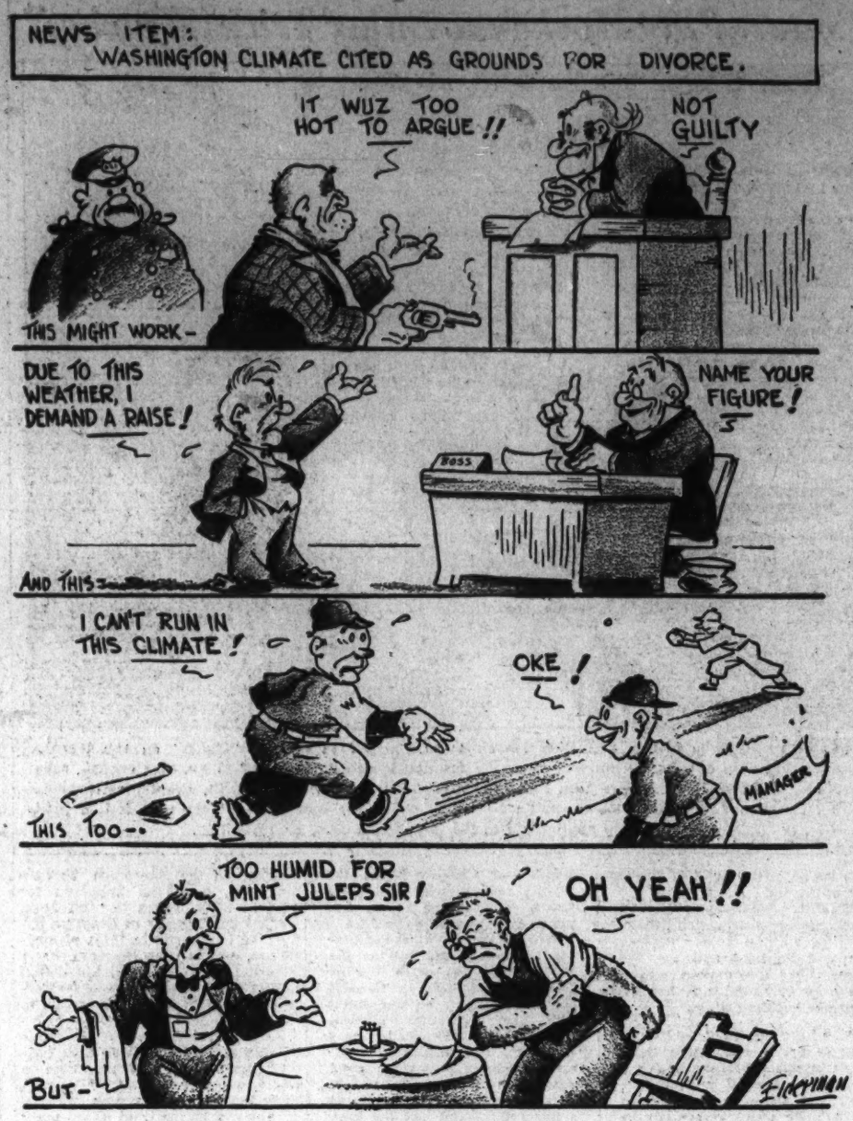
It still remains to question, however, whether any useful purpose is served by executing the beasts who are merely following the uncontrollable impulses of their natures.

One John Smith, of Ontario, who has set out to cross the ocean in a canvas-covered canoe, says he hates publicity. We could tell him of easier ways to avoid it.

A sports writer says there are 300 kinds of games played with balls. There're more than that many kinds played with golf balls alone.

A stylist says that in ten years everyone will laugh at present-day millinery. Some of us are ten years ahead of the times.

There are daughters who are such comforts to their mothers, and others who are beautiful.



There's a Limit.

Letters to the Editor

The Post welcomes letters from its readers. All communications must be signed with the writer's name and address. Upon publication initials or pen names will be used if requested. Letters are subject to condensation and in no case should they exceed 250 words.

Distorting a Speech.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I have just finished reading the report on the speech of Judge Cobb which was carried in The Post of July 16. I find this speech to be one of those unfortunate political appeals; loose, meaningless prattle.

The judge appeals first to the members of his own race on the low basis of selfishness and gross materialism. He says, for instance, "The colored men in America have everything to gain and nothing to lose" (in the New Deal). "Get into the present economic and political situation for all it is worth."

Being an old line "bread and butter" politician, Judge Cobb has not the vision to understand that that is the very thing that the New Deal is trying to combat. The Negro, like all Americans, must rather be taught to lose himself in the great effort to abolish selfish individualism in creating a social order where "the economic and political situations" will become mere mechanics, and not ends in themselves.

America has untold potentialities in its Negro youth. Now as never before they are craving a chance to enter into the affairs of the Nation simply as Americans. How long will the American people accept the "hat-in-the-hand" type and continue to reject potential creators? LEWIS K. McMILLAN.
Washington, July 16.

Ed. Note—In taking an excerpt from Judge Cobb's remarks the writer has done him an obvious injustice. Mr. Cobb was quoted as saying: "The colored man in America must * * * get into the present economic and political situation for all it is worth, and perform his part of the social contract. He will then be in equitable position to demand from the deal that which his contribution deserves." A gross distortion of meaning is achieved by lifting a single phrase of this from its context.

National Individualism.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: A nation, like an individual, has its certain keynote, its own source and foundation, and its growth will come from this foundation rather than from surrendering the national consciousness to self-appointed and officious minds already half submerged in the egoism of leadership.

Our America has a destiny she can not avoid or escape. Was it chance that placed upon our coins, "In God We Trust?" Was it idle choice that made our Nation's motto, "E Pluribus Unum" (The Many from One)?

Why do we find that enduring, inexplainable, age-old mystery, the Great Pyramid of Egypt, placed so conspicuously as one of our symbols?

Why was the American Eagle, the bird that lives in the heights and dares to gaze into the heart of the sun, chosen as our National emblem? Might it not symbolize the ultimate flight of the American consciousness into the clear sunlight of individual initiative and liberty?

In America today there is a struggle involving the moral issue of a nation's, as well as an individual's, right to freedom; and from the inner, divine nature of each true American sounds a trumpet-call that will eventually crumble the world's Jerico Walls of autocracy and domination.

In that tomorrow—so soon to be today—nations will no longer be an externalization of "Who shall be greatest," for the people of the nation will have outgrown their primitive desire to enslave and rule their brother. GLORIA DARE.
Falls Church, Va., July 14.

We Will.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Beginning with Sunday, July 22, will you please deliver The Sunday Post to me each week?

Being a stamp collector I am interested in reading the best in philatelic journalism, and we certainly find this in the Stamp Section of The Sunday Post. Therefore, I must take the paper regularly.

F. L. HIGGINS.
Washington, July 16.

Prehitlerism?

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In his Iowa statement Gen. Hugh Johnson "cracked down" on Hitler, saying that since the days of war nothing affected him so much as the execution of 77 Nazis for their rebellion against their Fuehrer.

Since the days of war about 3,000,000 Russians were executed by the terroristic machine of Communists. Our brave general is certainly well aware of it.

I wonder what it was for him? A heart balm?

RICHARD F. WOODBURY.
Washington, July 16.

"The Red Menace."

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In your issue of June 27, 1934, appeared an editorial entitled, "Wolf, Wolf!"

Your paper and others like yours will live to see the day when you will be ashamed at such editorials. When that day comes—and it is near—you will realize, without any one having to tell you, that your paper played the part of the "complete nincompoop."

Whether the individual responsible for this editorial knows it or not, there is a red network whose tentacles reach from the Atlantic to the Pacific and from Canada to the Gulf. The "red game," or if you prefer it, the "red menace," is here and in full swing and a lot of our own citizens are playing right into its hand. They are the "birds" used by the Reds who exhibit hydrophobia every time the Government proposes building a war vessel or putting two or more men in the Army.

I haven't as yet read the book which called forth your editorial, but I will wager that it is 100 per cent correct. If your paper were doing its duty, you would be performing a service along the same line and commending people for having the "guts" to stand up and speak or write the truth.

BART G. PIGMAN.
Washington, July 12.

We Had To Cut A Little Bit To Make This Friendly Letter Fit

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: No doubt this letter ought really be half a dozen short letters, especially should you care to use it for publication—which I doubt. However, if you do give the waif a home, please don't decapitate the poor dear!

First of all, I do want you to know that I think The Post is just about the best daily I've ever read.

I admire some of the war letters you have printed. However, why can't you, yourself, come out stronger against war? Why can't you tell the people how despicable wars are, how they do not really settle problems, any more than murder by private individuals? Especially teach these kids of today how inglorious is war. I disliked intensely your little articles written by Junior Post members for the Fourth of July Sunday edition. Why not show kids like those how disgusting war really is. Do not wait until imminent disaster forces you to sell yourself to a government determined to force its subjects into a life of crime. No nation can possibly call itself free when its citizens have not even the right to say whether or not they will murder and be murdered. Anyhow, this is the twentieth century A. D., a century in which we pride ourselves on our advanced civilization, and our departure from barbarism. Let's live up to our boasting.

Next, you deserve a rising vote of thanks for your superfine editorial, "The End of the Passage," and your quotation from Prof. Lasson. This ought to be all the warning our thinking Americans need, at least those most concerned with keeping present and future freedom.

Again, why be so hard on Bergdoll? One can rather tell from his face that he isn't, perhaps, the strongest kind of character, yet is it right to despise a man because he refuses to go out and murder merely to satisfy a gang of scheming politicians and munitions manufacturers? Surely you know, despite the T. R. Roosevelt sentiments, that had America taken her playthings and gone home, and stayed there, we would not have been drawn into the World War—and after the millions of lost lives, the millions of maimed men and women, the millions of wasted dollars, what has it benefited us? It has caused flagrant disregard for man-made and God-made laws—it has caused the present ghastly economic depression—and this is the glory of war! Bah!

Well, now I should like to applaud Mr. Robles for showing the country at large what a swell collection of jellyfish, toads, fishing worms, soup plates, mugwumps, spiders, and tadpoles run this country—and don't we have a prize collection of bulldogs, too? Honest, Mr. Editor—in the spring I had the sweetest, dearest little tadpole you ever saw. And just when he was all but a quarter inch within becoming a frog, the little thing died. Honest, I'm still just heartbroken; and then—just like that!—out came a picture of a man who looked just like that tadpole. So I thought, how perfectly heavenly, now I can frame it, and I'll still have a good likeness of my beloved t-p. And the paper got burned—before I could even remember the man's name, too. Anyhow, I still think your artist is to be congratulated.

I notice "Dad" has a letter regarding the birth situation as presented in this month's Pictorial Review—now there's another chance for your paper to do lasting good, by preaching birth control. "Dad" didn't say that the article was written about the Russian situation—Russia takes care of her mothers, while in this enlightened country all that is taken care of is pedigreed live stock and Dillinger. He also failed to mention that Russia, realizing the deaths caused by quacks and other ignorant persons, has established an abortion clinic. This is shocking in this country, yet the deaths from abortion in this land are included in the yearly statistics when adding figures of the dead from childbirth.

Yes, thank you—I'm through for this time, and thank you for publishing so friendly a paper that I feel able to chat with you once in awhile. A. J. S.

The Post Impressionist

In Three Sharps.

Postoffice, Thursday.

TROUBLES, it has been once or twice remarked, never arrive singly. Only yesterday we were dutifully recording the Major's regret that the cocktail—the real cocktail—had vanished from our National cups. Today we come across that eminent musical critic, W. J. Henderson, asking "What's the matter with American music?" And he unhesitatingly replies: "The matter with American music is that there isn't any."

* * *

Listen to him: "There has not yet been a native creator of musical art who could be accorded rank above the second-rate man in Europe."

Before you can say "McDowell" or "Jack Robinson," Henderson rushes on:

"Once upon a time there was a flood of prophecy about McDowell. Today his music is heard rarely."

Of course, you might want to whisper that there is quite a good deal of good music that is heard rarely. But by the familiar device of making you sound old-fashioned in uttering your best note, Mr. Henderson had made you afraid of prolonging it.

No, sir! "There has been," says he—after reference to "the questionable Wagner and the unquestionable Bach"—"no American Schubert, Schumann or even Liszt. We have not produced even such superfine salon pieces as the Mendelssohn concerto for the violin, or the Rubinstein D minor for piano. And amid all the publicity and struggle of the "modernists" we have only our Aaron Copland, Charles Ives and a few others of similar importance to pit against Stravinsky."

Whereupon Mr. Henderson—stepping out of his New York Sun office to say it, and saying it in The American Mercury—goes on to quote "pessimists" even more pessimistic than himself, who think that, instead of getting ever so little better, we are getting lots worse. Why, we haven't any more Footes and Chadwicks! Popular songs? If old Stephen Foster was to be derided, new George Gershwin, of "the shop-worn 'Rhapsody in Blue,'" is to laugh.

* * *

Mr. Henderson doesn't go quite so far as his pet pessimists. He thinks the times are evil. He sees no hope in the near future. But he admits, reluctantly, that there is still a lot of future which is not near.

Our trouble, past and present, is the lack of background. Most peoples anticipated their educated composers "and created music out of which the great men built their works. That which makes (White) Russian music distinctively Russian was not created by Glinka nor (or) Rimsky-Korsakov, but by the Russian people," whereas the American composer has no such luck. "He dwells in a country which houses a Nation, but not a people. The melting-pot is still at work."

All very well to say that our composers have sought folksong inspiration in Negro spirituals. Those composers, "instead of deriving symphonies from them, according to the suggestion of Antonin Dvorak . . . have burdened the air with St. Louis blues and the inexorable rhythm of the fox-trot."

What Oscar Thompson recently asked, Henderson asks: "Where is the music of our Western expanses?" For that matter, where is the music of our Eastern compressions? "The young modernist derides the trends of his romantic era and stoutly argues . . . that this is a machine age." Well, "where is the authentic musical expression of the machine age?" asks Henderson. And he answers: "One seeks in vain."

Henderson is sure that our musical problem "is not going to be solved swiftly, (for) the American composer has no National roots. The only native rhythm he possesses is the inexorable four-cornered one published by the merciless beat of the bass drum in jazz—and even jazz is not conclusively American."

To get on, then, to whatever hope we have: The sole hope we have is, apparently, in striking root—and that is admittedly a long process. Meanwhile, we must educate our children to the best in the old music.

Says Henderson: "The hope of our musical future is in the music of the home. But how it is to be raised above the level upon which the bulk of it now stands is a formidable problem. Children who listen daily to that unspeakably offensive form of vocal vulgarity called crooning will not find any enjoyment in real singing . . . and delight in the variety and architectural strength of Beethoven and Bach if their souls have been awakened only to the rigid strumming of jazz. A lady once asked me how she should go about cultivating in her children a taste for good music. The inevitable answer was, 'Keep them from hearing bad music. . . . You have to teach a child everything about good manners and morals. . . . 'Evil communications corrupt good manners.' That is a holy truth. Just how you are going to prevent your children from hearing slang and profanity and smut I do not know; but you will have to try, won't you? And you'll have to try to hold them aloof from bad music, too."

In short, "education of the coming generations is the only method by which," in Mr. Henderson's authoritative opinion, "we can hope to develop musical taste. . . . The child will have to be led to the actual hearing of musical beauty by daily contact with it in its simpler and more appreciable forms."

* * *

And then? Well, by that time, presumably, we may have struck our National roots deep enough into our National earth. And having developed a National taste for good music, we may develop a National musical genius. But "it's a long way to go."

Their Suppressed Desire.

ANOTHER reason the term "brain trust" has stuck as applied to a group of experts in our present Government is that they all have a ready flow of statistics at hand, and there is no better way to fascinate a Washington correspondent. It is a trait of theirs—the correspondents' weakness for statistics—that I have noticed ever since I have been in this town. I can't explain it. I don't know the reason why. But you give a Washington correspondent a lot of statistics and your place on the front page is made.

BARGERON

Now there is no one of the present brain-trusters for whom they have a greater admiration than they had for Julius Klein, one-time Assistant Secretary of Commerce, Mr. Hoover brought him to the department. The correspondents wrote magazine articles about Mr. Klein, they wrote reams and reams of news copy. They were the most indignant lot in the world when at the outset of his Administration, Mr. Hoover didn't make him Secretary. He gave the place first to Mr. Lamont and then to the Detroit automobile man, what was his name?—anyway, the correspondents were wedded to Mr. Klein and his statistics almost to the last.

It was not, in fact, until the very end, when time and time again Mr. Klein's statistics had failed to kill the depression, that the correspondents began to doubt him. But not even then did his light entirely go out in their eyes.

* * * *

One of the most frequent stories they used to write about Mr. Klein was that he had just turned down another $100,000 job with private industry. I used to wonder why he would turn down these $100,000 jobs because he was not a wealthy man. Mr. Klein was always in doubt himself as to whether he shouldn't take one. When Mr. Roosevelt came in, or just before, I've forgotten which, he finally decided to make the jump. It wasn't such a hard decision to make any more.

Anyhow, I am satisfied that had the correspondents thought of the term they would have dubbed Mr. Klein a brain trust. They liked his statistics and him.

It was statistics that first sold them on Mr. Hoover.

* * * *

I have always thought it was the Washington correspondents who made Mr. Hoover President. They certainly influenced his nomination. In the preconvention days they would knock down Messrs. Lowden and Dawes every time they stuck their heads up. The nomination of either of them was absurd, they would write, because these two gentlemen had been for the McNary-Haugen bill, and therefore the financial East would not have them. Neither could get to first base in a publicity way. It used to burn Lowden up, too.

Of course, it developed that the East would have been tickled to death with Dawes and would not have been shocked by Lowden. And a Republican, either Dawes or Lowden, would have won in 1928.

* * * *

It's funny, I declare it is. But it was statistics that sold the boys on Mr. Hoover. When he was Secretary of Commerce they used to go up to his office and listen to him indefinitely as he would pour out statistics on statistics. And when they would come away their admiration would know no bounds.

I was just breaking into political writing at the time and I remember how I used to ask them and wait for an answer with bated breath, what it was that made them admire Mr. Hoover so much. Invariably the answer was the same or of the same import:

"Let me tell you, that man has got more statistics at his finger tips than you can shake a stick at."

* * * *

There is no doubt in my mind that statistics are the way to a Washington correspondent's heart. Feed them to him and he will warm right up. They fascinate him. They grip his interest and his affection.

I think it must be that statistics are their suppressed desire.

Two Arson Suspects Released Under Bond

Frederick, Md., July 18 (Spl.).—James Harding and Joseph Blair, jr., each about 20, charged with starting a fire which destroyed a score of cattle sheds at the fair grounds July 9, were released from jail under $1,500 bond for the action of the grand jury which convenes in September.

Eldridge Fox and Clyde Moxley, arrested at same time, were unable to obtain bond. Police said Fox signed a confession.

Anyone Offering Food Can Steal Dog Not Fed at Home

By Robert Quillen

When a man becomes mentally mature, which some never do, he feels a certain masculine pride in self-reliance and independence.

He is proud of the fact that he doesn't need anybody to help him or serve him or wait on him. He feels more respectable because he isn't "beholden to anybody."

He makes a creed of service and unselfishness. He supports his family as a matter of course, but his duty does not stop there; he plans for them and does odd chores for them and renders innumerable small services, as a faithful menial might if a menial could be so devoted.

The result is sometimes unfortunate.

In America, as in no other country, the breadwinner spoils his family. He does it knowingly, as a manly duty; but they, being supplied with abundance too easily come by, are prone to forget their obligation and accept him casually as a combination work-horse and Santa Claus.

Since he serves willingly, in the pride of his strength, he isn't aware that he is denied a part of his just reward.

But when he reaches and passes his prime and begins to break a little, his increasing weakness brings his emotions near the surface and prepares him for the discovery that he has missed something.

Somebody—perhaps a guest or a casual acquaintance—is kind to him, and the experience awakens a long-dormant appetite.

Without realizing it, he has been starved for kindness—not for petting or humoring or coddling, but for the simple and thoughtful services that are prompted by kindness of heart.

This newly discovered need of kindness explains much so-called philandering, for this is the time when quiet old work-horses become "unfaithful" and disgrace the family.

But the old fellow who goes astray isn't kicking up his heels in a sex affair because the devil is in him. Some woman has been kind to him, and kindness is all he asks of life.

Maryland G. O. P. Aspirant Speaks at Frederick Tonight.

Frederick, Md., July 18 (Spl.).—Stepping into the territory heretofore regarded as leaning toward Harry W. Nice, Baltimore attorney, for Governor, H. Webster Smith, Republican candidate, also seeking to succeed Gov. Ritchie and three other candidates for State office, will begin an intensive campaign in western Maryland in this city and county tomorrow.

With Mr. Smith will be Dr. Joseph I. France, Baltimore, Republican candidate for the U. S. Senatorial nomination, and State Senator George Henderson, Cumberland, candidate for attorney general. They will be accompanied by Wendell B. Allen, formerly chairman of the Baltimore City Republican committee; Irvin Fisher, editor of the Maryland Young Republican; Miss Helen Elizabeth Brown, secretary; W. Edward Sultan, president, and J. Harry Schad, business manager of the Young Republican League, Baltimore.

The party will arrive in automobiles, accompanied by a truck decorated with posters, banners and streamers. After a tour of the county, stopping at Middletown, Walkersville, Thurmont, Brunswick and other towns, at which short addresses will be made, the caravan will return to this city and hold the first big meeting of the campaign in Winchester Hall. The speakers will be Mr. Smith, former Senator France, Mr. Allen and Mr. Schad. Leaving Frederick, the party will tour Washington, Allegany and Garrett Counties during the remainder of the week.

Canvassed Carroll County.

The visit to Frederick will be the start of an intensive eight-week campaign by the Smith-France forces. Yesterday the group canvassed Carroll County, visiting Westminster, Mount Airy, Sykesville, Eldersburg, Taylorsville, New Windsor, Union Bridge, Uniontown, Silver Run and Taneytown.

That Frederick County will be a battle ground for the State candidates of both parties is generally recognized by local leaders. Other Republican candidates for Governor besides Mr. Nice are United States Senator Phillips Lee Goldsborough, who announced his candidacy yesterday; Harry T. Phebus, Baltimore, and Walter E. Quenstedt, Mayor of Annapolis.

Nice Gets Support.

Mr. Nice, the Republican standard bearer in 1918, who came within 165 votes of defeating Governor Ritchie, has conferred with Republican leaders here, some of whom have pledged him their support. Mr. Smith, who visited this city some time ago in the interest of his candidacy, claims to have made many friends.

The entrance of Senator Goldsborough in the race for Governor, it is believed, will complicate the situation in this county to an extent that insures a lively primary fight, unless a compromise is reached. Both parties will elect a new State committee and delegates to the State convention.

Westminster, Md., July 18 (Spl.).—Making his second circuit of the counties of Maryland, H. Webster Smith, republican candidate for Governor, was the principal speaker at a rally held at Taneytown, in western Carroll County last night.

Man Drowned Off Coast Identified as Seaman

Norfolk, Va., July 18 (Spl.).—The body of the man found floating in the Eastern Branch of the Elizabeth River last week was identified last night as that of William McCreight, 30, of Louperix, Pa. The body was buried by the city without being identified.

McCreight was a member of the crew of the tug P. F. Martin when it sailed for Norfolk the morning of July 11. Other members of the crew believed he was asleep until he failed to report for his watch, when the tug was well up the coast. It was discovered then he was missing.

First Maryland Regiment Set To Open Camp

National Guard Outfits Assemble Saturday for Training.

Hagerstown, Md., July 18 (Spl.).—Sixty-six officers and 1,119 enlisted men of the First Maryland Regiment, National Guard, will entrain Saturday morning from various sections of Maryland for Camp Ritchie, Cascade, Washington County, where they will spend the annual two-weeks training period.

Col. D. John Markey, of Frederick, is commander of the regiment, and Lieut. Col. Elmer F. Munshower, Frederick, is his assistant. The following are battalion commanders: First Battalion, Winfield B. Harward, Belair; Second Battalion, Maj. Harry Flook, Cumberland; Third Battalion, Maj. Steven Fuller, Crisfield.

A special Baltimore & Ohio train will bring Eastern Shore companies to Cumberland, where they will be transferred to the Western Maryland system. Other companies from the vicinity of Washington will come by train. The Frederick companies will travel by bus.

The First Regiment will arrive shortly after the Fifth Regiment, made up of companies from Baltimore, break camp after two weeks' training.

The companies that make up the First Maryland are A, of Frederick; B, of Hagerstown; C, of Cambridge; D, of Belair; Headquarters Company, First Battalion, of Easton; F, of Hyattsville; G, of Cumberland; H, of Westminster; Headquarters Company, Second Battalion, of Laurel; I, of Salisbury; K, of Centerville; L, of Crisfield; M, of Annapolis, Regimental Headquarters Company and the band, from Frederick; Service Company, of Silver Spring; Howtizer Company, of Kensington, and Medical Detachment, of Chestertown.

50 in Finals For Miller

Virginia Trustees Select Group Taking Entrance Examinations.

Charlottesville, Va., July 18.—School trustees from Albemarle County and Charlottesville met in joint session yesterday and considered the applications of more than 100 youths to enter Miller School next fall.

While there will not be more than 25 vacancies the coming session, the trustees selected 50—35 from the county and 15 from the city. These nominees will take entrance examinations during the month, and Judge Lemuel F. Smith, of the Circuit Court, will give final decision. Those nominated are:

Each year twoscore or more children are taken into the institution and given free tuition, board, clothing and medical care. The work is done through the bequest of the late Samuel Miller, who founded the school for poor and needy children of Albemarle County and Charlottesville.

Mapleside Residents Organize Association

Cumberland, Md., July 18 (Spl.).—To improve civic conditions in the Mapleside section, citizens of that locality formed the Mapleside Progressive Association at a meeting last night at the home of Otho Hewitt, Massachusetts avenue and Oldtown road.

Officers are: President, William C. Hubbs; secretary, Leo A. Jewell; members of the executive committee, Frank J. Bealky, Charles H. Weaver and Ross H. Goshorn.

Allegany Farmers Plan Picnic August 1

Cumberland, Md., July 18 (Spl.).—County Farm Agent Ralph F. McHenry has completed plans for the annual picnic of the Allegany County Farmers' Federation, to be held August 1 at Union Grove. The picnic usually attracts hundreds of farmers.

A concert will be given by the Lonaconing Band. Demonstration will be given by representatives of the United States Department of Agriculture and the University of Maryland.

Mystery Most Foul.

ANYBODY who read this column yesterday will certainly find it plain enough why the topic of mystery stories comes up today. For the refreshing, the heartening thing about a detective yarn is that everything comes out right in the end. No matter how gory and gruesome the details, virtue triumphs and all is well with the world. It is not for nothing that the most inveterate readers of mystery fiction are statesmen, bankers, and—yes, book-reviewers who have dieted on European prophecies.

THEO. HALL.

As if to balk escape, the first tale on the list hinges on a fancied Red Revolution in this country. George Dyer's "A Storm Is Rising" (Houghton-Mufflin, $2) makes out so plausible a method for such an uprising that it was all I could do not to exclaim: "My heavens! Suppose this gets into the wrong hands!"

A half-mad Communist agitator named Wolff organizes an attack on five Eastern cities. With the backing of a wealthy parlor-pink, with no more than a thousand men, but with an array of marvelously detailed plans (seriously set forth in an appendix) to seize such strategic points as subways, power stations and arsenals, the great day arrives for Wolff. But unluckily there lives near his Pennsylvania rendezvous a young couple of the hunting set, rich, spirited, most curious of strange doings in the neighborhood. How the Dempsters, and the young brother of one and the young sister and of the other, get into the path of the attack and finally squelch it, makes as pretty a yarn as I've seen in some time.

Best sequence is that in which three trucks of dynamite, on their way to blow Wall street to bits, are halted by the police in the very middle of the Holland Tunnel. George Dyer, young Yale man, should get a white mark way up high in the corner for thinking up that one.

* * * *

Senator Greer, who lived in Massachusetts Park, was murdered in his library. Lynn Ash, lovely lobbyist for the power trust, was found strangled to death near the second ford in Rock Creek Park. Col. Primrose, retired Army engineer and advisory sleuth to the District Homicide Division, lives in a three-story yellow house on P street.

Too often our own town seems banal to us. We should thank Leslie Ford for an absorbing detective story set in our midst—"The Strangled Witness" (Farrar & Rinehart, $2). It's enough to make all of us look twice at our neighbors.

Senators, Congressmen, a power trust baron, secret lobbyists, newspapermen, and our stanch Washington police fill the scenes. That it is all solved by getting the suspects together and springing a psychological trick on them is the only weak point in an entertaining and craftsmanlike tale. But guilt pops up with considerable surprise, I can tell you.

* * * *

For the English-style mystery, try R. C. Ashby's "Out Went the Taper" (Macmillan, $2)—full of ruined abbeys and ghosts and shrieks in the dark. The hero is a young American Rhodes scholar from out West, dubbed with the incredible name of Taliessin Winyatt. Mr. Ashby, one can guess, has heard of Frank Lloyd Wright's house in Wisconsin, named Taliesin.

Then there are three London "gangsters." At least we're told so, and they do act rather hard. But one of them talks like this: "I wish I was out of the racket! I thought it would be fun, but it's awful—always something hanging over you!" The whole book has that thin, tinny and "literary" air. When the hero thinks he's about to be shot to death, he sees his whole past life in one rhapsodic paragraph.

* * * *

All the stock eerie effects and a couple of new ones are assembled in George Worts' "The House of Creeping Horror" (King, $2).

Readers can pick their way through garroting wires, an exotic Eurasian lady, a negress who worships voodoo, secret compartments, and a Chinaman, to a highly satisfactory climax.

* * * *

With far fewer theatrical properties, Mrs. Kay Cleaver Strahan produces rather more horror in "The Hobgoblin Murder" (Bobbs-Merrill, $2), a tale of a small town, of normal and understandable characters, and a spinster lady who gets stabbed in the throat with a pair of sewing scissors.

It's an old truth that nothing seems so uncanny as violence in home-like surroundings.

* * * *

I still maintain an early fondness for Ben Ames Williams, of Saturday Evening Post fame. He may write with too much syrup at times, he may insist upon pointing to the moral with queasy-making unction, but he does tell a tale, he does make his people round and alive, and when he writes of Maine his local color and dialect are delightful.

All this you will find in "Hostile Valley" (Dutton, $2), the story of a city siren who married a farmer too good for her and who raised considerable havoc in one little valley. Slow-spoken Jim Saladine, of Fraternity village, whom we've all met before, goes fishing and steps into the middle of things. The sleuth is a wise, salty-tongued, and altogether marvelous old country-woman. "Hostile Valley" has a mystery, but it's also an all-around tale neatly made for all tastes.

Daily Talk About Books and Authors.

What Is a Gentleman?

This question in more ancient times was easier to answer than it is now. For whether one were a gentleman or not depended exclusively on birth. If one had in one's veins the blue blood of hereditary nobility, one was a gentleman no matter if one were both stupid and cruel; and without that "little accident" no goodness of heart, no courage of mind or body, no grace of manner, could make a man a gentleman, any more than they could change the color of his skin.

There are persons who would like even now to preserve this distinction, but it is a vain hope.

There was a time also when a man was a gentleman provided he did no work; the essential thing was to earn nothing. Some years ago no one was allowed to row in the Henley Regatta in England who had ever engaged in manual or menial labor.

But even while the above distinctions remained, there were instances when the appellation gentleman was applied to persons of meritorious character; even as the word noble came to have a moral rather than an accidental significance.

To revolutionists, Communists, &c., all distinctions are evil; thus in the French Revolution every one was called "Citizen" and today in Russia every one is called "Comrade." I dare say some of the Communists would like to abolish the distinction between male and female, but nature thought otherwise.

In our time the word gentleman depends really on the way one emphasizes it; as has for centuries been the case with the even more inclusive word man. When Hamlet, speaking of his father, said, "He was a man," he did not refer to his sex, but to his character. Thus, when we say today, "He is a gentleman," we mean it not as a description but as a compliment.

In this sense, then, What is a gentleman?

Courage and courtesy are fundamental qaulities. They are fundamental because taken together they spell a third word—consideration. Cowardice is selfishness; it means that one places one's own welfare above that of others; and courtesy means unselfishness, because it means that one is thinking of others rather than oneself.

It is a curious thing that, although we are all born selfish, the difference between a good man and a bad man (really between virtue and sin) is the difference between one who controls and even changes his natural instincts from thoughts of self to thoughts of others. And what is true of individuals is true of nations; civilization simply means the control of natural instincts.

Christian Churches To Hold Assembly

Piedmont Area Parley Opens on July 27.

Charlottesville, Va., July 18 (Spl.).—Representatives of the 36 Christian (Disciples) Churches in the Piedmont District, which has an approximate membership of 6,000, will attend the thirty-seventh annual assembly at Assembly Park, near Gordonsville, July 27-August 5.

Ministers of the district will preach at the morning and afternoon sessions. Dr. W. H. Bock, of Orlando, Fla., will speak each night and the last Sunday of the assembly.

Jack W. Cunningham, of Hampton; R. B. Montgomery, associate president of Lynchburg College, and W. S. Hoye, of Louisa, will speak July 29.

Bank Case Removal Asked to U. S. Court

Keyser, W. Va., July 18 (Spl.).—William MacDonald, receiver of the First National Bank of Keyser, W. V., has filed a petition with Judge A. Jay Valentine, asking that the case concerning the estate of the late Judge F. M. Reynolds be removed to the Federal court for the Northern District of West Virginia.

In his petition, the receiver, stated that the heirs of the estate claim a preference of approximately $10,000 and also deny liability on a note for $25,000 signed by F. M. Reynolds and held up by the bank.

Richmond HOLC Loans $13,860,000

4,330 Aided by Central Virginia Offices.

Norfolk, Va., July 18 (Spl.).—Loans aggregating $13,860,000 have been made to Virginians up to last Friday by the Home Owners Loan Corporation, with headquarters in Richmond, it is announced by State Manager John J. Wicker, jr.

The total number of loans made through the central Virginia offices is 4,330, all of which were distress cases and resulted in the saving of homes to individuals.

Oat Field Invaded By Half-Grown Deer

Frostburg, Md., July 18 (Spl.).—A deer, about half grown has been visiting the oat field on the James Morgan farm, near Carlos, about 3 miles from this city, Mr. Morgan, who saw the deer on two mornings last week, stated that he whistled and the animal approached him for a short distance, but then became frightened and ran to the woods.

Other farmers state that deer have been roaming in their fields, and the CCC workers near New Germany see them frequently on the hilltop near Swauger's Dam, where salt licks have been placed by the State game wardens.

Virginia State's Attorney Irked By Salary Cut

R. S. Smith Flays Reduction to $5,000 in Passing of Fee System.

Richmond, July 18 (AP).—Robert S. Smith, Commonwealth's attorney of Roanoke, asserted that "something more than mere economy," was behind the move by Roanoke City Council to reduce his salary to the $5,000 minimum, as he appeared before the State compensation board today.

He recited the duties of his office and cited various changes in his compensation since he has been in office. "I've taken more cuts than any other officer in Roanoke, as far as I know," he said.

Appearing before the board to answer Mr. Smith's arguments were two members of Roanoke City Council and a technical advisor. They were James A. Bear, councilman, who presented the city's side of the argument; J. W. Comer, also a member of the council, and P. H. Tucker, described by Bear as their technical advisor. They presented a chart showing receipts of fines and other data to the board.

The Smith case was one of several called as Commonwealth attorneys from Virginia cities were given an opportunity to give the board information to aid it in fixing salaries for attorneys and their assistants under the new compensation act. By that act Commonwealth attorneys, commissioners of revenue and treasurers are changed from the time-honored fee system to a straight salary. Top and bottom levels are fixed by the law, but the board is to determine just where, between the extremes, any individual officer is to be placed.

L. R. Yourtee Files For State Senate

Others Expected to Seek Maryland Office.

Hagerstown, Md., July 18 (Spl.).—Resignation of William D. Byron, recently appointed a member of the State roads commission, as State Senator from Washington County, has resulted in one announcement and reports of other candidates filing in the next few days.

The first to announce was Leon R. Yourtee, Democrat, attorney and former member of the Maryland House of Delegates.

Ernest W. Miller, a member of the House of Delegates, has already announced on the Republican ticket. Others reported planning to file on the Republican ticket are Daniel W. Doub, attorney, and Lancelot Jacques.

Holston Valley's Hospital Speeded

Kingsport, Tenn., July 18 (Spl.).—With construction work on the new Holston Valley Community Hospital entering upon the fifth week, efforts are being doubled by contractors in order to complete the $300,000 job by January 1, 1935.

The main excavation and pouring of concrete for the foundation was completed last week and the laying of brick on the hospital proper is well under way. D. A. Pyle is in charge of construction work.

When completed the hospital proper will be a two-story brick building of reinforced concrete. It will have 80 rooms, with about 60 beds. Radio headphones will be attached to each bed.

Sinclair Dealers
War on Bootleg Oil
Guard Public Against $80,000,000 Loss!
Oil bootleggers who give short measure or substitute inferior oil for well-known brands cost the public $80,000,000 a year, according to a statement issued recently by the American Automobile Association. The A. A. A. bases its charges on a survey made in a large city by special investigators who bought oil at service stations. It was found that 79% of the service stations visited gave short measure—and 40% substituted inferior oil for the brand the customer asked for!
Such conditions cannot possibly exist at Sinclair stations. Sinclair Motor Oils are sold in refinery-sealed Tamper-Proof cans. The Sinclair dealer opens these cans before your eyes. And each can is actually over-size to make sure you get full measure.
Don't be cheated—buy Sinclair Opaline or Sinclair Pennsylvania Motor Oil in Tamper-Proof cans. No extra charge for the cans.

Roosevelts' Visit Ends Social Lull

Two of President's Sons Arrive for Stay in Capital.

Mrs. Elliott Roosevelt Accompanies Husband on Trip Here.

By Evelyn Peyton Gordon.

Having been deserted by the Presidential family for several weeks, Capital society is again made to feel "on the map" by the arrival yesterday of three members of the Roosevelt family, Mr. and Mrs. Elliott Roosevelt and Mr. James Roosevelt.

Mr. and Mrs. Elliott Roosevelt have been visiting at the Roosevelt home at Hyde Park, N. Y., with their small daughter, having arrived there shortly before the President left on his Pacific cruise. Young Mrs. Roosevelt made the acquaintance of her distinguished father-in-law then for the first time, and now she is visiting in the Capital for the first time as the wife of his son.

The young Roosevelts are visiting at the Shoreham, presumably in the apartment of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph P. Kennedy. Mr. Kennedy is the chairman of the Securities and Exchange Commission, and has recently leased one of the handsomest estates near Washington, the home of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel K. Martin 3d, at Potomac, Md.

Mrs. Kennedy is not in Washington at present, but Mr. Kennedy is living in the lovely place on the river, where the Roosevelts probably will visit him during their stay in town.

Styled Like Chateau.

The Martin estate had been closed for a short time after Mrs. Martin sailed for Europe with her small son to spend the summer in Biarritz, and Mr. Kennedy had the good fortune to be able to lease it for several months.

It is a magnificent place, for all the world like an old French chateau, standing on a high knoll overlooking the Potomac. There are tennis courts, formal gardens, rolling lawns, and a brand-new swimming pool of Roman grandeur.

The broad terraces leading down to the pool are dotted with gay umbrellas and groups of bright garden chairs and tables, while at each end of the pool there are cabanas which are used as dressing rooms for the guests.

Elaborate Interior.

Inside, the house is no less impressive than the grounds. The large oval entrance hall is decorated with beautiful French furnishings, and the suite of Mrs. Martin is the dream of every luxury-loving woman; a magnificent bedroom with pale blue satin hangings, the walls covered with pleated satin. Beyond is a dressing room, octagonal in shape, panelled in the same pleated satin, with each of the eight walls opening into closets.

The bath is walled with mirrors, with a sunken tub into which the water flows through the beak of a silver swan.

It will take the large estate which Mr. Kennedy has leased to house his family of nine children and Mrs. Kennedy. They have a home in Bronxville, N. Y., where the family is now living, but it is expected that at least five of the children will come to Washington in the autumn. Mr. Kennedy is a native of Boston, and a graduate of Harvard. He is fond of riding, takes a swim every day unless circumstances prevent, and is an ardent golfer.

Russells Start Summer Travels

Off on Trips to Europe and New England.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Edward Russell have left Washington for the summer. Mr. Russell sailed yesterday aboard the Manhattan for Europe to visit in France, Switzerland and Ireland, returning to this country in the autumn.

Mrs. Russell has gone to the Berkshires, where she will be the guest of Mrs. William Aukeney at her home at Great Barrington, Mass.

Mr. and Mrs. Russell will return to the Capital early in November.

Le Fevres to Visit Lukes in Maryland

Daughter Will Accompany Couple on Journey.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Howell Le Fevre, accompanied by their daughter, Miss Sarah Mitchell Le Fevre, will spend the week-end with their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Luke, in their new home at Luke, Md.

Mrs. Luke, the former Miss Hester Ann Le Fevre, with Mr. Luke and their two small daughters, Hester Ann and Nancy Mills, moved to Luke, Md., about a month ago from their former home in Tyron, Pa., where they had made their home since their marriage in Washington several years ago.

West-Ratigan Wedding Held At Residence

Off to Europe Tomorrow; Dispense With Formal Engagement Notice.

Mr. and Mrs. L. Perry West announce the marriage of their daughter, Miss Helen Galliher West, to Mr. Russell Ratigan, of Buffalo, N. Y., son of Mrs. John B. Ratigan, and the late Judge Ratigan of Worcester, Mass., at 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon.

The ceremony was performed at the home of the bride's parents on Kalorama road by the Rev. Samuel R. Allison, in the presence of members of the immediate family.

No announcement had been made of the engagement, the young couple having decided to be married while Mr. Ratigan was making a brief visit to the Capital.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of pervanche blue crepe fashioned on simple lines, and carried a bouquet of orchids and lilies of the valley. Her sister, Miss Ruth West, was the only attendant and wore a summer frock of soft green. She wore a corsage of orchids.

Mr. John Homer Chase was best man for Mr. Ratigan, who had served as an usher at the wedding of Mr. Chase and Miss Margaret West, a cousin of yesterday's bride, several years ago. Mr. Ratigan and Miss West met at that time.

The house was decorated with a profusion of summer flowers in shades of pink and yellow, and the ceremony was performed before an improvised altar of palms and ferns. A wedding tea was served later to those attending the reception, after which Mr. Ratigan and his bride left for New York to sail tomorrow aboard the Scythia for Europe. On their return in September they will make their home in Buffalo.

Concerts Recess At Pan-American

Resume September 11 on Dr. Rowe's Return.

With the Director General of the Pan-American Union, Dr. Leo S. Rowe, sailing on Saturday for South America, the concerts which have been given during the spring and early summer on the esplanade of the Pan-American Union will be discontinued until Tuesday evening, September 11.

These are outdoor events to which society looks forward with genuine pleasure.

Latin-American artists of great talent appear as soloists on the programs with one or another of the service bands assisting.

Dawn Patrol Aviators "Combat" for Breakfast

London (AP).—The "dawn patrol" has a new peace-time meaning to England.

Accepting clubs form squadrons which "attack" the airport at an early hour. The game is to get to the field through the host club's defense.

The losers, whether home clubbers or visitors, pay for the breakfast.

Fourth-Century Church Found.

Tac, Hungary (AP).—Remains of a fourth-century Christian church showing pagan influences, the second of its kind discovered in Europe, have been unearthed here.

British Envoy's Heir to Wed Nancy Fincke

American Girl and Son of Sir Eric Drummond Are Engaged.

Mr. and Mrs. Reginald Fincke, of New York, who are at their summer home in Southampton, Long Island, have announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Nancy Seymour Fincke, to Mr. David Drummond, son of Sir Eric Drummond, British Ambassador to Rome, and Lady Drummond.

Miss Fincke attended the Brearley School in New York and was presented to society a few years ago. She recently returned from a trip around the world with her aunt, Mrs. Averell Dougherty. Miss Fincke is a sister of Mr. Reginald Fincke, jr., whose marriage to Miss Virginia Gardner, of Boston took place last year.

Mr. Drummond, who is now traveling in this country, was graduated from Trinity College, Cambridge University. He is a brother of Miss Margaret Gwendolen Mary, Miss Angela Alice Maryel, and Miss Gillian Mary Drummond. His mother is the former Hon. Angela Mary Constable Maxwell, second daughter of the eleventh Baron Herries.

Sir Eric Drummond, father of the bridegroom-elect, has had a distinguished career in British affairs of state. He served for 13 years as Secretary-General of the League of Nations, resigning last year. Formerly he had served as private secretary to the undersecretaries of state for foreign affairs from 1906 to 1912; to the prime minister from 1912 to 1915, and to the secretary of state for foreign affairs from 1915 until 1919. He was created a Knight Commander of St. Michael and St. George in 1916.

Sir Sric is half-brother and heir-presumptive to William Huntley Drummond, fifteenth Earl of Perth, and is a son of the eleventh Viscount of Strathallan.

Cream Keeps Even a Light Brown Away

Sun Makes No Impression Through a Light Coating of This Cosmetic.

By Ruth Anne Davis.

WHERE there is a long stretch of sandy beach and a wide expanse of blue water there are sure to be sun-tanners by the dozen. And where there are the tanners there are also the burners.

These pack picnic lunches and leave home in high spirits anticipating a "big day" at the beach. But late afternoon sees them returning burned to a tomato red. And Monday finds them in agonies of blisters.

Why?

Because they haven't learned from experience that the sun will burn just assurely as a red hot stove, and they haven't taken the trouble to anoint themselves with protective coatings of oil. There are now several exceptionally efficient sun oils and sun creams, varying much in price.

Recently a cosmetic manufacturer put on the market two sun preparations which are not only good but reasonably priced. One of these is a cream which prevents both burn and tan. It enables lily white ladies to enjoy the sea, the sand and the sun and still retain their fairness. Don't confuse this with her other preparation, an oil, which allows tanning but no burn.

No matter how much tan you want you shouldn't brave the sun without a film of oil. The sun tends to dry the skin, and dry skin is particularly susceptible to wrinkles. So beneath the bold beams of a summer sun do the wise thing and rub on a little oil over the face, arms, neck, back and legs.

Tutor Toy.

Many parents of youngsters who will start kindergarten in the fall would like to tutor their offspring in the alphabet at least, if they knew just how to go about it. They realize no child likes to have A, B, C's or other knowledge jammed down his throat.

A group of teachers and psychologists have devised what they call a "tutor toy." It's a fair-sized square box filled with blocks held in by crossbars. These blocks turn over and over on an axis.

When they are all turned one way they form the picture of a blackboard filled with addition, subtraction, and multiplication problems. Another way they form a color chart. Another way they are the alphabet. By turning them over and over they offer a splendid and amusing means for a child to learn colors, spelling, numerals, letters, arithemetic, nursery rhymes, in addition to having the fun of seeing interesting pictures covering parts of the blocks.

Acne Treatment.

A local beauty specialist has originated a new treatment for acne. It consists of a circulation cream and plastic mask. First one rubs on the cream. Almost immediately the circulation picks up. After this cream has remained on a few minutes it should be removed and replaced by a cream mask which tightens the skin and purges the pores.

The young woman who originated the treatment says assuredly that if followed strictly according to directions it will alleviate drastic acne conditions.

In treating the skin remember first that the diet is in many cases responsible for bad skin conditions. See to this first and then pursue a direct skin treatment.

Incidentally there is a special summer price for the set.

Imagine a porch bordered with boxes of growing things! There'd be an abundance of green, golden nasturtiums, crimson geraniums and deep purple petunias. Wicker furnishings, grass rugs, a wall vase or two and a cocktail table would add to the picture.

But for the perfect touch a bamboo screen.

A Connecticut avenue shop selling some at a 20 per cent reduction. There are two sizes, five feet and seven feet, to hang from the edge of the outer ceiling down to a little below the flower boxes.

From a painting by F. De Haenen.

And If a Foreign Food Artist Does That, the Food Must Merit It; Lenten Season Under the Imperial Regime a Time of Tasty Dishes.

When the bells of the troika jingled across the snow, deep voices were raised in religious chorals, and tea was poured from the samovar—that was Old Russia.

Today we glimpse the past, as Old Russia invites us into her kitchen and banquet hall. This article is one of a series on foreign foods and flavors.

By Susan Mills.

A FRENCH chef says: "Old Russia's cooking was excellent. An Italian chef says. "In old Russia—there they had good cooks." When a chef forgets culinary rivalry long enough to praise the work of a foreigner, the foreign cooking must be good.

Food to the Russians has always been a thing of major importance. A dinner meant a banquet; a banquet meant feasting, merrymaking and forgetfulness of trouble. At one time a good chef was considered more valuable than a rare painting or a first edition. The foods were fanciful, whimsical; the meals crowded with hors d'oeuvres and varied courses.

Some of the Russian dishes are clothed in ancient tradition, and often this tradition is as interesting as the dishes themselves. The Lenten season, for instance, a season that brings back the larks to the Russian forests.

Spring for the Artists.

Then the cooks exerted themselves to their utmost. Awakened artists, they broiled and fried, and made ready for the Easter celebration. They prepared the traditional dish, blini, the delicate pancake that most Americans have tasted with pleasure.

The peasants, pausing from their religious plays and festivals, ate the pasha, a dish made of curds, and with it, a cake shaped like a cylinder, tasting not unlike a sweetened bread. In honor of the returning larks, little cakes shaped like larks were served.

To us, Russian food means caviar. The Volga yields not only this delicacy, but a species of small sturgeon, a brief fat fish with a delicate flavor. It can be found only in the Volga and its tributaries. A Russian well versed in flavors can tell by tasting whether a sturgeon came from the Volga or one of its tributaries.

To us a pig is a pig. To the Russians a pig is a hog or an aristocrat. The aristocrats are carefully tended and milk fed. Bologna is the reason. Russian bologna is a work of art.

Stuffed Pigs.

Suckling pigs once appeared on wealthy Russian tables. They were stuffed with apples and served with cranberry sauce.

Beef Stroganoff.

To 2 teaspoons butter add 1 sliced medium onion. Fry until golden brown. Add a teaspoon tomato paste, and ½ pound blanched and chopped mushrooms. Fry together. add 1 tablespoon flour, ½ cup sweet cream and ½ cup sour cream. Lastly add 1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce.

Cut 2 pounds tenderloin, from which fat and skin have been removed, in long oblong strips. Fry in butter and drain. Mix well with sauce, simmer 5 minutes and serve.

To the Indians of the East, we pay a visit next week to sample their native and characteristic curried dishes. Watch for the article on this page next Thursday.

What Today Means

"Cancer."

If July 19 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 10:30 a. m. to 12:30 p. m., from 3:30 to 5:30 p. m. and from 7:30 to 9:30 p. m. The danger periods are from 7:30 to 9:30 a. m., from 12:30 to 2:30 p. m. and from 9:30 to 11:30 p. m.

You may find a prevailing attitude of skepticism noticeable on this date among prospective buyers. It might be good judgment to weigh carefully any statements you make relative to anything you are offering for sale, for verification of them may be requested. Money will be spent judiciously, so prices will have to be right if business is to be secured. Some very unreasonable demands may be made, and diplomacy should be used if they can not be granted. It might be advisable to be very methodical in planning your time on this date as attempted interruptions may cause confusion. Social engagements should be held in abeyance, if they will tend to disrupt your day. The first quarter of the new moon should shed sufficient light so as to brighten the way of lovers, and prove an inspiration for the romantically inclined.

The average woman born on July 19 is, as a rule, full of "pep and ginger." If this is your natal day, the marvelous amount of enthusiasm you bubble over with should prove a valuable asset, if you will use it in a practical way. Selling is a logical line for one of your temperament to follow.

The child born on July 19, as it reaches its teens, will undoubtedly display an unusual amount of kindly consideration and depth of feeling for those it cares for or is interested in. This trait may be one of its outstanding characteristics throughout its entire life, and should be encouraged.

If a man and July 19 is your birth anniversary, you possess a personality that should advance you greatly in any business or profession you follow. Originality of thought should find expression through writing, inventing, the lecture platform, or pulpit. You should be able to exercise a good influence over both men and women.

Air-Conditioned Sportswear Allows Summer Breezes Plenty of Chance to Cool One Off

Tennis Classics Have Low Backs and Briefer Skirts.

By Amos Parrish.

NEW YORK, July 18—Air conditioned clothes. That would be a good descriptive name for much of this summer's sportswear. For it is certainly designed to let whatever breezes there are to get at almost all parts of the anatomy.

Newest tennis dresses, for example, come only to about the knees. And you wear them with anklets, leaving not only your legs exposed to the air but your back, too, since the classic tennis dress has a low-cut back.

Or you play your tennis in shorts, airier still, instead of a dress.

Shorts and Halters.

Shorts also go to the beach, worn with the briefest of halter or bandeau tops, airing not only back and arms but often a portion of the midriff between the shorts and the edge of the bandeau.

There's scarcely a swim suit which isn't cut halfway down the back and some are cut clear to the waist. Or they copy the shorts and bandeau idea.

Spectator sports dresses don't go so far in exposure but many do do something about gathering in the breezes, using ventilated mesh fabrics.

the shortest cut panties ever, also of breeze-inviting meshes. And stockings of similar open-air construction.

ESCAPE from the SOVIETS

By TATIANA TCHERNAVIN

Tatiana Tchernavin and her husband, Russian intellectuals, were imprisoned by the Soviets on falsified charges, leaving their son to fend for himself in the world. In past installments the author has told of the misery and squalor of prison life. Today she continues her story of hardships suffered.

BUT THE evening was easier to beat; daytime, in which every one had been used to work, was gone. We talked and recalled the past which seemed long and rich and vivid. All our memories acquired a new value, as before death. But the thought of death had lost its terrors when life was confined to an empty existence in a stone cage. The thought of exile was more alarming.

The OGPU did not like people to die in prison and tried to prevent it—death was the specialty of the penal camps. It only sought to weaken us morally and physically so that we should have no power of resistance left. In the press, it is true, the Bolsheviks represented the regime in very different colors; Ramzin, Fedotov and others who figured at the public trial had to declare that their health improved in prison where they had "constant medical attendance."

I do not question their statement. They had leading parts to play and before they appeared on the stage they must have been taken care of. But people like myself were not wanted for publicity purposes and so there was no occasion to look after us; though for the sake of appearances there was a medical staff in prison. Indeed, some of the staff were always on the spot in case of attempted suicide, which the OGPU tried to prevent. Besides, it was the chief doctor's special duty to certify that the prisoners who had been shot were really dead.

After my interviews with the "lively" examining officer when I had to strain every nerve to keep my self-control, my health gave out: I developed red patches on my skin that itched, turned wet and wrinkled. It looked rather awful.

Same Medicine for All.

I had to ask for a doctor, if only to make sure that I would not infect my neighbor. A doctor's assistant appeared. She dashed into the cell, accompanied by the wardress, and before I had time to say a word she declared, "Slight infection; don't wash; I'll send you an ointment," and dashed out again. She carried out in all conscience the rule that members of the medical staff must not talk to the prisoners. A little later the wardress shoved through the slot in the door a packet with some ointment. My neighbor sniffed it: "It is exactly the same that she sent me when I had earache." Afterward my other neighbors received that same ointment for abscesses and many other complaints.

When I was released from prison and went to a real doctor he was much surprised at the treatment prescribed to me. My trouble, it appears, was nervous eczema, which ought to be washed and not anointed. "But surely there was a doctor in prison?" he asked me.

"Yes, but only his assistant could call him in. She could do so if she felt that she was not competent to deal with the case. Considering the hurry she was in, that was not likely to happen often."

No Help Given.

As a matter of fact, I did see the prison doctor on two occasions. My neighbor had an attack of appendicitis. The doctor came, prodded her in the spot where the appendix is supposed to be and asked:

"Here?"

"Yes, doctor, I can not. . . ." But before she had finished the sentence, the doctor turned round and was gone. The cell door banged and we were left staring at each other in astonishment.

Another neighbor I had, an elderly woman, had a violent attack of angina. That happened during cross-examination and as examining officers do not like prisoners to die before their case is concluded, the doctor was sent into the cell almost as soon as she had been carried into it. He felt her pulse and walked out without saying or doing anything. Evidently there was no immediate danger of death. The wardress and I spent the whole night nursing her as she kept gasping for breath and losing consciousness, but we did not send for the doctor any more.

I have been told that when, in the common cell, this doctor was called to a patient who had been delirious for two days, he declared:

"Remember, I come only to the dead and the paralyzed. Don't disturb me for nothing."

Scurvy Epidemic.

Though perhaps it would have been more absurd for doctors to try and cure those whom the OGPU had doomed to death or to Solovki.

That summer, however, when scurvy assumed proportions that seemed alarming even to the OGPU, the prison authorities displayed unexpected solicitude.

At an unusual time of the day we heard keys rattling and doors banging everywhere. Our door also flew open. A doctor came in, an elderly man getting on to 60, obviously of the old school; he wore a white overall, but had a cigarette in his mouth. Without taking it out, he commanded:

"Eye!" and roughly turned up my eyelid.

"Teeth!" he shoved his finger in my mouth and rubbed my gums.

"Leg!" he felt my knee.

Without washing his hands he did the same thing to my neighbor—this time a common criminal suffering from a contagious disease—and sending a whiff of smoke into her nose, went out. His visit may have lasted a minute; then the door next to us banged and he went into the next cell. The quickness of the examination, to say nothing of the simplified hygienic methods, certainly beat all records.

Vegetables at Last.

But even if he did infect someone the good result of his visit was that on the next "parcel day" we received what had so far been strictly forbidden: raw carrots, radishes, onions, garlic and fresh cucumbers. Prisoners we had not seen before were taken to walk in the courtyard. What a sight they were! One, quite young, could hardly move and dragged one leg painfully. Another, almost a child, dressed in a girl's blouse with a sailor collar, just managed to walk as far as the warder's stool; she sank on to it, looked at the sky and wept. A third, an elderly woman whose fine, severe face reminded one of an old ikon, was carried out on her bed—she was not able to walk. As she was carried back to her cell she gave one long look at the sky and made the sign of the cross.

Forgetful of all precautions we hung on the window, trembling with excitement: these women came from the "dead" cells, whose inmates had never before been let out into the fresh air One of them happened to be in the yard while I was there; she could scarcely move, and I was able to overtake her several times so as to express my sympathy, by a look at any rate. She understood me and whispered as I walked past:

Their Fate Worse.

"Six months without fresh air, without books or papers."

Six months, one hundred and eighty days in which she heard nothing except the examining officer's insults and jeers—and we had been complaining because we were given only four books in ten days, one of them a "political" book, i. e., some old collection of Communistic speeches or of polemics between Deborin and Axelrod, accusing each other of being idiots and of interpreting Hegel's dialectics in a non-Marxist way.

How to Keep Well

Vitamins and Their Importance. Part II.

Dr. Irving S. Cutter.

In yesterday's article there was a general discussion of vitamins with the statement that six vitamins that are essential to nutrition are now known. Vitamins A and B were briefly described. Today we conclude with a short description of vitamins C, D, E and G.

Vitamin C: In 1895 Theobald Smith, now of Princeton, reported the development of scurvy in guinea pigs fed on oats and bran. It was found that this condition could be remedied by the antiscurvy substance contained in tomato juice, orange and lemon juice, fresh vegetables, and milk from cows fed on green food. This scurvy preventing substance is now known as vitamin C.

Vitamin D: In 1918 Edward Mellanby showed that rickets is a deficiency disease. He found that the deficiency could be supplied by the fat of certain animals, particularly by the oil from codfish livers. This necessary substance is now called vitamin D. It was also discovered that children with rickets would recover subsequent to exposure to the sun or to ultraviolet light from an artificial source.

Vitamin E: In 1922 Herbert Evans and his co-workers found that rats reared on a synthetic diet that contained adequate quantities of certain vitamins grew normally but became sterile. The germ cells of the male were gradually destroyed and in the female the young died before birth. In attempting to compensate for this deficiency a substance called vitamin E was supplied. Vegetables contain generous quantities of vitamin E, especially green leaves and those portions of seeds that include the plant embryo.

Vitamin G: Patients suffering from pellagra are found to have a food deficiency and the letter G has been assigned to this particular vitamin. It is known as the antipellagric vitamin. Meats, milk, green vegetables, tomatoes, many fruits, especially bananas, eggs and yeast supply this vitamin. Much of our knowledge of vitamin G is due to the work of Joseph Goldberger.

It will be noted that vitamins are essential to normal body functions and constitute a definite fifth group of foods. A word of caution should be uttered lest there be an effort at self-medication through the use of vitamin concentrates for miscellaneous dietary deficiencies. These vitamin concentrates should be taken only on the advice of a physician and in such amounts as may be prescribed. Most of us can forget vitamins as far as our diets are concerned. It is well, however, to know something of the important role they play in the economy of the body.

The Blueberry Passes From Its Wild State

Department of Agriculture Experiments Turn It to a "Tame" Berry.

IF YOU live in a blueberry section—New England—or along the Atlantic Seaboard, you probably like to go out and gather wild blueberries. Or perhaps you buy them from some small boy who saves you the trouble of getting them yourself, or over the counter of a grocery store. Until a few years ago wild blueberries were the only kind obtainable.

Last year, however, if you lived in any large city between Boston and Washington, or west to Chicago, you probably bought cultivated blueberries, of great size, sweetness, firmness and delicious flavor. Some of them may have measured three-quarters of an inch across.

These cultivated blueberries are the result of investigations in plant breeding that have been carried on for nearly 20 years by the Department of Agriculture, under the direction of Dr. Frederick V. Coville.

Build Up an Industry.

Blueberries only grow in a strongly acid soil, such as is found in the pine region of New Jersey, parts of Maine and other sections of New England and the Atlantic Coast as far south as North Carolina. In 1906 Dr. Coville began experimenting to see whether blueberries could be improved by cultivation and whether larger berries could be produced, so an industry could be built up for some of these regions where other crops will not grow.

In the plant propagation work under his direction 50,000 seedlings have been brought to the fruit-bearing stage, and of these only 10 varieties have been named and kept.

Eat Them Like Cherries.

In stores you will find "Coville" blueberries packed in quart baskets protected by cellophane. Many hotels and restaurants now offer them on the menu.

Huckleberries are sometimes confused with blueberries. Their flavor is similar, but they are less liked because each berry contains about 10 large seeds with bony coverings, while blueberries have small, almost unnoticeable seeds.

This recipe from the Bureau of Home Economics is for a baked blueberry pudding. This pudding may also be cooked in a flat shallow pan and when cold served as cake.

Baked Blueberry Pudding.

¼ cup butter or other fat
½ cup sugar
1 egg
1½ cups sifted soft-wheat flour
2 cups blueberries, washed and drained
2 teaspoons baking powder
¼ teaspoon salt
½ cup milk
½ teaspoon vanilla

Cream the fat, add the sugar and the well-beaten egg. Take out about 2 tablespoons of the flour and mix with the berries. Sift together the remaining flour and the baking powder and salt, and add alternately with the milk to the fat and egg mixture. Fold in the flour-coated berries and add the vanilla. Bake in a greased baking dish for about 1 hour in a moderate oven (350 degrees F.). Serve hot with lemon sauce or hard sauce or whipped cream, or cold as cake, with or without whipped cream.

This Backyard Looks Quite Ordinary But It's a Place of Romance to Children

Wesley Heights Matron Gives Formula for Amusing Young

Mrs. Dion Birney Just Lets Her Children and Their Friends Do What They Will in This Fascinating Backyard Playground Where They Find So Much Adventure.

"Let's play something," says the child, bubbling with energy even on the hottest day. And his bewildered mother wonders what she can do to provide a happy play life for her child.

This, the second of a series of stories dealing with child recreation, tells how two Washington mothers have solved the perennial problem.

By Elizabeth Perrow.

TO THE uninitiated it is just an ordinary backyard, cluttered with more than the usual amount of rubbish.

The pile of barrels with the weary flag drooping from a bent twig on the top; the strange small house with the shingles coming off; a dangling clapboard held in place by a failing, thin nail; the dirty sheepskin crowning the lovely lilac bush in the corner—all form a strange contrast to the well-ordered garden just beyond the hedge.

But to Mrs. Dion Birney's small children and their numerous playmates in Wesley Heights, this is not an untidy yard.

It is a place of delight, of mystery, of wonder. Here they live a life of adventure and bravery, and such fun as grown-ups can only wistfully remember.

The barrels? Why, a fort of course. Only last week that fort saved the lives of the Birney family when the Indians made a sudden attack.

The battered house? They built it themselves. Daddy helped, and it is a beautiful place.

Tarzan in the Garden.

Dirty sheepskin indeed! The lilac bush should be honored. The skin belongs to Tarzan.

Even grown-ups must admit the fireplace is beautiful, besides making a "swell" place to cook; sometimes it serves as a cave. The swings and trapezes are wonderful retreats where a small boy can hang upside down and meditate on the mysteries of life.

Mrs. Birney is just as enthusiastic about the backyard playground as the children are.

"We started it when the children were very small," she said yesterday, "and it has been the greatest thing that ever happened to them. They are never bored here, they have space to play any game they wish. Their friends are welcome. We have no problems of discipline, for each child knows if he is quarrelsome or troublesome he is not welcome. We don't watch the children closely. We believe they grow and develop better when left to their own resources. Besides, they don't like to be watched too much by grown people."

Sand Box an Investment.

"Big sand boxes are the best," confides Mrs. Max Proffitt, introduced by Wesley Heights matrons as one of their most successful mothers. "A very large one can be built at a cost of about $8. This may seem expensive to the inexperienced mother. But it will last for years, and will furnish constant amusement for the children. If a person has three children instead of one she gets a great bargain.

"A sand box may be bought for the same amount of money, but these are usually too small to be very useful. In large sand boxes children can try their hands at landscape gardening, making rivers and lakes with their shovels and rakes. Sometimes they build railroad tracks in them."

A back-yard pool can be made at home, too, Mrs. Proffit explained. The initial cost is about $10, if the cement is bought and father builds the pool. But again, she points out, the long-time point of view is essential. For the very young children can swim in the pool and sail their boats; when they are older they can wade in it.

Let Them Learn Right.

"I am strongly in favor of a low table, where small children can sew, cut paper dolls and draw and paint," she said. "Children can also use this table for tea parties. When they have these they should prepare the refreshments themselves, and serve them. For children's play should teach them things that will be useful all their lives.

"For that reason I am in favor of giving them real tools to build with. When they want to hammer and saw they should learn right, not with miniature tools. If they get hurt they must endure it; these things are a part of growing."

Mrs. Proffitt said she had no objection to toys bought from stores, and her own children had roller skates, bicycles, croquet sets and other such playthings.

"But I think they often get more fun out of the less expensive toys," she said. "We never bought the small, colored blocks for our children. We had some made at the sawmil. They were as large as bricks, and there were 500 of them. With them the boys could build real forts and real houses. They got much more enjoyment out of them than they would have had out of little painted sets of blocks. They also like making kites, climbing trees, running and singing games."

As children grow older they are inclined to outgrow their back yards and to gang up, according to Mrs. Proffitt.

A Growing Away.

"They like ball games, social dancing, swimming, hiking," she said. "This is the expression of their social instinct and should be encouraged. But if they are allowed to do the things that interest them they still like their back yards.

"For instance, my elder son is intensely interested in electricity. I let him work at it at home. He has taken our radio to pieces now, and is repairing it. He also is interested in telephones, the Morse code and broadcasting. We encourage these interests.

"My younger son is interested in airplanes, and has built dozens of them." She pointed to three on the mantel. They were small, lovely craft, made with painstaking care.

"Fourteen-year-olds do everything carefully," she said, smiling. "I have both of them work out of doors as much as possible. But one thing I have learned with my three children. If I had it to do over again I wouldn't give them so much play equipment. I would give them more companionship and teach them new ways to use their playthings."

Read in tomorrow's Post how creative activities are encouraged in Washington's public playgrounds.

New Theory Of Dress Is Chinese One

NEW YORK, July 18 (Spl.). Not your figure, not your size, but whether you are a "Yin" or a "Yang" should determine what kind of dress you should wear.

So says Prof. Belle Northrup, of the fine arts department of Columbia University, who has made an extensive study of women's styles.

Prof. Northrup has evolved a new theory of dress to help women garb themselves becomingly. She calls it the Yin-Yang theory. Taken from Chinese art and philosophy, "Yin" stands for delicacy, softness, sweetness, gentleness; "Yang" for strength, power, vigor, forcefulness. A woman should know to which group she belongs, says Prof. Northrup, and then buy clothes that suit her classification.

"Yin" women should wear clothes of soft color, easy treatment of fabric, fluffy ruffles, curved lines and delicate trimmings. "Yang" women should wear dresses of solid lines, striking or dark colors and heavy textures.

As "Yin" types, Prof. Northrup cites Mary Pickford, Lillian Gish, Miriam Hopkins, Janet Gaynor and Billie Burke. In the "Yang" group are Greta Garbo, Joan Crawford, Katherine Cornell, Jane Cowl and Ethel Barrymore. Combinations of both types are Anna Harding, Eva LeGallienne and Joan Bennett.

Remote Control Horn Installed in Wife's Car

Frankfort, Ky., July 18 (AP).—A woman with a problem in domestic relations to solve drove into a Frankfort garage.

"My husband," she complained, "never sounds the horn in passing cars or making turns. I have warned him many times he will get us in a bad accident but he pays no attention to me."

Frank English, the proprietor, agreed that something should be done about it.

"Well, I believe we can fix that," he said after some reflection.

Permanent Is Improved With Proper Care

It Will Wave Long and Becomingly if Treated With Due Respect.

By Frances Mangum.

HERE'S to the permanent, long may it wave!

And long will it wave if it is given sensible care before and after.

Few women realize how essential it is to condition the hair before it is put through the drastic waving processes.

Two or three weeks before the permanent the hair should be given occasional hot oil shampoos. It should be kept thoroughly clean. Both morning and night it should be brushed from 50 to 100 strokes, and brushed upward in such a manner that the hair is pulled to stimulate the roots and scalp. The scalp should come in for a good massage every day, and should be freed of dry skin that cakes there. Treatment of this kind if followed carefully will put the hair through such a training course that it's literally primed for a permanent.

After the wave don't feel that since your hair is curled and your coiffure made it needs no further care. It should have a thorough brushing every day and a shampoo every two weeks.

If you go swimming frequently be careful to rinse the hair after each plunge with clear water. Every day the waves should be dampened either with a hair lotion or a spray of warm water, and pressed and coaxed into position. Few waves are becoming at first. It takes work, training a curve here and a wide wave there.

Unless the hair is given continuous care after a permanent it is likely to fall into dry and brittle waves. It is the brushing and the massaging of the scalp that will keep it glossy and soft. Every woman should have a hot oil "reconditioning" shampoo at least every three months to keep her hair at the peak of condition.

Mlle. Lorain's Charming Face Is Pictured All Over France

Paris, city of the chic, is famed for its mannequins and models. And none is more famous than Andree Lorain. This is the second of a "series" on European models.

Paris, July 18 (AP).—Mlle. Andree Lorain has one of the most famous faces in all France.

And timidity started the whole thing.

When Andree Lorain was 17 she was so shy she dreaded to talk to or meet anyone but old friends. So a friend suggested to her architect father that they "put her in the movies."

Through his help she secured a small part in a French film, studied diction, dancing and singing and worked so hard she forgot about timidity or anything else except Klieg lights and sleep. For three years she appeared in various Paramount and Pathe Natan films in France and in others in Rome, Vienna and Berlin. She chalked up one Paris theatrical appearance in "Teddy and Partner" at the Michel Theater.

How It Started.

When times were "slow" a photographer friend asked her to help him out by posing for some rush advertising photographs. She did, and more posing orders poured in.

Since then she has posed for the painters Jean Gabriel Domergue and Jacques Lartigue, for various sculptors and for color photographs for Scaioni.

Her face can change like lightning from "siren" to "little girl." She thinks it's her strongest asset, for while, she says, most French artists prefer the "ingenue type," neither voluptuous nor boyish, that changeability enables her to fit many parts.

She is taller than the average French girl, 5 feet 4, has a slender curved figure and weighs about 115 pounds.

A quiet hotel in the Champs Elysees quarter is her home, though she often runs across town to visit her family. Since she shook off timidity, she feels she must "carve her own way."

A Common Ambition.

Mlle. Lorain gets 1,000 francs ($40 at par), for a magazine cover pose, 500 francs for a refrigerator or a car, 300 francs for a few hats. But posing is "just an incident," she says.

Morever, she has an ambition.

"I'd rather be in the movies than do anything else on earth. It's creating something for yourself, while posing is only displaying what somebody else has done.

"The movies in America! That's the place to be. They get things done over there. In France we talk and talk and talk, and often the thing isn't done after all."

Recently an American motion picture company talked to her about the possibility of coming to Hollywood. No contracts have been clinched yet—but she is studying English as hard as she can.

Tomorrow: Fraulein Inge, of Berlin.

The new type of French girl, independent and versatile, is exemplified by Andree Lorain, famous model, whose face on magazine covers and in advertisements is known throughout Europe.

PILLAR S S TO POST

Young Democrats Prove Nudity Has Left This Summer's Beaches.

MODESTY will be the new note in bathing suits worn by the Young Democrats in the style show at their inaugural ball at the Willard Friday evening. But if the rehearsal held last night is a criterion, the boys will have their eyes knocked out anyway.

• • • •

The newly elected president, Raymond J. Walter, and the vice chairman of the entertainment committee, J. Errington Lloyd, were among the fortunate few permitted close-ups of the girls after they had donned bathing suits to have their picture taken. They stood their ground firmly when it was suggested they might as well leave, since all the committee business had been transacted.

• • • •

Margaret O'Brien wears a suit that is black on the starboard side and white on the other. Betty Mattingly in a canary yellow suit would be a hit even though she never opened her mouth to sing or speak. A yellow and brown plaid makes a Scotch bathing lassie of Irene Maddern, and Alice Fogle can be seen for miles in her suit of black and white with large polka dots. And all of these suits show much less epidermis than those of last year.

• • • •

But the ground the nudists have lost on the beach this summer will be made up in the drawing room next winter, according to the style expert from Jelleffs, which is providing the dresses for the style show. The new evening frocks are baldly called seminude. There is only the skirt and a bib effect in front supported by whalebones. The young Democrats are awaiting these gowns with breathless interest.

• • • •

Another reason for excitement is the mystery concerning the identity of the young man who will take part in the style show as "Miss America." They say much of him is covered with tatooed designs. Who the tatooed gentleman is can only be settled by attendance at the ball.

Strictly S S Speaking

Answer These.

1. Why was Samuel Johnson called the "Great Cham of Literature?" How is Cham pronounced?

2. Is there any difference between the pronunciation of program and programme?

3. Who is the present Premier of France, and how is his name pronounced?

4. Define and pronounce the italicized word in the following sentence: "She tried to assuage her grief by going to the theater every night."

5. Where is the accent in Chevy Chase?

Check Here.

1. Dr. Johnson's title is a variation of Khan—an Asiatic chief or governor. At the time he was given the title he was considered the outstanding English literary critic and mentor. Cham should be pronounced KAHM.

2. There is no difference. Both are called PRO-gram and, according to Webster, are sometimes called PRO-grum.

3. Doumergue is the Premier of France. DOO-mare-g.

4. Assuage, called a-SWAYJ, means to relieve, lessen, mitigate.

5. The accent is on the first syllable—CHEV-y Chayse.

NEW YORK, July 18 (U.P.).—Johnny the Gentleman and Jimmie the Mug demonstrated at home today the newest results of a scientific experiment in child training.

The two-year-old identical twins, laboratory subjects since a week after birth, were released from daily observation at Normal Child Development Clinic where two learned professors were penning a book to make them still more famous.

Johnny was intensively trained and Jimmie was carefully left alone. Neurologist Frederick Tilney and Psychologist Myrtle McGraw now want to know whether Johnny will retain his startling talents. His parents were not quite sure they wanted him to.

Dennis Woods who fathered the chubby, curly-headed laboratory specimens frankly observed that "Johnny's a gentleman and Jimmie's a mug." But polite Johnny memorialized his precocious presence by:

Startling Feats.

1. Roller skating around the four-room apartment with such enthusiasm, plaster crashed from the ceiling below.

2. Shinnying agilely up the kitchen sink waterpipe and breaking two glasses.

3. Climbing to the top of window guards to watch the sidewalk one flight down.

4. Sticking his head through a loudspeaker to see how it worked.

"Johnny's got nerve," Woods soothed his frightened wife, who pointed out that none of her other six children ever climbed over window guards that young.

Woods put Johnny on a high ice box, held out his arms and said "Jump." Johnny, perfectly at ease, jumped.

He put Jimmie there and repeated the request. Jimmie cowered, and jumped only when his father's hands were three inches away.

Clocks and Drinking.

Woods started an alarm clock ringing, then switched it off. The next time it rang Johnny turned it off. Jimmie tried three times and gave up, grinning sheepishly.

Meanwhile Mrs. Woods prepared the ultimate demonstration. She set two cups of broth on a little table. Johnny dunked bread like a gentleman. Jimmie crumbled bread over the table, enjoyed the sight of it a while, transferred the fragments to his cup, then began ladling Johnny's broth.

"Johnnie eats like Park avenue," Woods praised the dunking. "But Jimmie—he's Tenth avenue at eating."

"Jimmie hugs me more than Johnny does, though," Mrs. Woods added. "Johnny is independent."

The professors will study the twins twice a month to see if the highly trained Johnny forgets what he has learned and whether the uncultivated Jimmie catches up with his brother's agility.

Perfume Said to Be Husband-Winner

Ypsilanti, Mich., July 18 (U.P.).—Proper perfume and not fluffy biscuits is the way to a man's heart, Dr. Mehran K. Thompson advised the girls today.

Dr. Thompson, professor at Michigan State Normal College, said extensive tests revealed that man is lured most effectively by smell. The rest is simple. The girl need only discover the smell most attractive to a man and find the perfume that matches it.

"Baby talk" is not to be scoffed at either as a husband winner, the professor added, but warned that "it must be stopped after marriage."

Other advice on love and matrimony included: Before reaching the altar decide (1) whether the bedroom window is to be open at night, (2) whether dogs or cats shall be the family pets.

Golf Cured Loneliness and Found the Girl Her Romance.

By Mary Haworth.

DEAR MISS HAWORTH: 'This is my first experience in writing a letter for publication. But because I, too, had to deal with the problem of loneliness the first two years I was in Washington, and because I was fortunate enough to stumble on a way of solving it, I am willing to pass my experience on.

• • • •

My advice to every lonely person is: cultivate a hobby. after two miserable, friendless years here, my health began to fail. I went to a doctor, who in turn sent me out on a golf course.

Although the doctor diagnosed my ailment as overwork, I knew better. My work was hard, with a dictaphone clamoring in my ear all day, but the hours were the usual Government ones, and I could have stood them if I had had more diversion. The doctor said I needed sunshine, fresh air and exercise. He didn't say anything about companionship, but maybe he was too tactful to mention my greatest need.

• • • •

I don't mean to give the impression my problem was immediately solved or that I was an instant hit on the golf course. Quite the contrary. At first I had no inclination for the game whatever and forced myself on the links. Once there, I never felt more awkward, gawky or miserable in my life. But there is something tenacious in my nature and I decided if I was going to play the game, I would do it well.

Happy Ending.

In three months, I brought my score down from 140 to less than 100. Men players began taking a supervisory interest in my game; and I began taking interest in my appearance. I discovered, too, that I looked a great deal better in sports clothes than I did in the fluffy ruffles I had been accustomed to wearing.

• • • •

My health improved and so did my spirits. It's almost impossible to mope at work after an early morning golf game; or to have a finicky appetite or fail to sleep soundly after strenuous outdoor exercise. I think, now, that loneliness is a state of mind that grows worse by sitting down and brooding over it. Take it outdoors and it just naturally evaporates.

• • • •

Believe it or not, I became such a changed person that one of the men I worked with, who had paid no attention to me for the entire two years before I took up golf as a hobby, began asking me for dates. As it turned out, he is crazy about golf, and we became constant golfing companions.

We are engaged to be married. Whether he or she takes up golf or not, I advise the lonely man or woman in Washington to cultivate some interest outside themselves, if they really want happiness and friends. CAROLYN JANE.

Praise for Courage.

DEAR CAROLYN JANE: Your courage and stick-to-it-iveness in overcoming loneliness and ill health in a new environment, cut off from friends and family, should be an inspiration to those who have only the first foe to conquer.

• • • •

There is a wealth of common sense in your advocacy of fresh air, sunshine and a genuine interest in some hobby as a loneliness preventive and cure. It isn't so much these things in themselves, as the change they work in the person, which opens the door to a fuller life.

A mirror fearlessly confronted and its image honestly inventoried might give back disconcerting answers to the person who seeks therein the "why" of his failure to find fellowship.

• • • •

Forced cheeriness is a poor substitute—which fools no one, for that magnetic unselfconscious vitality which radiates from those who, forced to mine their own ore of diversion, discover the secret of abundant sufficiency. These persons have come upon the source of abiding charm. And charm draws friends as sugar draws flies.

Union Woman Has Little to Say on Strike

Elizabeth Christman Says She Knows What She Sees in the Press.

TAKING refuge behind the Will Rogers classic, Elizabeth Christman, secretary-treasurer of the National Women's Trade Union League, assured her interrogator all she knows about the San Francisco general strike, so far, is what she reads in the papers.

Had she any prophecy on the outcome of this momentous deadlock between maritime industry and workers?

"Hunger drives a hard bargain, finally," said the Chicago-born woman, to whom labor strikes are a part of the very warp and woof of existence. From a glove worker in a Chicago factory at the age of 12, she has risen to one of the highest positions accorded woman by organized labor.

"The thing that always amazes me about a strike of such proportions," she added, after a long pause during which her steady gray-blue eyes seemed minutely to study a familiar panorama of suffering—"the thing that always amazes me is that employers permit it to happen.

"No matter which side wins, a dark brown taste is left in all mouths for so long. And the price the workers have to pay for what they win by such tactics is terrific. Yet I believe every strike has been a step, however small, in the right direction.

"I had hoped we had reached a stage in social evolution where employers and employes could sit down at table, seriously discuss their differences and resolve them by arbitration. But since we haven't—" silence and a gesture expressed her resignation to the inevitability of strikes.

"It's a great pity," she added as an afterthought, "that anyone who dares to express an opinion as to what decent working conditions should be is almost always put down as a Communist or a 'Red.'"

Child Chats

By Alice Fox Pitts.

THE lure of the scrapbook is as strong in these modern days as it was in our childhood, but if the book has a definite plan, it gains in fascination. A "scrapbook house" offers endless entertainment.

Be sure the scrapbook you choose is large enough—a mammoth one can be bought for 10 cents—and start out with page 1 as the kitchen. Let the child cut from newspapers and magazines pictures of kitchen equipment: A range, a sink, a refrigerator, a table and stool. The finished ensemble will probably show a giant table towering over a diminutive refrigerator but proportion, or lack of it, doesn't bother the small child in the least.

All sorts of interesting details can be worked out. In the dining room, for instance, there should be pictures on the wall and a bowl of flowers on the table, as well as the principal pieces of furniture. Furnish the house from attic to cellar; spread out to the garden; and assembling and pasting in the material will provide sure-fire entertainment for many hours.

Polish Cafe Arranges Excuse for Tardy Males

Radom, Poland (AP).—Husbands dawdling over their food and drink at a local restaurant, can look out its windows any time and find a good reason to give their wives for staying longer.

So his guests might explain their absences from home, the proprietor placed pierced pipes under the eaves and turned water into them.

Shikat Added To Rassle Program

Former Champ to Meet McReady in Semi-final Bout.

Londos-Marshall Feature Tomorrow May Draw 12,000.

AN unexpected semifinal wallop was added in support of tomorrow night's Jimmy Londos-Everett Marshall main event yesterday when Herr Richard Shikat, former world's champion and still a wrestler among rasslers, was added to the crack line-up scheduled by Promoter Joe Turner for Griffith Stadium.

Forced to revise his supporting line-up due to prior booking of several of the originally scheduled principals, Promoter Joe Turner scored a ten strike in popular favor when he signed Dick Shikat, former champ, to engage smooth-working Earl McCready over a scheduled 45-minute distance.

Shikat First Flighter.

Still generally ranked among the world's first five wrestlers due to his phenomenal speed, science and general ability, Shikat looms as a mighty barrier in the path of young McCready, second only to Marshall as a build-up here.

Marshall yesterday abandoned training in favor of a fishing trip. Determined to maintain his fighting edge, however, the blond Westerner will step through a final workout at Green Oaks Country Club this afternoon.

That tomorrow night's epic rassle bout will draw more than 12,000 was freely predicted by Turner yesterday as his ticket sale continued to boom as he visioned the largest turnout since the memorable Londos-Rudy Dusek $17,000 draw of 1931.

Preliminaries Changed.

Reds Finally Triumph In Philly Park, 9 to 8

Philadelphia, July 18 (AP).—The Cincinnati Reds today won their first game in Philadelphia this season, defeating the Phillies, 9 to 8, in a ninth inning rally. The defeat ended a Phil winning streak at five games.

Harlin Pool, rookie Red outfielder, singled to score Sunny Jim Bottomley with the run that clinched the victory. Bottomley had gone to first on a free pass, and went to second on Chick Hafey's sacrifice.

Marooned Is Victor In Feature at Detroit

Detroit, July 18 (AP).—The $1,200 Three Rivers Handicap, feature event of today's eight-race card at the Michigan State Fair Grounds, was an easy victory for Marooned, from the Le Mar Stock Farm Stables. Getting away in front, Marooned led all the way and finished a length in front of the fast-closing Mr. Sponge, with Desert Call third, three-quarters of a length farther back.

The three led the group right up to the stretch, where Desert Call, which had forced the early going, could not withstand the rush of Mr. Sponge. Marooned covered the 6 furlongs in 1:12.

Jockey Fernando Fernandez, the 93-pound Cuban boy, brought in his twentieth winner of the meeting when he piloted Dark Mist to a victory over Le Bruyere in the second race.

Woodstock Noses Out Millwood Giants, 8-5

Woodstock, Va., July 18 (Spl.).—Listless play marked Woodstock's 8-5 victory over the Millwood Giants here today. Jake Sheetz emerged the winning pitcher over the nine-inning route. Woodstock tallied one run in the first, three in the second and four in the third.

Coffman, Valley League leading hitter, led the hitting attack for the locals. Woodstock will face Harrisonburg in their next game, meeting the champions at Harrisonburg Saturday.

Johnson Stays, Says Bradley; Writers, Fans Pick Successor

CLEVELAND, July 18 (AP).—Although under fire from baseball fans and sports writers here, Walter Johnson will continue as manager of the Cleveland Indians at least for the remainder of the present season.

Owner Alva Bradley answered the critics of Johnson's managing today by asserting the "big train's" contract is good for the entire 1934 campaign, and adding that a successor is not being sought.

Bradley's statement didn't prevent the fans and sports writers, however, from nominating potential new managers for 1935—a game of picking which brought to the forefront the names of Babe Ruth, Willie Kamm and Steve O'Neill.

If Johnson is retired next year, it is known that Ruth would consider the job provided Bradley offered it to him, but it is doubtful whether they could agree on a price. Ruth now gets $35,000 a season from the Yankees and has never accepted a cut with much enthusiasm.

Many of the fans believe O'Neill, once famous Cleveland catcher, now managing the Toledo team of the American Association, is a more likely choice, and this is strengthened by the knowledge that he was a close second choice when Johnson was appointed late last season.

Willie Kamm's chances of succeeding Johnson are based on a common belief he is one of the smartest players in the American League. A veteran of many seasons, he is a defensive star at the third-base sack, and is boasting a batting average close to .340 this season.

He is well liked by his fellow players and, with youngsters holding down all the other infield posts, Kamm is the present balance wheel of the Tribe's defense.

Red Sox Score Nine In 1st; Rout Chisox

Homers by Johnson, Cissell Net Seven; Score, 16-3.

Chicago, July 18 (AP).—Scoring nine runs in the first inning, seven of them on homers by Roy Johnson and Bill Cissell, the former's with two on and the latter's with the bases loaded, the Boston Red Sox ran over the White Sox, 16 to 3, today to take the series, three games to one.

Rick Ferrell and Dusty Cooke also hit homers for the Red Sox.

Cissell, a former member of the White Sox, hit a double as well as his four-run homer in the big first, later adding a second double.

U. S. Davis Netmen At Peak of Game

All but Lott Train Hard at London for Australians.

London, July 18 (AP).—While George Lott took the day off to prevent going stale, the other three members of the United States Davis Cup team—Lester Stoefen, Sidney B. Wood, jr., and Frank Shields—put in a hard afternoon of work with R. Norris Williams today in preparing for the interzone play with Australia this week-end.

The veteran team captain first rallied a half-hour with the two giants of the squad, Stoefen and Shields, and then Stoefen went through a hard workout with R. A. Millon, French professional, who is helping to get the team into condition. Wood played a full set at a stiff pace with Shields.

"They are all at the top of their game," said Williams. "I repeat that if we are beaten this year, it won't be because the boys are not in condition."

The Australian team, led by Jack Crawford, appeared a few minutes after the Americans left the courts. They took an easy workout, lasting several hours.

Quantico to Sponsor Nine in Legion Series

Quantico, Va., July 18 (Spl.).—The Quantico Junior American Legion baseball team will compete in tourney through the energetic baseball-minded supporters of the American Legion junior team of this city. The Quantico Legion juniors will bear the standards of the Buck Keys Post of Quantico in the forthcoming tourney, leading to the National American Legion junior play-offs to be held later in the season.

The Quantico Legion juniors will leave for the Norfolk National trials on July 25. Despite the staggering odds facing the small-town nine from Quantico, Coach Jim Sisson, a Quantico Indian stand-out player with Ty Kelly, youthful Randolph Macon College start assisting him, hope to have the Quantico team well among the leaders when the final reckoning play-off date is carded.

Perry, Wilde Eye U. S. Tennis Title

British Body Will Send Net Pair Here for Tourney.

London, July 18 (AP).—Fred Perry, Wimbledon and United States tennis champion, and F. H. D. Wilde, sixth ranking English player, today were officially nominated by the English association to compete in the United States championships at Forest Hills in September.

They also will compete in other American fixtures, as Perry did last year after defeating Jack Crawford in the all-empire final of the American nationals.

Perry also will tour Australia again this winter, the association announced, accompanied by Dorothy Round, the Wimbledon woman's singles champion; Evelyn Dearman and Nancy Lyle.

Betty Nuthall, Fred James and Katherine Stammers previously had been nominated to compete in the American women's championships at Forest Hills in August.

Mistor Lands $3,500 Stakes at Newmarket

Newmarket, England, July 18 (U.P.).—Mrs. Washington Singer's Mistor won today's running of the Falmouth Stakes, beating out eight other 3-year-old fillies over the mile.

Z. G. Michalinoss' Zelina, the 6-4 favorite, finished second, 1½ lengths behind Mistor, and the Aga Khan's Mrs. Rustom was third, 4 lengths further back.

Betting was 11 to 4 on Mistor and 100 to 8 on Mrs. Rustom.

The winning purse aggregated about $3,500.

Giants Down Cubs to Add To Lead

Six-Run Rally in Third Is Big Help in 8-6 Win; Now Three Ahead.

Luque's Relief Hurling Saves Day as Cubs K.O. Fitzsimmons.

POLO GROUNDS, New York, July 18 (AP).—The Giants made it 3 out of 5 for the series with the Cubs, and increased their hold on first place to three full games, by taking today's final from the Chicagoans by a score of 8 to 6.

Fred Fitzsimmons received credit for the victory, though he was shelled off the mound during a four-run rally by the visitors in the seventh.

Lique's relief pitching saved the day and helped earn Fitzsimmons his sixth straight victory and his twelfth of the season.

Six-Run Giant Rally.

A six-run concentrated attack by the champions on Bush and Root in the third inning spelled the Cubs' downfall. Ott banged his twenty-second homer in this session off Root, with a man aboard. Vergez, who contributed a double play to drive over a run in this big session, hit into the seats in the eighth inning, off Tenning, for his third home run of the year.

Empire Dope Upset To Miss Merriment

6-1 Shot Sets Hot Pace and Beats Only One Easily.

Empire City Race Track, July 18 (AP).—Miss Merriment, fleet filly from Victor Emmanuel's Dorwood Stable, upset the dope when she registered an easy victory in the short 6 furlongs of the Chevalier Purse here today. In contrast to her last local effort, the daughter of High Time broke like the wind and set a sizzling pace, outrunning a smart field with ease to score by two lengths in 1:08 4-5. Mrs. Deering Howe's Only One took the place by four lengths from E. R. Bradley's Brother Joe.

Open Range, split favorite at 13 to 5 with the dull running of Gentle Knight, tired chasing the pace and wound up just out of the money. Miss Merriment was quoted at 6 to 1. She went to the front in a few strides and quickly asserted her superiority, never being in danger. Brother Joe, Only One and Open Range took turns in trying to overhaul the flying filly, but none of them was a match for the Dorwood miss. Only One held on better than the others and was an easy second.

2 Women's Net Upsets Mark Manchester Play

Manchester, Mass., July 18 (AP).—The Essex County Women's invitation tournament cracked wide open today and two unseeded players qualified for the semifinals in the first two matches of the day. Ruby Bishop, of Los Angeles, upset the second-seeded Marjorie Sachs, of Cambridge, 6—1, 6—3, and Nora Taubele, of New York, eliminated Mae Ceurvorst, of Wichita, Kans., seeded fourth, 6—4, 5—7, 7—5.

The top-seeded Mrs. Marjorie Morill Painter, of Dedham, who won here in 1932, qualified for the semifinals by defeating Catherine Wolfe, a young Chicago player, 6—1, 12—10.

Jane Sharp, of Los Angeles, put out Mrs. Mary Greef Harris, of Kansas City, in straight sets, 6—1, 6—1, for the fourth place in the semifinals.

Indians Win Over Yanks By 15-14

Averill's Single Wins After N. Y. Rallies; Ruth Injured.

CLEVELAND, July 18 (AP).—The New York Yankees suffered a double setback today. They lost the fourth and final game of their series with the Cleveland Indians, bowing 15 to 14 in a wild slugfest, and the services of Babe Ruth, who was struck in the leg with a batted ball and will be out of the game for two weeks.

Going into the final inning, trailing 12 to 9, the Yanks rallied to score five runs. They contrived them from singles by Dixie Walker and Red Rolfe, pinch hitters, and Earl Combs and Ben Chapman, an outfield fly by Hoag, an error by Hale and a late throw by Lee.

Kamm Gets Double.

Kamm opened Cleveland's half of the ninth with a double to center. At this point Manager Joe McCarthy yanked Jimmy Deshong and replaced him with Vernon (Lefty) Gomez, who was the fifth Yankee pitcher. Pytlak tripled to center, scoring Kamm and Holland doubled off the right field screen, scoring Pytlak and tying the score. Rice bunted and Holland was out at third. Rice stole second and Rolfe made a great stop of Knickerbocker's grounder, throwing him out at first with Rice advancing to third. Earl Averill, who previously had propelled a home run, singled off the right field screen, scoring Rice with the winning run.

Averill's timely blow cost Gomez his third defeat of the year. Cleveland used six pitchers, Belve Bean, the last to enter the fray, being the winner.

Ruth Is Batted Out.

Ruth was decommissioned in the third inning when he was struck by a smashing drive off the bat of Lou Gehrig as the former home-run king was running from first to second. The force of the blow knocked Ruth down and he had to be assisted off the field.

Dr. M. H. Castle, the Indians' team physician, said Ruth suffered a severe contusion of the left shinbone and advised that the big fellow remain off his feet for at least a week. Dr. Castle said it would be advisable for Ruth to stay out of the game for two weeks.

St. Bernard Near Mark In Arlington Feature

Arlington Park, Ill., July 18 (AP).—Jumping to the front in the Lake Bluff Purse at 5½ furlongs at Arlington Park today, E. D. Shaffer's St. Bernard raced to a brilliant victory by conquering five other fashionable 2-year-olds. Struggling four lengths back of the triumphant animal came the Warm Stable's Midvictorian and Hal Price Headley's Fraidy Cat.

The Brookmeade Stable's World Series, and the favorite, ran a dull race, finishing far back of the leaders.

Jockey Don Meade rode St. Bernard, which ran the distance in 1:04 2-5, within one-fifth of a second of the record turned in by Crowning Glory.

St. Bernard paid $8.92 in the mutuels.

All Runs in Last 2 Rounds of Opener; Jordan, Whitney Star in Nightcap.

BOSTON, July 18 (AP).—The Boston Braves were on the winning end of a double feature today, defeating the Pittsburgh Pirates, 3-1 and 7-5, and clinching the series, 3-2.

Both teams were scoreless in the first game until the eighth when a single by Spohrer, Jordan's double and a pass to Berger filled the bases with two out. A double by Lee scored all three. Pittsburgh made its only run in the ninth on Traynor's two-bagger and Thevenow's single.

Jordan, Whitney Star.

The batting of Jordan and Whitney was the big factor in the Braves' second win. Whitney drove in three runs, one with a single and two with a double, while Jordan made a single and two triples.

Teralice Captures Feature at Rockingham Park for Third Triumph in a Row

High Glee Up To Get Place Money

Winner of $2,500 Race Has 2-Length Lead; Pays $14.90 to $2.

Takes Lead at Stretch Turn; Flying Sailor Finishes Third.

SALEM, N. H., July 18 (AP).—Teralice, a 4-year-old son of Terry, carried Abe Bartelstein's silks to his third straight victory in accounting for the $2,500 White Mountain Handicap at 6 furlongs over the Rockingham Park course today.

Taking the lead at the head of the stretch, Teralice, under the guidance of Louis Schaefer, easily left his five rivals far behind, finishing with 2 lengths to spare over the highly regarded C. V. Whitney filly, High Glee. Mrs. A. A. Baroni's Flying Sailor was a head back in third place, leading to the wire J. W. Y. Martin's Dark Hope, P. F. Ratti's Black Hand and the Wheatley Stable's disappointing Slapdash.

High Glee Fails to Last.

With Sonny Workman in the pilot seat, High Glee showed her usual turn of high speed, stepping away from the barrier in second place and then taking command at the half-mile post. She dropped back to third place at the head of the stretch as Schaefer shot Teralice to the front, but in the run for the judges' stand managed to outstay Flying Sailor. The Baroni 4-year-old was well up with the pace from the start.

Despite a consistent record over the New Hampshire oval, Teralice was neglected in the betting, with the result he went to the post fourth choice and returned $14.90 for $2. High Glee was the 3-to-2 favorite.

Tigers Win, 4-2, Behind Bridges

could not make the former Chattanooga player bite on a third. Gill simply stood there, bat on shoulder, and his patience was rewarded as Bridges tossed a fourth ball around his ankles, forcing over Schulte.

The Bridges man appeared to be on the verge of a collapse, but he regained his composure and forced Kress to roll to Gehringer who choked off Gill at second.

Until the eighth inning, Tommy was pretty much of a phantom to the Nationals. They knew he was out there and nothing more.

Detroit assumed the lead in the fourth inning on singles by Gehringer, Rogell and Owen's double to right-center. Owen also batted in another run in the eighth with a single to left that scored Gehringer.

The Tigers' winning run, however, crossed the plate in the fifth when Walker singled to center field, shoving Bridges around from second, whence he arrived after his own single and Fox's sacrifice.

Cronin Thrown Out.

"Brick" Owen's questionable decision cost Washington the tying run in the eighth when he waved Cronin out at the plate on Goslin's throw to Hayworth. It was close, but Hayworth was behind the pan and from the press box Joe appeared to skid safely under him.

Cronin was trying to follow Manush home on Sewell's single. Heinie had opened the frame with his only hit of the game, a single, reached second on Travis' single to center, and got to third as Cronin forced Cecil at the keystone. Bridges passed Kress and then Sewell singled, but 'twas an ill wind that wafted Goslin's throw in to the plate.

Chesapeake Ball Club Wins 25th of Season

West Point, Va., July 18 (Spl.).—The Chesapeake Baseball Team chalked up its twenty-fifth consecutive game here today when it trounced the Portsmouth Firemen A. C., 5-0. Owen Elliott, on the mound for the West Pointers, allowed five widely scattered hits and struck out four. He was never in trouble, his teammates playing perfect ball behind him. Elliott made the only error made by his team, Dee Evans, with three singles, and Chic Tomko, with a pair of one-base knocks, led the locals in hitting. Sam Kee, Portsmouth hurler, pitched great ball for his team, but poor support gave West Point four of its five runs.

Chesapeake plays the Richmond Colts here Friday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock in game that is expected to break all attendance records for the local park.

Score by innings:

Portsmouth	000	000	000	—0	5	2
Chesapeake	104	000	00x	—5	8	1

Batteries—Portsmouth, Kee and Roop. Chesapeake, Elliott and Stewart.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—PAPER MOON, $12.50, $7.70, $4.90; BUY STRAIGHT, $35.20, $11.70; HOME LOAN, $2.90.

PAPER MOON, never far back from the pace, came gamely through the stretch, wore down the leader and was going away at the finish. BUY STRAIGHT, hustled to the front, drew clear, was placed under intermittent punishment, held on well, but was unable to keep pace when challenged. HOME LOAN was prominently placed all the way and held on stubbornly in the drives. JUSTA JANE, shuffled back at the start, closed a big gap. YENOOR showed a good effort. BROWN TWIG tired. COLORIST was never a factor. GREAT MASTER faltered after breaking forwardly. TIPPO TIP was unable to enter into contention.

SECOND RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $800; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 3:07. Off at 3:09½. Winner, G. S. Harrison's (Jr.) ch. g. Two-dollar mutuels paid—MIGRATORY, $29.50, $15, $6.10; MEETING PLACE, $14.50, $6.90; MAYVITE, $3.10.

MIGRATORY, in the forefront from the beginning and racing with MEETING PLACE throughout the entire last half mile, outlasted the latter at the end. MEETING PLACE had good speed, assumed a brief lead approaching the stretch and, despite holding on tenaciously, was unable to maintain his advantage. MAYVITE, restrained early, closed with good energy through the stretch. TWIDGETS, all up, was unable to improve his position in the final drive. PRECIOUS LITTLE faltered after showing early speed. RETRIBUTION, slow to settle into her best stride, was unable to improve her position to any great extent when placed under punishment.

THIRD RACE—Five furlongs. Purse, $800; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won handily; place, driving. Went to post at 3:40. Off at 3:46½. Winner, E. B. Fike's b. f. Two-dollar mutuels paid—GAY BANNER, $5.50, $3.40, $2.70; DISTRIBUTE, $4.90, $3; KAI-FINN, $2.50.

GAY BANNER drew clear in the first furlong, was rated along in front under steadying restraint and was never seriously threatened. DISTRIBUTE, unable to keep pace early, came fast in the stretch run. KAI FINN, in closest attendance of the winner for the greater part of the way, weakened slightly through the last furlong and lost the place in the last stride. RACE STREET, unruly at the post, came willingly at the end. KHAMAIN had early speed, but faltered badly in the last furlong.

FOURTH RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $2,500; added. The White Mountain Handicap. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won ridden out; place, driving. Went to post at 4:17½. Off at 4:25. Winner, A. Two-dollar mutuels paid—TERALICE, $14.90, $5.40, $3.10; HIGH GLEE, $4.10, $2.60; FLYING SAILOR, $2.70.

TERALICE was not hurried during the opening quarter mile, moved up stoutly on the outside after rounding the far turn, wore down the leaders approaching the furlong pole and, hard ridden, drew out steadily at the end. HIGH GLEE, unruly at the post, shook off BLACK HAND, saved ground at the stretch turn and, under stout handling, outlasted FLYING SAILOR, though unable to keep pace when the winner challenged. FLYING SAILOR, restrained early, held on stubbornly through the stretch. DARK HOPE was going strongly at the finish. BLACK HAND faltered after showing early speed. SLAPDASH, prominently place early, was pinched back going the first quarter mile.

FIFTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $1,200. The Andover Claiming Handicap. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 4:53½. Off at 4:54. Winner, Mrs. Burks' ch. g. (4), by Busy American—Rollage. Trained by J. Burks. Value to winner, $850; second, $200; third, $100; fourth, $50.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—FLYING CADET, $8.90, $4.30, $2.80; MUMSIE, $5.70, $3.40; RIDGEVIEW, $2.80.

FLYING CADET, steaded along in pursuit of the pace for the first half mile, responded gamely when called upon, worked on RIDGEVIEW for the lead and drew out fast in the stretch. MUMSIE, taken back of the pace in the run down the back stretch, moved up gamely in the last quarter mile and closed with good energy, though no match for the winner. RIDGEVIEW threw away into a good lead, rated along in front, but faltered slightly through the closing quarter mile. ARROWSWIFT, under restraint for the first six furlongs, came very wide at the stretch turn and closed determinedly. STAR FIRE, well placed early, while racing on the outside, faltered in the last three furlongs.

SIXTH RACE—One and one-eighth miles. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won easily; place, same. Went to post at 5:24½. Off at 5:26½. Winner, H. H. Brown's ch. g. (5), by Cherokee—Ruth S. Trained by owner. Value to winner, $750; second, $150; third, $75; fourth, $25.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—ADOBE POST, $10.60, $3.80, out; BIFF, $6.10 out; OLD DEPOT, out.

ADOBE POST followed in nearest attendance of the pace while racing restrained, went to the front when called upon and drew out as if much the best. BIFF had speed from the start and continued gamely after being passed by the winner. OLD DEPOT, up to the last furlong only of the eight starters, was placed under intermittent punishment when leaving the back stretch, but was unable to improve his position to any great extent. FABIUS, away slowly and forced wide at the first turn, was never prominent.

SEVENTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $800; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won ridden out; place, same. Went to post at 5:57. Off at 5:58½. Winner, Mrs. R. T. Flippen's b. c. (4), by Bubbling Over—Belittlin. Trained by T. Flippen. Value to winner, $600; second, $125; third, $50; fourth, $25. Time, 0:24, 0:48, 1:13 4-5, 1:46 2-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—BELOW COST, $5.50, $3.20, $2.30; ROCK POINT, $4, $2.80; ALLOTMENT, $2.70.

BELOW COST, restrained for the first half mile, moved up steadily thereafter, came to the outside in the stretch and, closing fast, wore down the leaders and was going away at the end. ROCK POINT, restrained early, moved up fast on the outside approaching the far turn and held on gamely in the final drive. ALLOTMENT drew away into a long lead, but weakened through the closing quarter mile. LAURETTA NASH, well placed early, was unable to keep up. TUFFY G. was always outrun. OLAMAY was never prominent.

EIGHTH RACE—One Mile. Purse, $800; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 6:35. Off at 6:38½. Winner, J. S. Summers' b. g. (4), by Happy Argo—Salvestra. Trained by owner. Value to winner, $600; second, $125; third, $50; fourth, $25. Time, 0:24 1-5, 0:48 2-5, 1:13 3-5, 1:40.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—RHODIUS, $7.10, $3.20, $2.60; COLD SPILL, $3.20, $2.60; LUCKIN, $5.20.

RHODIUS, slow to begin, worked his way up steadily, closed gamely in the last quarter mile and outlasted COLD SPILL at the end. The latter, restrained early, closed fast through the stretch and just failed to be up in time. LUCK IN had speed from the start, but was unable to withstand the pace when challenged. HERNANDO, well up early, dropped back in the run down the back stretch, came to the outside rounding the far turn, but was unable to reach the leaders. KIBITZER moved up fast approaching the half mile ground, but weakened badly in the closing quarter mile.

Stocks Rally 1.3 Points in Buying Drive

New York, July 18 (AP).—While volume remained around the recent minimum, the weight of trading in stocks shifted to the buying side today and a slow rally ensued.

Having exhibited some concern earlier in the week over the San Francisco strike and fear that it would spread, the market seemed to take its cue for the recovery from over-night news of the proposal to arbitrate the San Francisco situation.

Buyers continued to discriminate closely with the result that a few issues stood out prominently for strength, although gains were general at the close. Rail shares, leaders of the decline in the two preceding sessions, recovered with the rest of the list.

Sales Volume Down.

Trading in stocks declined to 490,360 shares on the stock exchange compared with 616,650 yesterday. The Standard Statistics Co. average for 90 stocks closed 1.3 points higher at 78.1.

Among the notable strong issues were Philip Morris, Eastman Kodak, Lily-Tulip Cup and United States Smelting & Refining, all up 1½ to more than 4 points to new 1934 tops.

Chemical shares were strong. Du Pont, Columbian Carbon and Union Carbide sold up 1 to 2 points. Leading motors rallied for gains of more than a point while further liquidation came into some low-priced members of the group. Packard touched the lowest price recorded this year at 3. American Can, up 1¾; J. I. Case, up 2¾; Hazel Atlas Glass, up 2, and United States Industrial Alcohol, up 2, were among the best gainers.

Extreme Gains Cut.

Profit-taking pared extreme gains of leading commodities. Wheat and corn closed ⅜ to ⅞ of a cent a bushel higher. Rye ended off ¼ to up 1. Cotton held 15 to 35 cents a bale of its earlier advance and bar silver was marked up ¼ of a cent an ounce to 46⅝ cents.

While signs of broadening of the recent movement toward new financing were awaited as a stimulus to business recovery, the bond market held to a steady course.

Wall Street derived some hope from the prediction of Ernest T. Weir, chairman of the National Steel Corporation, that steel business would begin to show improvement by the middle of August.

Foreign Markets.

(Associated Press.)

London—Quotations on the stock exchange today developed a better tendency. Renewed light buying improved gold mining shares, oils and industrials. Gilt-edge securities and home rails were maintained, while transatlantic issues hardened. The market closed steady.

Paris—San Francisco labor troubles exerted a depressing effect upon the bourse, which showed declines in prices throughout the list. Rentes were slightly lower. The closing was heavy and inactive.

Berlin—Prices on the boerse were weak and irregular, Dawes loan issues sagging.

Robey's Review

Finance Economics Business

Growth of Bank Deposits While Trade and Prices Remain Stagnant Indicates the Force of Deflationary Elements in New Deal.

There probably is no better way to make clear the conflicting forces in the New Deal than to analyze what is taking place in the deposits of our banks in relation to the trend of trade and prices. Such an analysis shows beyond all reasonable doubt that the recovery program is a combination of inflationary and deflationary forces. So far the conflicting elements have just about offset one another, sometimes one getting the upper hand, sometimes the other. Ultimately, of course, this balance will be broken and our entire economy will be subjected either to a rapid inflation or to drastic deflation.

For purposes of such an analysis one has to use the figures on deposits for the weekly reporting member banks. Complete figures for the banking system are not available. The reporting banks, nevertheless, compose between 40 and 50 per cent of the entire banking system so it is safe to assume that they are representative.

Rapid Growth of Deposits Started Last November.

Starting about the first of last November the deposits in these reporting member banks began a rapid increase. The aggregate of demand deposits at that time, November 8, was $10,531,000,000. The growth has continued almost without interruption up to the present. The total on July 11, the latest figure, was $12,641,000,000. This is an increase in 35 weeks of $2,110,000,000. On an average weekly basis this amounts to $60,000,000. If we assume that these reporting banks compose 50 per cent of the entire banking system and that the rate of increase has been equally rapid in all banks, this indicates an average weekly increase of $120,000,000.

To appreciate what such an increase of deposits means in our banking system in relation to the business system the growth in two earlier periods may be mentioned. Between June, 1914, and June, 1920, a period during which our price level advanced from 100 to 250, the average weekly increase of deposits in all banks was $61,000,000. Between June, 1921, and June, 1929, a period during which we had the greatest capital inflation in the history of the country, the average weekly increase of deposits in the entire banking system was $43,000,000.

Rate Almost Twice That During War Inflation.

For about nine months, then, the deposits in our banking system have been increasing at a rate approximately twice as great as during the commodity inflation leading to the collapse in 1920, and almost three times as great as during the capital inflation leading to the collapse of 1929. Neither our commodity price level nor the value of securities, however, is appreciably different today than it was last November. We have been inflating at an incredible rate, but it simply has not been effective.

The reason it has not been effective is that the New Deal contains so many depressing influences and is the cause of so much uncertainty that neither trade nor prices can move ahead with any vigor. Business men still are unconvinced that recovery definitely and incontrovertibly is here. They are afraid to make plans. Next week or next month, so far as they know, the entire situation may change.

The result is that what the Government is doing in the direction of inflation is being offset by what it is doing in the direction of deflation. Our economic system is being pulled in two directions at once, with the net effect that we are getting nowhere.

Power Production Rises During Week

New York, July 18 (AP).—Production of electricity last week totaled 1,647,680,000 kilowatt hours, compared with 1,555,844,000 kilowatt hours the week before, the Edison Electric Institute reported today.

There was no change from a year ago, compared with an increase of 1.1 per cent shown the week before.

Regional changes from 1933 for last week were:

New England, 9.8 per cent decline compared with a drop of 11.3 per cent the week before; Middle Atlantic, 2.7 per cent increase, against 5.8 per cent rise; Central Industrial, 1.0 per cent drop, against a drop of 0.3 per cent; West Central, 0.7 rise, against 1.6 increase; Southern States, 4.2 per cent drop, against 4.2 per cent decline; Rocky Mountain, 0.2 rise, against 1.7 rise; Pacific Coast, 10.5 rise, against 11.9 rise.

Gold Statement.

New York, July 18 (AP).—Today's gold statement of the New York Federal Reserve Bank showed imports of $2,315,800 from Canada and England. There were no exports. Monetary gold stocks of the country gained $350,000 through a decrease of stocks held under earmark for foreign account.

Bonds' Effort To Rise Nipped In Profit Sales

Selected List Is Unchanged as Trading Drops to $11,184,000.

New York, July 18 (AP).—The bond market showed some signs of resuming its upward movement today, but the advance was halted by profit taking in the afternoon and minor gains and losses were about even at the close.

The trading volume was still restricted, transfers totaling $11,184,000, par value, compared with $11,982,000 yesterday. The Standard Statistics Co. average for 60 domestic corporate issues was unchanged at 86.8.

While traders seemed to take a more hopeful view of the Western labor situation, there was considerable hesitancy exhibited in the matter of expanding commitments at the present price levels.

Some Loans Step Up.

A few loans, however, stepped up into new high territory for the past year or more on limited transactions. Among these were Container Corporation 6s, up 3½ points at 97½; Indiana, Illinois & Iowa 4s, up 3¼ at 97, and Morris & Essex 4½s, up ¾ at 97¾.

Improvement was shown by some issues of Walworth, Union Pacific, Standard Oils of New Jersey and New York, Southern Railway, Southern Pacific, St. Joseph Lead, Postal Telegraph, Pennsylvania Railroad, Northern States Power, N. Y. Central, National Dairy, Loew's International Telephone, Interborough Rapid Transit, Hudson Coal, General Steel Castings, Erie, St. Paul, Burlington, California Packing, Santa Fe and Armour & Co.

Moderate declines were registered by a few bonds of American Telephone, Chicago & North Western, Cincinnati Union Terminal, Illinois Central, Kansas Gas, New Haven, Philadelphia Co., Utilities Power & Light ad Western Pacific.

Federal Loans Recover.

U. S. Government Securities recovered 1-32d to 7-32ds of a point, with Treasury 3s of 1951-55 showing the greatest activity. The turnover here amounted to about $2,980,000 against $3,440,000 in the previous session.

Foreign obligations were again mixed. This was especially true of the German list.

While the Dawes plan 7s advanced a point to 50⅞, the Young plan 5½s eased ⅜ at 36⅝. There was still much confusion regarding the interest status of these two issues. Firmness was shown by loans of Argentina, Japan and Australia.

Curb's Prices Move Higher; Market Steady

Gains Range to 2 Points; Fajardo Sugar Jumps 11 Units.

New York, July 18 (AP).—Steadiness in most sections of the curb market today carried prices generally higher, with few exceptions, and at the close gains of ½ to more than 2 points were frequent in the specialty, oil and utility groups.

Fajardo Sugar, strong in the last few weeks, scored an extreme gain of 11 points to close at 102.

American Gas closed at 26⅛, up ½; Creole Petroleum, 12⅞, up ⅛; Distillers Corporation Seagrams, 13½; up 1; Electric Bond & Share, 14⅛, up ⅜; Great Atlantic and Pacific, 136½, up 4½; Glen Alden, 24, up 1¼; Hiram Walker, 30, up ½; International Petroleum, 28¼, up ¾; Eureka Pipe Line, 37, up 3; Mead Johnson, 60, up 1¾; National Container, 37⅞, up 1⅛; Pioneer Gold, 13¾, up ¾; Safety Car, 75¾, up 1¼; Standard Oil of Indiana, 27⅛, up ⅛; U. S. Foil "B," 12¾, up 1¼.

595 Corporations Increase Net Earnings 45 Per Cent

New York, July 18.—Corporate managements were faced during 1933 with a series of abrupt changes in the economic situation, many of them having no precedent in corporate history, and all of them occurring with such rapidity as to tax ingenuity to the utmost. That the policies adopted to meet these shifts have proved adequate in the majority of cases is amply evident in the composite operating results of 595 leading corporations which have been brought together in composite income accounts and balance sheets for 1932 and 1933 in the annual earnings bulletin of the Standard Statistics Co., of New York, just issued. The bulletin also contains composite income accounts and balance sheets for a lesser number of corporations for which comparable figures are available back to 1927, as well as figures for the individual companies.

The first quarter of 1933 was characterized mainly by a continuation of the long deflationary trend, necessitating the maintenance of policies which had proved most advantageous during the preceding years of the depression. In the second quarter of last year, the abrupt rise in public confidence, raw material price levels and in sales volumes made the policy of low inventories and debt liquidation no longer tenable. In fact, the heavy cash resources which had previously accumulated were put to prompt use in providing working capital for financing expanding operations when other means of obtaining capital were barred.

Another change in policy became necessary in the second half, when higher costs and increasing sales resistance to the retail price advances necessitated under code operations created a temporary excess of merchandise stocks and forced a curtailment of manufacturing activities under conditions of narrow unit profit margins.

Net profit of the 595 industrial, railroad and utility corporations covered in the composite income account was $2,124,000,000 in 1933, against $1,461,000,000 in 1932. This increase of 45 per cent resulted in a gain of 236 per cent in net income because of the static factor of fixed charges. Net income in 1933 was $972,000,000, against $289,000,000 the year before.

The total reduction in dividends during the year amounted to some 20 per cent from 1932, but even with this curtailment and better operating results there was no surplus for the year, but rather a consolidated loss, after dividends and reconciliation of surplus debits and credits, of $391,000,000. This more than a third of a billion dollars loss, however, compares very favorably with the 1932 record, when the loss was $1,603,000,000.

The Dollar Abroad

(Associated Press.)

The dollar was generally a little higher in European exchange markets yesterday.

In London the American rate gained 3-16 of a cent, to $5.03 13-16 to the pound, while the latter declined ⅛ of a cent in New York, to $5.03⅞.

The price of bar gold advanced a penny in London, to 138 shillings a fine ounce (equivalent to $34.78), and an amount valued at about $776,352 was purchased.

The dollar rose a centime in Paris to the equivalent of 6.60 cents to the franc. The French currency dipped .00¾ of a cent in New York, to 6.60⅛ cents.

Trade Trends.

Retail Trade—Owing to the peristent hot and dry weather, merchandise in consumers' hands is rapidly losing its utility, and replacement of such goods has relieved the ordinary seasonal decline in sales, according to Standard Statistics Co. A fall buying movement of substantial proportions was said to be looked for within the next few weeks.

Dyestuffs—Continuation of a fair demand from rubber tire manufacturers and chemical processors has helped the benzol market to retain a fairly moderate undertone. A lower level of output at the by-product ovens was said to have materially aided in giving the market a better appearance.

Canned Foods—The strike on the Pacific Coast has affected canned goods business in the East, it was stated in wholesale circles, with most new buying deferred pending settlement of the industrial strife. In a general way it was stated that stocks are adequate at the moment but a continuation of the difficulty might change the situation and cause a general revision of the price structure.

Pig Iron—Pig iron producers were said to be of the opinion that third quarter sales would be the smallest for any quarter in several years. The inactivity was attributed to the fact that June shipments were the largest on record.

Prices of Retail Foods Reveal Slight Increases

The Labor Department yesterday reported a slight increase in retail food prices during the two weeks ended July 1. The department's index number for the two weeks was 109.6, as compared with 109.1 the previous two weeks. One hundred represents prices in 1913.

Of 42 articles included in the survey, 18 went up, 8 dropped and 16 did not change. Among items increasing were pork chops, bacon, ham, eggs, steak, lard, oleomargarine and sugar.

The index two years ago stood at 101.

A. T. & T. Body Accepts Thayer's Resignation

New York, July 18 (AP).—Directors of the American Telephone & Telegraph Co. today accepted the designation of Eugene V. R. Thayer as a director.

Mr. Thayer, who has been a member of the board since 1910, resigned because he recently became a member of a brokerage firm and the corporation has a long-standing policy not to include on its board members of Stock Exchange firms.

Daily Oil Yield Is Increased 36,450 Barrels

New York, July 18 (AP).—Daily average gross crude oil production in the United States increased 36,450 barrels in the week ended July 14, totaling 2,600,750 barrels, the American Petroleum Institute's weekly summary indicates. Daily average production east of California increased 19,750 barrels to 2,071,550 barrels.

Refineries representing 89.7 per cent of estimated total capacity, operated at 71.3 per cent of their capacity, reported daily average runs of crude oil to stills as 2,406,000 barrels. Daily average the previous week for refineries representing 89.7 per cent of total, operated at 69.4 per cent of capacity, was 2,341,000 barrels.

Finished gasoline stocks at refineries totaled 32,113,000 barrels, against 32,147,000.

Daily average cracked gasoline by refineries representing 95.6 per cent of total charging capacity was 481,000 barrels. Daily average the previous week by refineries representing 95.6 per cent of total was 459,000 barrels.

Imports of crude and refined oils at principal United States ports totaled 1,086,000 barrels, a daily average of 155,143 barrels, against 932,000 barrels, a daily average of 133,143 barrels for the previous week.

Wheat Joins Other Grains In Advances

Corn and Rye Reach New Highs; Buyers Are Cautious.

Chicago, July 18 (AP).—Higher quotations on all grains formed the rule today, with corn and rye reaching new top records for the season, but with buyers increasingly cautious.

The principal fresh upward impetus for values came from Canadian reports of severe damage to wheat crops of the prairie provinces largely as a result of widening drought and excessive heat.

Unofficial estimates today placed the 1934 probable production of wheat in these provinces as low as 228,000,000 bushels, against an expectation of 350,000,000 bushels a few weeks ago.

Wheat Closes Firm.

Wheat closed firm, ⅜ to ⅞ above yesterday's finish; corn, ⅜ to ⅞ up; oats, unchanged to ¼ higher, and provisions at 5 to 10 cents decline.

From the outset, the wheat market here was bullishly influenced by Canadian official announcement that reports of crop conditions in the prairie provinces were pessimistic almost without exception. Advices at hand told of temperatures in the provinces above 100 degrees, and said there was crying need for rain both sides of the international border.

Special notice was taken of authoritative Canadian trade reports that contrary to expectations wheat crops never recovered from hardships encountered during May, and that between 5,000,000 and 6,000,000 acres in southern territory, mainly Saskatchewan, would not even produce seed.

Heat and Drought.

Corn, oats and other grains reflected knowledge of unabated heat and drought Southwest and West, with no relief in sight for the corn crop of that region. On the other hand, corn prospects have improved in the Central States, and the indicated production in Iowa, Illinois, Indiana and Ohio is now unofficially estimated at 52,000,000 bushels more than the Government's latest forecast.

Including five Southwestern States, however, the country's probable yield of corn is 170,000,000 bushels less than on July 1.

Primary domestic receipts of wheat today were not so liberal as of late, arrivals of winter wheat at 11 markets totaling but 1,051 cars. Milling demand, though, was relatively slow, buyers being disposed to back away from offerings to arrive.

Provisions sagged late, responsive to action of hog values.

Bankers Acceptances Fall.

New York, July 18 (AP).—The American Acceptance Council states that bankers acceptances outstanding at the end of June totaled $534,193,248, a reduction of $152,481,202 from the amount outstanding on the same date a year ago. The June 30 total was the lowest in recent years, and was due, it was stated, to a severe decline in acceptances reported by New York City banks.

James Elected Member of Rotary Club

Building and Loan Leader to Represent His Group in Fraternity.

C. Clinton James, prominent in local and National building and loan circles, who has been elected to the Rotary Club under the building and loan classification of membership, met with their club for the first time yesterday.

Mr. James is a director and counsel of the Columbia Permanent Building Association of the District of Columbia, which he helped to organize January 1, 1903. He was president of the District of Columbia Building and Loan League from 1921 to 1923, and has been a member of its executive committee since 1917.

He was president of the United States Building and Loan League in 1925, being the first and only resident of the District of Columbia to be elected to that office. Mr. James was appointed chairman of the Federal legislative committee of the United States Building and Loan League in 1922, and has served continuously in that position to the present time.

He is a life member of the executive committee of the United States Building and Loan League by reason of having been a past president.

John R. Waller, president of International Bank and a member of the executive committee of the International Finance Corporation, has been elected a director and vice president of National Refinance Corporation.

The Bank Women's Club of Washington will hold its July meeting on Saturday, July 21, at the summer home of one of its members, Miss Constance Fogle, at Long Point on the Severn. Members and guests will undoubtedly enjoy the informal meeting and picnic supper.

Paris Assured Payment Of Interest on Bonds

Paris, July 18 (AP).—French holders of Dawes and Young loan bonds were assured of the payment of their interest today by a Franco-German agreement reached in Berlin guaranteeing Germany a favorable balance in her trade with France.

The arrangement, which is expected to be signed soon, promises that the French will buy enough German goods to give Germany a balance of about 200,000,000 francs ($13,200,000) annually after the imports from France and the bonds' interest—amounting to about 150,000,000 francs ($9,900,000) annually—are paid.

Crude Rubber Consumption Is Cut Slightly

Imports for June Rise 118.6 Per Cent Over Period in '33.

New York, July 18.—Consumption of crude rubber by manufacturers in the United States for the month of June amounted to 40,242 long tons, which compares with 43,012 long tons for May. June consumption shows a decrease of 6.4 per cent under May and 20.7 per cent below June a year ago, according to statistics released by the Rubber Manufacturers Association today. Consumption for June (1933) was reported to be 50,743 (revised) long tons.

This organization reports imports of crude rubber for June to be 49,683 long tons, an increase of 3.6 per cent over May and 118.6 per cent above June, 1933.

This association estimates total domestic stocks of crude rubber on hand June 30, at 358,149 long tons, which compares with May 31 stocks of 351,329 long tons. June 30 stocks show an increase of 1.9 per cent above May 31 stocks, and 6.5 per cent above stocks of June 30.

The participants in the statistical compilation report 46,698 long tons of crude rubber afloat for the United States ports on June 30, compared with 57,921 long tons afloat on May 31 this year and 63,608 long tons afloat on June 30, 1933.

June reclaimed rubber consumption is estimated to be 9,459 long tons, production 10,820 long tons, stocks on hand June 30, 23,664 long tons.

Store Sales Increase.

New York, July 18 (AP).—Sales of First National Stores, Inc., in the five weeks ended June 30, totaled $10,801,453, compared with $10,288,497 in the same period a year ago, an increase of 4.99 per cent.

Steel Prices Unchanged.

New York, July 18 (A.P.).—Steel prices unchanged.

Steel Inactivity More Marked; Output Gains

Ingot Production Rises to 28 Per Cent in Spite of Slow-Down.

New York, July 18 (AP).—In spite of a 1-point rise in ingot production to 28 per cent of capacity, said the Weekly Iron Age Review today, seasonal inactivity in the steel industry has become more marked.

Factors tending to accentuate the slowdown, according to the review, include the labor situation and renewed unsettlement in the finished steel price situation.

"Marked interest is still focused toward the future," continued the review, "even though orders for sheets and tin plate are holding up better than had been anticipated. The automobile industry has placed some business in the last week and is expected to have covered its entire requirements for the present models by the end of the month.

"Recent price reductions and the current uncertainty regarding the maintenance of present levels offer little incentive to immediate purchases.

"Price revisions during the last three weeks have offered conclusive proof of the fact that the code is not a price fixing medium. Both of the recent reductions in sheets were filed with the industry's code authority by individual mills and came as complete surprises to other producers.

"They were met with reluctance in most instances and indicate very clearly that the code would be powerless to prevent a rapid decline in prices if any one producer felt that prospective tonnage might be encouraged.

"The general strike at San Francisco is having little immediate effect upon the steel industry except as it influences business sentiment generally."

Wall Street Briefs

New York, July 18 (AP).—Owens-Illinois Glass Co. has acquired the outstanding minority interest in the common and preferred stock of Closure Service Co., manufacturers of bottle caps and closures. The company has held substantially all of the preferred and a majority of the common stock since organization of the Closure company in 1923.

Wall street hears there has been a moderate upturn in bookings of structural steel work by subsidiaries of the Bethlehem Steel Corporation. In the past few days orders involving more than 12,000 tons have been placed, according to the reports.

Hot rolled annealed sheets at Gary, Ind., have been reduced $1 a ton in line with other recent changes, according to schedules filed with the American Iron & Steel Institute.

General Foods Votes Dividend On Common

National Biscuit Company Reports Net Income of $3,198,231.

New York, July 18 (AP).—Directors of General Foods Corporation today declared the regular quarterly dividend of 45 cents a share on the common stock, payable August 15 to holders of record August 1.

National Biscuit Co. reports for the quarter ended June 30 net profit of $3,198,231, equivalent after dividends on the preferred stock to 44 cents a share on the common. In the preceding quarter the company earned $3,066,620, or 42 cents on the common, and in the June quarter last year $3,415,597 or 47 cents a share.

For the first half of 1934 net profit was $6,264,851, equal to 86 cents a share on the common stock, compared with $6,498,425, or 89 cents a share in the first half last year.

General Electric Co. reports profit available for common stock in the second quarter was $4,253,595, equal to 15 cents a share, compared with $2,471,031, or 9 cents a share in the second quarter of 1933.

Profit available for the common stock in the first six months was $8,175,557, equal to 28 cents a share, compared with $4,666,080, or 16 cents a share in the initial half of 1933.

As previously reported, orders received during the second quarter amounted to $54,055,988, contrasted with $35,539,858 a year ago.

Sales of American Colortype Co. for the second quarter of 1934 are $1,356,456, as compared with $1,106,725 for the same quarter of 1933.

Sales for the first six months of 1934 are $3,018,255 as compared with $2,508,838 for the first six months of 1933, an increase in sales of 20.3 per cent.

Net income of the New England Telephone Co. in the first six months amounted to $4,107,528, compared with $3,433,375 in the first half of 1933. The 1934 earnings are equal to $3.08 a share against $2.75 last year.

Net operating income of the Chesapeake & Ohio Railroad in June totaled $3,251,740, compared with $3,206,598 in the same month last year. Gross revenues during the month amounted to $9,587,109 contrasted with $9,298,023 a year ago.

For the first six months net operating income was $18,404,726, compared with $14,730,882 a year ago, and gross revenue totaled $55,094,786 against $47,701,618 a year ago.

Directors of Liggett & Myers Tobacco Co. today declared the regular quarterly dividends of $1 each on the common and common B stocks, payable September 1 to stock of record August 15.

A net profit of $249,936 for the June quarter was reported by the Johns-Manville Corporation. This compares with net loss of $76,081 in the first quarter and net profit of $92,204 in the June quarter last year. Profit per share on common stock was 16 cents in the June quarter. For the same period last year the balance was equal to $1.23 a share on the 7 per cent preferred stock.

For the six months ended June 30 the net profit amounted to $173,855, equivalent to $2.32 a share on the preferred stock against net loss of $861,595 in the first half of 1933.

An increase of 17 per cent in earnings available for the common stock was reported today by International Business Machines Corporation for the first half of 1934 as compared with the corresponding period last year. The company reported net earnings for the six months to June 30 last of $3,401,176, including earnings of foreign subsidiaries and after deducting all reserves, depreciation and other charges and estimated Federal taxes. These earnings, which are equivalent to $4.83 a share on 703,345 no par capital shares outstanding, compare with similar earnings of $2,902,012, or $4.12 a share on the same capitalization, for the corresponding six months of 1933.

Chicago, July 18 (Spl.).—Container Corporation of America reports net income of $598,859 for the first half of 1934, after all expenses, including Federal taxes and reserves for year-end adjustments, and before profit on purchase of bonds, debentures and preferred stock. After deduction of current dividend requirements on the preferred stock, these earnings are equivalent to 85 cents a share on the class "A" common stock and 42½ cents a share on the class "B" common stock. Interest requirements on bonds and debentures during the period were earned 3.69 times over after provision for Federal income taxes.

In the first half of 1933 a loss of $240,177 was sustained.

Cleveland, Ohio, July 18 (AP).—The Corrigan-McKinney Steel Co. for the fiscal year ended April 30 reported net profit of $729,050 before depreciation and depletion, which compares with a net loss of $1,494,838 on the same basis for the preceding year.

A net loss of $1,527,237 before elimination of a minority interest is shown in the consolidated report after allowing $1,518,039 for depreciation, $637,470 depletion and $100,777 amortization of development and stripping.

Directors of the Lincoln Service Corporation of Washington, D. C., at their meeting yesterday declared the regular semiannual dividend of 3½ per cent on the preferred stock, payable August 1 to stockholders of record June 30, 1934.

H. Rozier Dulany, jr., was elected to the executive committee of the corporation.

The auditor's report for the first six months of this year, as submitted to the directors, showed an increase in income of the Lincoln Service Corporation of 226 per cent over the first six months of 1933 and 53 per cent over the last six months of 1933.

General Foods Votes Dividend On Common

New York, July 18 (AP).—Directors of General Foods Corporation today declared the regular quarterly dividend of 45 cents a share on the common stock, payable August 15 to holders of record August 1.

National Biscuit Co. reports for the quarter ended June 30 net profit of $3,198,231, equivalent after dividends on the preferred stock to 44 cents a share on the common. In the preceding quarter the company earned $3,066,620, or 42 cents on the common, and in the June quarter last year $3,415,597 or 47 cents a share.

For the first half of 1934 net profit was $6,264,851, equal to 86 cents a share on the common stock, compared with $6,498,425, or 89 cents a share in the first half last year.

General Electric Co. reports profit available for common stock in the second quarter was $4,253,595, equal to 15 cents a share, compared with $2,471,031, or 9 cents a share in the second quarter of 1933.

Profit available for the common stock in the first six months was $8,175,557, equal to 28 cents a share, compared with $4,666,080, or 16 cents a share in the initial half of 1933.

As previously reported, orders received during the second quarter amounted to $54,055,988, contrasted with $35,539,858 a year ago.

Sales of American Colortype Co. for the second quarter of 1934 are $1,356,456, as compared with $1,106,725 for the same quarter of 1933.

Sales for the first six months of 1934 are $3,018,255 as compared with $2,508,838 for the first six months of 1933, an increase in sales of 20.3 per cent.

Net income of the New England Telephone Co. in the first six months amounted to $4,107,528, compared with $3,433,375 in the first half of 1933. The 1934 earnings are equal to $3.08 a share against $2.75 last year.

Net operating income of the Chesapeake & Ohio Railroad in June totaled $3,251,740, compared with $3,206,598 in the same month last year. Gross revenues during the month amounted to $9,587,109 contrasted with $9,298,023 a year ago.

For the first six months net operating income was $18,404,726, compared with $14,730,882 a year ago, and gross revenue totaled $55,094,786 against $47,701,618 a year ago.

Directors of Liggett & Myers Tobacco Co. today declared the regular quarterly dividends of $1 each on the common and common B stocks, payable September 1 to stock of record August 15.

A net profit of $249,936 for the June quarter was reported by the Johns-Manville Corporation. This compares with net loss of $76,081 in the first quarter and net profit of $92,204 in the June quarter last year. Profit per share on common stock was 16 cents in the June quarter. For the same period last year the balance was equal to $1.23 a share on the 7 per cent preferred stock.

For the six months ended June 30 the net profit amounted to $173,855, equivalent to $2.32 a share on the preferred stock against net loss of $861,595 in the first half of 1933.

An increase of 17 per cent in earnings available for the common stock was reported today by International Business Machines Corporation for the first half of 1934 as compared with the corresponding period last year. The company reported net earnings for the six months to June 30 last of $3,401,176, including earnings of foreign subsidiaries and after deducting all reserves, depreciation and other charges and estimated Federal taxes. These earnings, which are equivalent to $4.83 a share on 703,345 no par capital shares outstanding, compare with similar earnings of $2,902,012, or $4.12 a share on the same capitalization, for the corresponding six months of 1933.

Chicago, July 18 (Spl.).—Container Corporation of America reports net income of $598,859 for the first half of 1934, after all expenses, including Federal taxes and reserves for year-end adjustments, and before profit on purchase of bonds, debentures and preferred stock. After deduction of current dividend requirements on the preferred stock, these earnings are equivalent to 85 cents a share on the class "A" common stock and 42½ cents a share on the class "B" common stock. Interest requirements on bonds and debentures during the period were earned 3.69 times over after provision for Federal income taxes.

In the first half of 1933 a loss of $240,177 was sustained.

Cleveland, Ohio, July 18 (AP).—The Corrigan-McKinney Steel Co. for the fiscal year ended April 30 reported net profit of $729,050 before depreciation and depletion, which compares with a net loss of $1,494,838 on the same basis for the preceding year.

A net loss of $1,527,237 before elimination of a minority interest is shown in the consolidated report after allowing $1,518,039 for depreciation, $637,470 depletion and $100,777 amortization of development and stripping.

Directors of the Lincoln Service Corporation of Washington, D. C., at their meeting yesterday declared the regular semiannual dividend of 3½ per cent on the preferred stock, payable August 1 to stockholders of record June 30, 1934.

H. Rozier Dulany, jr., was elected to the executive committee of the corporation.

The auditor's report for the first six months of this year, as submitted to the directors, showed an increase in income of the Lincoln Service Corporation of 226 per cent over the first six months of 1933 and 53 per cent over the last six months of 1933.

THE BUNGLE FAMILY — The Fire Sleuth — By Harry J. Tuthill

GEORGE BUNGLE, AT A TIME LIKE THIS WHEN PEGGY AND ME ARE GETTING READY FOR A YACHT TRIP, WHY ARE YOU WALKING AROUND MUMBLING TO YOURSELF JUST BECAUSE AN OLD LODGE HALL CAUGHT ON FIRE?
THAT HALL HAD PLENTY OF HELP CATCHING ON FIRE. PLENTY.
I WENT OVER THE RUINS AGAIN TODAY, WITH SMOKY JOE FROM NO. 2 COMPANY, AND HE ADMITTED HE COULD SEE A LOT OF FUNNY THINGS THERE.
AND ONE OF THEM, I KNOW, WAS YOU PUTTERING AROUND IN THE ASHES OF A BUILDING THAT SHOULD HAVE BEEN TORN DOWN AGES AGO.
FOR YEARS THE RED-HOTS IN THAT LODGE HAVE BEEN TALKING ABOUT BURNING ME UP, BUT I'LL ADMIT I NEVER EVEN GUESSED THEY'D TRY TO DO IT WITH MATCHES.
WELL I'VE SEEN SOME OF YOUR LODGE BROTHERS AND IF THEY DIDN'T SET FIRE TO SOMETHING NOW, THEY'D DO IT LATER ON.
ANYHOW, WHAT DIFFERENCE DOES IT MAKE WHETHER AN OLD DINGY BUILDING FELL OR BURNED DOWN?
LISTEN JO, YOU MEAN THAT THE RESPECTABLE ELEMENT SHOULD DO NOTHING ABOUT THE OLDEST LODGE IN THE CITY BEING TURNED INTO A SORT OF TRAINING SCHOOL FOR AN ARSON RING? MY WORD!

DICK TRACY — Scotty Improves

IT'S NO USE, STEVE.. IT'S NO USE! I CAN'T REST TILL THAT ENGLISHMAN'S RUBBED OUT! HE'S HAUNTED ME ALL OVER THE WORLD. YOU'VE GOT TO GO TO HIS HOUSE AND FINISH THE JOB!
HAVE A HEART, LU! IF I SHOW MYSELF AROUND THERE - THE COPS'LL GRAB ME IN A MINUTE.
YOU'RE GOING TO HIS APARTMENT AFTER DARK TONIGHT! DO YOU HEAR? TONIGHT!
NO-LU-NO-IT'LL BE.. SUICIDE..
AND AT SCOTTY'S HOME...
THAT'S GREAT, SCOTTY!. WE'RE ALL PULLING FOR YOU. DO YOU FEEL BETTER?
MUCH BETTER.
TELL ME- HAVE YOU LOCATED STEVE AND LU?
NOT YET, MRS. BUMPSTED BUT JUST BE PATIENT- WE WILL!

Walt Mason, Himself

The Dinner Gong.

With a gusto quite astounding Dickens wrote of things to eat and his stories are abounding in the smell of cooking meat. Many characters were gluttons, with their minds on pork and veal; and the sound of flying buttons might be heard at every meal. All events were celebrated in the good old-fashioned style, and the celebrants, elated, sawed off sausage by the mile. If a lovely maid were wedded on the fourteenth of July, there would follow cabbage shredded, and some seven kinds of pie. When some pilgrims got together at a lonely wayside inn they would call for roasted wether and potatoes from the bin. They would call for goose and turkey, they would call for potted eel, and their breathing would be jerky when they'd finished with a meal. Dickens wrote some lovely pieces, then he'd wipe his weeping eyes and request his doting nieces to bring in some pumpkin pies. It is hard to think of writers who can make us melt in tears, eating like coal-heaving blighters, eating pecks of roasting ears. Even Shakespeare, when not busy writing plays that brought him fame, ate fat geese till he was dizzy and betrayed no sense of shame.

WINNIE WINKLE, the Breadwinner — History Repeats Itself

THE HERO IN MY STORY IS SUPPOSED TO BE STANDING IN A VALLEY, SO WE'LL GO DOWN INTO THIS VALLEY TOO, MISS WINKLE, AND GET JUST THE PROPER SETTING!!
NOW WE FIND HIM IN A WOODED GLEN LIKE THIS, SO WE'LL PARK HERE FOR AWHILE!!
AND NOW OUR HERO IS UP ON A MOUNTAIN TOP!! GOSH, NOTICE THE ECHO AROUND HERE!!
I'M DEAD TIRED FROM WALKING! YOU GO ON ALONE, AND I'LL SIT HERE AND TAKE DICTATION FROM YOUR ECHO!!
